JAPANESE LAUNCH MANCHURIAN OFFENSIVE TO DESTROY LAST VESTIGE OF CHINESE RULE

Hoke Smith, Former Governor and Senator, Dies

POLITICAL LEADER FOR HALF-CENTURY WAS 76 YEARS OLD

Atlantan's Long Record Will Stand as One of the Most Brilliant in Southern Statesmanship; Was Ill for Months.

KNOWN AT CAPITAL AS "TRUST-BUSTER"

Renown Gained During Work as Member of Cleveland Cabinet; Funeral Set for Sunday.

Hoke Smith, militant figure in Georgia's politics for half a century, died at the Howell Mill road residence at 11:40 o'clock Friday morning in his seventy-seventh year.

Chosen by the people for two terms as governor of Georgia and twice for the United States senate, and by President Grover Cleveland as a member of his cabinet, his record will long stand as one of the most brilliant in southern statesmanship.

His death came after months of illness, which, aided by the toll of time, overwhelmed the once magnificent strength he possessed. In September he gave way before his ills and doctors predicted that the end was near.

It was Wednesday that death moved forward with surer tread and a coma enveloped the political leader. Thursday at midnight his physician announced that all hope was gone and that the end was only a matter of hours, and the four children of Senator Smith gathered at the bedside, where they were when death came.

Arrangements Made.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, of which he was a charter member, an elder and the first superintendent of the Sunday school, a post he held for many years. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the church, and Bishop Warren A. Candler, close friend of Senator Smith, will officiate. Interment will be in the family lot at Oakland cemetery. The exact hour of the services had not been decided and will be announced later by Brandon, Bond & Condon, directors.

The family of Senator Smith, who was a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, Friday received a telegram of sympathy from the Grover Cleveland Association of New York. The telegram said: "The Grover Cleveland Association of New York notes with profound regret the passing of Hoke Smith, of Atlanta, sole surviving member of president's cabinet. Mr. Cleveland was strongly attached to his secretary of the interior, and relied on his advice and

AIRPORT BUILDING BID IS APPROVED

Wage Scale Addition Is Held Up, But Work Will Start at Once.

Council and the aldermanic board Friday afternoon paved the way for immediate start on the new administration building at Candler field in a special session featured by clashes between members. The body transacted the following other business:

1. Certified a registration list of 19,978 as eligible to cast ballots in the December 2 election and changed the wording of the referendum to be held on the kind of time Atlanta shall use in the future so that the voters will cast ballots "for central time" or "for eastern time," striking out the one for which they do not wish to vote.

2. Passed an appropriation of $5,600 from sewer bond funds to supplement sewer repair accounts in the construction department, subject to approval of the Atlanta bond commission.

3. Empowered the military committee of the Atlanta board of education to subpoena and swear witnesses in testimony to be given in an investigation of the removal of Lieutenant Colonel Harry W. Stephenson as com-

Inquest Is Ordered In Death of J. H. Beck

ALBANY, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—An inquest was ordered Friday into the death of J. H. Beck, for whose death his 33-year-old widow, and an 18-year-old relative, Gordon Collins, have been arrested.

Solicitor-General Robert Short and Sheriff O. F. Tarver conferred here Friday afternoon and following the conference Coroner C. W. Thomas was ordered to hold an inquest to determine if sufficient evidence can be produced to justify the exhumation of the body for an autopsy.

Coroner Thomas has not yet set the date for the inquest, but it is expected to be held Saturday if Mrs. Beck is in physical condition to attend.

Beck died early last month and his brother, Hand Beck, swore out a warrant charging the widow with murder. He said he had been told that Mrs. Beck gave her husband a capsule shortly before he became fatally ill.

Pantages Acquittal Brings Celebration

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Amid tumultuous scenes in which courtroom spectators joined in the joy of a family, Alexander Pantages, theater multi-millionaire, was acquitted today of charges of a criminal attack upon Eunice Pringle, 19-year-old dancer.

Newell J. Morehouse, one of the jurors, said the jurors never believed Miss Pringle's story, but felt sorry for her.

The first vote Tuesday night, after the case went to the jury, was ten to two for acquittal, and it remained at that count until the ballot last night.

Miss Pringle, who had remained at her home, said:

"The verdict goes to show quite clearly the value the state of California places on its girls. It convinces me the state will not protect its women."

Despite the acquittal, she said she planned to prosecute a million-dollar damage suit filed against Pantages shortly after the first trial.

SLOWING OF MAILS BY E. S. T. DENIED; LABOR BACKS PLAN

Trade Unions Here Urge Change; Only Slight Shift in Routine Needed at Postoffice.

Mail distribution, offered as a bugaboo by opponents of a change to eastern time for Atlanta, ceased to be a prominent factor of consideration Friday night when Postmaster E. K. Large and Assistant Postmaster L. F. Livingston furnished mail schedules showing that only one train of postal matter from the east would be affected by a change.

That revelation and the assertion of labor unions and laboring men further convinced the time change campaign committee that voters will overwhelmingly order a change to eastern standard time when ballots are cast December 2.

The mail train referred to is scheduled to arrive in Atlanta at 6:10 a. m. central time, which would set its arrival at 7:10 eastern time.

Postoffice carriers are now scheduled by the clock to deliver business office mail between 7:15 to 8:30 o'clock in the downtown sections. The assistant postmaster said that by shoving up the time for sorting mail from that train by about 30 minutes, it would go in the first delivery. Mail to residential sections would not be affected in any measure by a time change, because mail to those areas goes out later than business matter.

The second and third deliveries would not be affected at all, since only one other mail train from the east arrives during the morning, that at 11 o'clock, too late for the second distribution and two hours before the third delivery begins.

Labor Favors Change.

Asserting that other cities in similar meridian position to Atlanta had found it necessary to switch to eastern time, and that since the change they had found it preferable to central time, a number of labor unions Friday voiced approval of the change. They were unanimous in saying that such a move will benefit the laboring man more than anyone else, and to clinch the point, submitted statements of labor heads in Augusta, Waycross and other cities, saying that they had found laborers to be well pleased with eastern time schedules.

The unions said that members were doing their best to impress upon all to go to the polls on December 2 and vote for the change which will allow the laboring man one hour more of daylight in which to engage in recreation and amusement, or to use in any manner he sees fit, according to the eastern time campaign committee.

Committee Statement.

The statement of the committee follows:

"Luther Alverson, president of the Associated Master Barbers, and W. D. Langley, president of the Journeymen Barbers' Union, stated that they cannot understand why organized labor in the city of Atlanta is manifesting opposition to eastern standard time, especially in view of the fact that if eastern time is adopted the laboring man would benefit more than anyone else, by allowing him one extra hour of daylight each day to do as he sees fit and indulge in recreational activities, etc.

"It is further stated that after an investigation, organized labor in cities where eastern time has been adopted, was instrumental in securing and maintaining eastern time for those cities. This is especially true at Waycross, Augusta, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other leading cities throughout the south and east which are now operating under eastern standard time. In fact, organized labor was responsible for the adoption of eastern time in Cincinnati and since it has been in force practically six years, all elements of labor are pleased with it and find it satisfactory to working men and women and they would not change, according to A. Kummer, president Central Labor Council of Cincinnati.

"Leaders of labor in Cleveland state that it is very good for the workers in that city and they have only one change of time to the west and feel that it divides the light for

Fist Fighting Disrupts Paris Peace Conference; Speakers Hissed, Booed

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Blows and boos from an unruly audience broke up an international disarmament mass meeting here tonight.

Speakers were howled down until police finally ushered the audience out after the meeting had been halted by the uproar.

A speech by Senator William E. Borah, brought from the United States by radio, was interrupted by the booing when a translator set to work on it. Another distinguished American, Alanson B. Houghton, former ambassador to London, was prevented from delivering his address at all.

A nationalist meeting in another hall in protest against the "political character" of the disarmament meeting proceeded quietly at the same time. It was presided over by General Marchand, French explorer, and a prominent speaker was Georges Scapini, blind veteran of the war, who was a guest of the American Legion in the United States some years ago.

Senator Borah's address was scarcely audible on account of static, and there were few interruptions until reading of a French translation was begun.

"Public opinion must enforce disarmament before the statesmen of the world will be able to start the mechanism to make it possible," was Senator Borah's keynote.

Mr. Houghton was interrupted by a fight just before the speaker's stand as he spoke the first sentence of his address of greeting "from the millions of Americans united to aid in peaceful solution of international divergencies." He abandoned the attempt.

The disarmament meeting was in

Tech, Georgia Renew Old Grid Feud Today

Powerful Bulldogs Meet Do-or-Die Yellow Jackets in Annual Dispute at Sanford Field at 1 O'Clock.

BY RALPH McGILL.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27.—There was a hint in the cold blowing winds here tonight of the football storm that is to blow upon Sanford field Saturday afternoon when the Georgia Tech and Georgia football teams meet to settle an ancient grudge.

Down through the years has come this football war between the Red and Black of Georgia and the Gold and White of Tech.

It is a story that never grows old in the telling. Back through the years the whispers run of how old heroes played in this game of games. It wasn't so much how they fared through the early months, but when the cold pinch of November brought the Tech and Georgia game. What did they do then?

And so it is today. Both teams are here in Athens. Tech came over after a practice in Atlanta. The Bulldogs worked on their own field and then retired to the seclusion of Camp Wilkins, two miles out of town.

The weather is of utmost importance. Tonight Athens was ringed with smoke from the forest fires in the hills. But the sages said that the sun went down blood red, which means that on the morrow there would be clouds but no rain. Cold but no mist.

A good team wins on wet field or dry. Great backs find footing where the lesser ones fail. And rain would make little difference in this game Saturday afternoon. Both teams depend on fleet backs. Neither team has any heavy pounding backs who like to plow through mud.

Georgia has more reserves and more weight in the line, and the Georgia attack is a type which likes dry footing, but the rain may be counted out.

Except perhaps, for its psychological value. It was in 1927 that a highly favored Georgia team went riding out from Athens with rain splashing on the windows of the train as they peered out at the familiar terrain. And a Tech team, holding Georgia in the mud, suddenly found itself and moved on to win. Rain might give Georgia Tech an added impetus. But in this day of modern stadiums and playing fields rain makes little difference except in the handling of punts and passes.

A fast punt or a fast pass is hard enough to handle when the ball is dry. And a coating of raw November rain to the ball and it becomes a treacherous and evil thing to hold.

Actually, however, the rain makes little difference. The game today will be won or lost by the team that gets the jump and holds it.

Georgia is a favorite. The Bulldogs that raged through Yale, beat New York and bowed before only Tulane, the southern champions to date, are picked by many to win by three touchdowns.

But tonight Harry Mehre, the Bulldog head coach, and H. J. Stegeman, the veteran of the athletic association, wagged solemn and doubtful noggins at the word that 18 points were being bet.

"It will be a tough ball game," said both Mehre and Stegeman. "Tech has been coming along. We seem to be standing still. And this Tech team isn't a weak one now that the tackles have found themselves and begun to play. They have good fast backs in

U. S. FARM BOARD DEFENDS TACTICS

Creekmore and Milnor Tell of Transactions in Which Much Was Lost.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Two farm board field generals today defended their tactical moves in wheat and cotton campaigns which resulted in a loss—on paper—of some $185,000,000 of government money.

The $75,000-a-year manager of the Cotton Stabilization Corporation, E. F. Creekmore, told the senate agriculture committee he felt the losses were outweighed by the benefits farmers had received through the board.

George S. Milnor, whose salary as manager of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation and the Grain Stabilization Corporation is $50,000, expressed similar sentiments.

Milnor described the operations of the corporations at length and revealed that, while the wheat stabilization outfit has lost at current prices about $110,000,000, the Farmers' National—central sales agency for grain co-operatives—made more than $2,418,000 from November, 1929, to October, 1931.

Although the Farmers' National has been assisted by board money, it is an independent organization of co-operatives. On the other hand, the stabilization corporation is a direct subsidiary of the board and bought wheat with board money.

Loss of $75,000,000.

Creekmore reached the stand late in the day and he did not go into cotton stabilization operations in detail. Chairman Stone, however, previously had estimated the paper loss through purchasing 1,319,809 bales of cotton at $75,000,000.

In a previous appearance before the board, an official of the Ameri-

Boys Catch Burglar, Hold Him for Police

Trapped in a house after a chase of nearly a mile by a group of boys, who held him until the police arrived, Charles Davis, negro, of 606 Fraser street, was lodged in police station on a charge of burglary Friday afternoon.

Returning home from a visit, Mrs. J. B. Burt, of 396 Ridge Crest road, saw a negro man standing in her kitchen, she told police. Her screams attracted the boys, who were playing near by. They gave chase and the man sought refuge in a negro house some distance away. He was hiding between the mattress and the springs of a bed when the boys found him, they said. Davis will be tried at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

TRUST ACT REPEAL URGED BY CORWIN

Sherman Measure Has Not Been Effective, Economists Hear.

Co-operative efforts both in business and in government, even to the extent of shifting to regional and national governing bodies many of the duties now performed by states, and of repealing anti-trust laws to permit fuller co-operation of business, were advocated by economists in conference here Friday.

E. S. Corwin, of Princeton University, president of the American Political Science Association, told the southern association that repeal of the Sherman anti-trust act probably would be a good thing if accompanied by a well considered plan of price regulation.

He said the Sherman act had not prevented the organization of industry into great corporations so long as actual monopoly was not attained or attempted.

"Actually," he said, "the rule has not proved very successful in saving the country from many of the bad results of monopoly, though it has denied us the good results that might have ensued from concentration of responsibility, elimination of the costs of competition and so on."

He said it was a recognized rule that the price of monopoly services was subject to government regulation.

The first suggestion of co-operative effort was made by Miss Harriet Elliott, of North Carolina College for Women, who told the association the various states had no economic reason for their being and must come to regional and national financing of the social services which they have

Tom Mix Registers Slow Improvement

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Tom Mix, film star, showed a gradual improvement today, leading to the first encouraging official bulletin since his critical illness developed.

Peritonitis developed after an emergency appendicitis operation. Until today, physicians noted "no change" in his condition, and he had been given only a slight chance to pull through.

An official bulletin at 10 o'clock (E. S. T.) tonight said: "Mix had a very satisfactory day. We hope in 12 hours to be able to report a more definite improvement."

Hospital attendants expressed confidence the actor would pass the crisis before morning, but added that until he did there was danger of a relapse at any time.

'MERGER ORGY' SEEN AS FACTOR IN DEPRESSION

Brookhart Assails Refinancing Schemes and Commends The Constitution's Editorial.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Believing that "the orgy of corporate mergers, stock dividend issues and refinancing schemes which prevailed at the time of the 1929 market crash are chiefly responsible for the current depression," Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, said today he would join forces with those who are planning to demand a congressional investigation of such operations when the new session starts next month.

"I have noted the excellent editorial The Constitution carried on the general subject of these activities last Sunday," said the Iowa senator, "and I heartily commend it for its straightforward position in the matter.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the rampant stock and refinancing operations of some of our largest corporate interests are directly responsible for the condition the country finds itself in today."

Identified with the Republican progressive element of the chamber, Senator Brookhart said the least congress could do will be to order a comprehensive inquiry into the situation. Personally, however, he is in favor of going much further and passing strict regulatory legislation covering the operations of all corporate interests which extend into interstate commerce.

"Such corporations and holding companies, particularly the utility group, should be made subject to regulation either by the interstate commerce commission or the federal trade commission just the same as the railroads," Senator Brookhart asserted.

Present Laws Inadequate.

"It is obvious that the laws now in force on the subject are inadequate. What little regulation that is in effect is left to the individual states and they are handicapped by the inhibition against applying jurisdiction to corporations of an interstate character. It is purely a situation that congress alone can deal with. If we had passed some such act before the 1929 crash, our present state of economic distress might have been avoided."

Senator Brookhart has definite ideas concerning the restrictions that should be imposed on corporate activities. One of the proposals he has in mind is to limit the earnings which industries doing business in interstate commerce may retain. All above a certain figure would be returned to the federal treasury.

He approaches the proposal in the following manner:

"There are no estimates up to date, but, taking the general condition of 1930, it is quite certain that 4 per cent of wealth production of the country is all we have to distribute.

"That 4 per cent will date back even to the Declaration of Independence.

"There was a wealth production of about 4 per cent a year prior to 1912. Since that there was an increase in wealth in our country due to what we might term the 'machinery age,' and in the future we will perhaps have to depend upon that for wealth increase.

Four Per Cent for Dividends.

"It seems to me we can quite safely count that we have 4 per cent for dividends, and that is all we have when all capital is considered.

"The national income since 1920, or about that time, has been approximately $90,000,000,000 a year. It takes a thousand million to make each one of those billions. Ninety billion dollars would mean about $750 for each man, woman and child in the United States, or about $3,750 for each average family of five.

"We spend about $75,000,000,000 for living and operating expenses of our industries, and that leaves about $15,000,000,000 as the net income of all our country. That represents the 4 per cent of wealth increase which I have described.

"If we distribute all of that net income to capital and give nothing to labor, invention, genius or management except their living, capital would get

Flays Militarism

SENATOR BORAH.

PEACE BY DEMAND URGED BY BORAH

American Advises Europeans To Mobilize Opinion Against Militiarism.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Senator Borah advised European peoples directly today to use the lash of mass demand so the cause of disarmament may conquer.

"Governments will do nothing unless driven by public opinion," he declared, "not a mild, pliable public opinion, but a public opinion vibrant with uncommon zeal and spurred on by an indignation commensurate with the injustice of the present program."

From the National Broadcasting Company studio here, the voice of the senate foreign relations committee chairman was carried to an audience of several thousand at the Paris session of the International Union of League of Nations Associations. Viscount Cecil, of England, was on the program—speaking from the French capital.

Agreement on reduced armaments, Borah said, would greatly benefit economic conditions. He estimated that by the time the Geneva conference on the question meets in February, some 50,000,000 people will be facing hunger and nakedness. He blamed this on the burden of armaments and other "demoralizing forces."

The senator pictured helpless masses everywhere growing restless and ugly in the present circumstances, while nearly five billion dollars is being spent every year on war materials and up to 85 per cent of taxes "extorted from the people" go for military purposes.

"All this," he emphasized, "is another name for slow but inevitable national suicide."

Georgia Woman, Child Die as Home Burns

HARLEM, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. J. E. Lewis and her baby lost their lives early Friday in a fire which destroyed the Lewis home near here. The husband and father, J. E. Lewis, was awakened by the screams of his wife, who was in an adjoining room, but was unable to reach her.

Mr. Lewis said when he heard his wife's screams, he ran to the door of her room. Opening it, he said he found the room ablaze. Unable to save her and their baby, he returned to his room and carried two other children to safety.

The Lewis family is prominent in Columbia county, where Mr. Lewis is a farmer. Lewis was burned, but his condition is not serious.

Robert Ames, Star of Films, Dies in New York Hotel; Investigation Is Ordered

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Robert Ames, whose portrayal of juvenile roles on Broadway won him stage fame and a screen career, was found dead today in his hotel suite under circumstances which led authorities to order an autopsy.

Dr. Eugene E. Marcovici, who was summoned after the finding of the body, they said that Ames' body, nude except for a silk dressing gown over his shoulders, was lying in the doorway between the bedroom and living room when a chambermaid entered the suite.

Six whisky bottles, some of them full, were in the suite, police reported, and about 100 sleeping powders were in a box in the bedroom.

Two detectives who visited the suite reported "an investigation is being made pending the outcome of an autopsy." The sleeping powders also were ordered analyzed.

Last night Ames saw his father and Allen Fagin, brother of Ina Claire, the actress, in his suite. Fagin called at the hotel tonight and immediately telegraphed Miss Claire word of Ames' death.

Friends said Miss Claire was to

POWERFUL FORCE LEAVES MUKDEN FOR CHINCHOW

Tokyo Claims Army Halted Halfway to Capital, But Mukden Dispatch Says Annihilation of Regime Nipponese Aim.

TIENTSIN SEES HEAVY FIGHTING

Movement Seen as First Step in Sweeping Drive Ultimately To Extend to China Proper.

18 FOREIGNERS LISTED IN TIENTSIN DEATHS

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(UP)—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Mukden said Japanese news agencies reported 18 Europeans and Americans killed by the Chinese shelling of the Japanese concession in Tientsin. The report was not confirmed from other sources.

By The Associated Press.

Chinese bombardment of the Japanese concession at Tientsin rumbled on yesterday, with six Europeans reported killed in the fighting.

Chinchow, walled temporary capital of the Manchurian province of Fengtien, at the same time became the vital point in negotiations for a cessation of hostilities in embattled Manchuria.

Japanese troops moved toward Chinchow with the avowed purpose of wiping out the last vestige of Chinese rule in Manchuria.

But a report that Japanese airplanes had bombed the city was denied at Japanese headquarters in Mukden and a war office spokesman said the Japanese advance was stopped at a halfway point.

Japanese troops along the Peiping-Mukden railway had withdrawn to Hsinmintun, said a Japanese dispatch from Mukden.

Washington, losing hope that Japan intended to restore Manchuria to Chinese sovereignty without long negotiations, indicated that a swift American protest might be made.

Meanwhile, the Chinese government proposed, and Japan accepted, a proposal to create a neutral zone between Chinchow and the great wall of China, 40 miles to the southward. The Japenese acceptance was subject to the reservation that, should the necessity arise, Japanese troops might be moved through the neutral area.

At Chinchow, the Chinese general, Yung Chen, announced that he would make no offensive move against the Japanese but would defend the capital to the last against any aggression. Japan assured Washington and the League of Nations council at Paris that no offensive against the city was planned.

At Paris the League withheld acceptance of a resolution providing for the establishment of a neutral commission to investigate conditions in Manchuria, pending Chinese acceptance. Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese mem-

Mrs. Wanamaker Scorns $20,000 a Year Income

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Payments of $20,000 a year are "totally inadequate" to support Mrs. John Wanamaker Jr., it was testified today at a hearing on desertion and non-support charges brought by her against her husband.

Wanamaker, son of the late Rodman Wanamaker and grandson of John Wanamaker, heard a recital of his private finances from the records of the Wanamaker stores and statements by his mother-in-law that he had failed to support his wife properly.

It was stated by counsel for Mrs. Wanamaker that he had an income of $350,000 a year from interest on his holdings.

ROOSEVELT VICTORY PREDICTED BY CRISP

Senator Walsh Also Sees New York Executive as Winner in 1932.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Further indications of Governor Franklin Roosevelt's strength in democratic circles was seen here today in the declarations of two strong party leaders, Representative Crisp, of Georgia, and Senator Walsh, of Montana.

Representative Crisp expressed the belief that his home state would be solidly behind the New York executive for nomination and election.

A dispatch from Norfolk, Va., quoted Walsh as predicting Roosevelt's nomination and election, adding that "no one else" is being considered in Montana.

SENATOR WALSH PREDICTS ELECTION OF ROOSEVELT

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, in an interview here today, said he expected Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, to be the next democratic nominee for president. He added that he believed Roosevelt would be overwhelmingly elected.

"Roosevelt will undoubtedly be the democratic nominee, in my opinion," Senator Walsh said. "No one else is even thought of in my section of the country."

"And who will the republicans run?" the reporter queried.

"Hoover, of course," was the senator's reply.

"What about the main issues before the next session of congress?" the reporter queried.

"Revenue and unemployment relief," was the reply.

DEMOCRATS IN OHIO WILL BACK WHITE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A belief that Ohio democrats will go to the national convention pledged for Governor White, of that state, was expressed today by Senator Bulkley, democrat, Ohio.

It is Bulkley's understanding that neither Newton D. Baker nor Governor Roosevelt, of New York, will enter the state primary. He reported, in response to the direct question, that Roosevelt has considerable "latent strength" in the state.

EARL MANCHESTER IS DENIED RESPITE

Russell Declines To Grant Stay Pending Powers Case Decision.

Earl Manchester, under a death sentence for the slaying of James Parks, Atlanta printer, will not be granted an indeterminate respite pending a supreme court ruling on the appeal of Mrs. Sara Powers, Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. informed the prison commission Friday.

Governor Russell advised the commission that he would be willing to grant a 30-day respite if the commission desired further time to study the case. Mrs. Powers, charged with the same killing, was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. Manchester is scheduled to be electrocuted December 4.

At the same time he announced his decision in the Manchester case, the governor said he would not interfere in the death sentence of English Gaskins, Candler county man convicted of the knife murder of his wife. Gaskins, under a respite which expires December 4, will be resentenced.

'Have or Has' Is Question And Savants Can't Agree

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Erudite professors of Washington are all at odds over whether "has" or "have" should have been used in a sentence appearing recently in a national magazine.

"It is evident that the Mussolini ambition, or rather its latest ramifications, have a depressing effect," was the questioned text. Two universities and 12 private and public schools approved the "have" as governed by "ramifications." Another university and ten schools insisted upon "has."

Meanwhile, the editor of the magazine, consulted by mail, said it should have been "has." But the war rages on. An English instructor started it all in fun.

CRISP MAY SEEK HOUSE LEADERSHIP

Georgian Seen as Possible Contender Upon Return to Washington.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The possibility of Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Georgia, making an active race for the democratic leadership of the house was seen here today following arrival of the Georgian at the capital.

Representative Crisp, one of the outstanding democratic members of the all-powerful ways and means committee, had no statement to make himself beyond admitting he has been urged to permit the use of his name, but from other quarters it was learned considerable pressure is being brought toward having him become an active contender. The Georgia delegation, it can be stated, will back him solidly if he decides to run.

At the moment, the list of announced contenders for the democratic leadership has dwindled to two members—Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, and Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York. Several others had been mentioned for the post ever since it became evident that Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, the present leader, would be elected speaker, thus creating a vacancy in what will amount to the second most important position in the new body. And all of these have, one by one, withdrawn from the race, with the exception of the two named.

Representative Crisp also has figured prominently among the possibilities for floor leader from the start, but his absence from the capital in recent weeks, during which the fight has waxed warm, tended to give rise to the impression he would not make the race.

The situation was somewhat changed today when several important groups approached the Georgia member following his return to his office and offered to support him for the leadership. Representative Crisp has the subject under consideration and may have an announcement to make in the next few days.

Regardless of whether he enters the race or not, he let it be known today that he will support demands for a liberalization of house rules, feeling that the old method under republican control is obsolete. During past sessions, or practically ever since the democrats lost control in 1918, a triumvirate consisting of the speaker, the majority leader and the chairman of the rules committee has run the body.

At the close of the last session Representative Crisp announced he would support a move for liberalizing rules of the chamber in order to permit the consideration of legislation demanded by substantial minorities.

Long recognized as one of the best parliamentarians of the house, Representative Crisp was first elected to congress to succeed his late distinguished father, Speaker Charles F. Crisp. Later he was elected judge of the city court of Americus, which he resigned in 1911 to accept the position of parliamentarian of the house, under Speaker Champ Clark. Now serving his tenth term, Judge Crisp is dean of the Georgia delegation.

Trees Destroyed.

Wins Prize in Charity Drive

Mrs. C. T. Knight, representing the Gordon Street Baptist church, receives a "Good Samaritan Check" for $130, which was the amount of the first of four prizes given in the first phase of the Good Samaritan church and charity buying campaign, now under way and which continues for 26 weeks. O. M. Johnson, in charge of the campaign, is presenting the check. This week's prizes of $60 for first place, $35 for second place, $23 for third place and $12 for fourth place, will be awarded Tuesday to the churches or charities entitled to one of the four places on the basis of coupons received on purchases from several stores in the campaign, sales slips or cash register receipts from others, receipted bills from others, or labels, cartons, bottle caps, etc., as advertised in the different advertisements on the Good Samaritan Advertising page, which appears in today's Constitution. This page will appear each Saturday during the campaign. Churches and charities participating are urged to deliver their votes for this week at campaign headquarters, 137 Peachtree Arcade, by 6 o'clock tonight.

PENNY CLUB DAY BY DAY

BY MRS. THOS. K. GLENN

"This work could not have been done and these men would not have had any jobs if the Penny Club had not furnished the money for the pay roll," said J. B. Franklin, superintendent of Grady hospital, when he was showing the many improvements that have been made by men working on made jobs at the hospital. He said that many improvements were necessary and much work needed to be done but the city did not have the money to pay the workers. So he was delighted when the emergency relief committee offered to furnish workers through the made work plan.

The first place Mr. Franklin showed Mrs. Dickey and me was the new dining room for colored nurses. The old dining room was across the street from the main building and was very inconvenient for both the workers in the kitchen, who had to serve the meals, and the nurses. Now they have a beautiful new dining room in the main building built entirely by workers furnished by the Penny Club. The nurses were so delighted with their new quarters that they bought new curtains and pictures for the room with their own money.

Mr. Franklin then showed us the new baby ward that had been remodeled by made-work plan workers. This beautiful new room was on the sunny side of the building and provides a great deal more room for the little youngsters who first see the light of day at Grady hospital. The old ward is being rebuilt for an addition to the present ward for the mothers, thereby relieving the congested condition in this part of the hospital.

The basement of the nurses' home is being built into class rooms for the nurses. When the home was originally built the basement was never finished and the city has not had the money to build the much needed classrooms for the nurses. When the new classrooms are finished, the space occupied by the nurses in the main hospital building will be released for additional wards.

The grounds have been cleaned up and all of the outside woodwork of the hospital has been repainted.

It did not seem possible that pennies could have done so much good. Don't pass a Penny Club box by with pennies in your pockets. If you prefer to pay 90 cents a month or all in advance, send your check to the Penny Club, 42 Edgewood avenue.

LA GUARDIA ATTACKS SHIP BOARD CONTRACT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Representative LaGuardia, of New York, tonight coupled a charge that the shipping board could not "honestly" award a contract to the Seatrain Transporting Company with a threat of "an impeachment, an indictment or a removal."

The contract called for a loan of $2,400,000 to the company, representing 75 per cent of the construction cost of two new car ferries to operate with its present vessel between New Orleans and Havana.

As LaGuardia completed a letter of warning to the board on the grounds that the company is British controlled, it was said at the board that the loan had been granted.

A board official said he neither had seen the letter nor had it been discussed in the meeting at which the loan was agreed upon.

LaGuardia contended "the construction loan was rushed through because of my protest."

Then he added:

"For the first time in my 14 years in the house, I'm going to have to use a word I have kept away from: Such a contract could not honestly be awarded.

"There will be now either an impeachment, an indictment or a removal—I haven't decided which. I'm reading the law."

LaGuardia contends the Seatrain Company is "a British company, operating its ships under British registry and flying the British flag." Shipping board records show it has only one vessel. This is of Canadian registry built in England and run by a subsidiary.

DINO GRANDI BOARDS LINER FOR HOMELAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, bade farewell to America today and sailed for his native land.

At the pier, where the liner Augustus waited, he had only to say that since his visit and conversations with President Hoover he believed the United States and Italy joined in a new era of international understanding.

Into movie microphones he said: "My only feeling on leaving America is a desire to return again."

More than a thousand persons were crowded outside the pier to see him off, some of them shouting "Vive Grandi! Vive fascismo!"

Not shouting, but there, was a delegation of the committee for international anti-fascist protest. Its members handed to reporters copies of a telegram which they said had been sent to Signor Grandi. It suggested that the spirit of mercy and clemency which he directed toward Orlando Spartaco, Philadelphia anti-fascist, might better be used at home "in behalf of 5,000 political prisoners."

Grandi went to the liner from the New York Times building, where he had been guest of honor at a luncheon, the last social event of his five-day stay in New York. Donna Antoinetta, his wife, preceded him to the pier, journeying from their hotel under police guard.

Her last thrill was to slip away from her guards in the afternoon and buy paper doilies at a 10-cent store.

She said she had promised her little son, Franco, and daughter, Simonetta, over the telephone from Washington that they should come to America with her, some day.

Stewards and seamen formed a lane at the pier for Grandi to walk to the gangplank. On deck, detectives and secret service men, who have guarded him constantly, were shouldered into the background by persons eager to inspect him closely. Flashlights of photographers pierced the mist with regularity.

Grandi was flushed, but smiling, when he managed to extricate himself and reach the grand salon. More newsreel photographers awaited him there.

Shortly afterward he received in his suite and bade official farewells to Giacomo de Martino, Italian ambassador, and officials of the American state department.

BACHARACH URGES HIGHER TAX RATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Another increase in the federal deficit—now fast approaching the billion dollar mark—gave impetus today to the congressional study of means to make revenue equal with expenditures.

Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, a republican leader of the ways and means committee which must originate tax legislation, voiced again his program calling for higher rates on large individual incomes, estates, a gift tax and sales taxes on non-essentials.

At the White House and the treasury as well much thought was given to the problem. President Hoover is to transmit to congress in a little more than a week his recommendations for dealing with it.

The deficit today stood at $813,377,093 for the fiscal 147 days of the fiscal year. The last fiscal year produced a deficit of $930,000,000.

SNELL IS FAVORED BY PENNSYLVANIA

House Delegation Votes 18 to 12, With Tilson Trailing in Leaders' Race.

BY CECIL B. DICKSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The bitter discord among republicans over the choice of a party leader in a probably democratic house was shown today in the big Pennsylvania delegation's failure to agree on a speakership nominee.

A vote of 18 for Representative Snell, of New York, and 12 for Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, at a conference behind closed doors, forecast a close battle between these outstanding candidates at the republican conference Monday.

While the contest that has waged since the death of Nicholas Longworth last March is technically for the speakership nomination, it is actually for the minority leadership in event the democratic majority organizes the house. Longworth had been renominated speaker and Tilson selected floor leader.

The conference Monday will decide whether Tilson will remain floor leader if he loses the nomination to Snell and the democrats elect Representative John N. Garner, of Texas, speaker.

The democrats have 218; republicans, 214; farmer-laborites, 1, and there are two vacancies. The republicans have little hope of keeping control in face of the united front the democrats are prepared to present.

Immediately after the meeting, Tilson, republican floor leader in the last three congresses, said, "The result in the Pennsylvania conference was exactly what he had forecast. With the 12 votes from Pennsylvania, I can count on more than 100 for me at the republican conference on Monday morning."

Snell also claimed that with the 18 Pennsylvania votes, and the support of New York, New Jersey, the middlewest, northwest and Pacific coast, he would hold as many votes as Tilson. The Illinois delegation meets tomorrow and the New Yorker expects substantial support from it.

Point Barrow Enjoys First Dinner of Turkey

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A Thanksgiving turkey was served yesterday for white residents of Point Barrow, nearly 350 miles inside the arctic circle—and oldtimers said they never knew of a turkey being brought to this settlement before.

At a dinner at the Presbyterian hospital, the handful of whites were the guests of Miss Lillie M. Bailey, the matron. Dr. Henry Griest led a simple service of worship.

The turkey was brought here by dog team from Nome, more than 800 miles away.

Huge Ring Believed Broken as 31 Federal Indictments Are Returned.

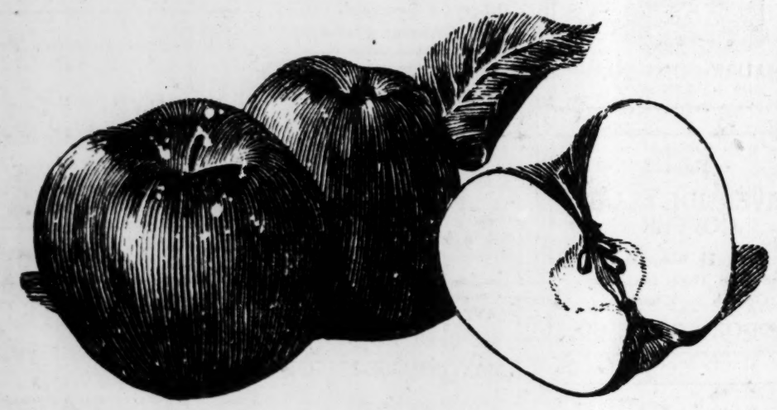

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A huge conspiracy, which resulted in a steady, illicit parade of aliens into the United States, was believed by federal officials to have been smashed with return of 31 indictments today against 17 lawyers, consular employes and members of the immigration and naturalization forces.

The indictments grew out of an investigation begun four months ago by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, assisted by Murray W. Gerson, special assistant secretary of labor.

The inquiry spread to Chicago and other lake cities, where indictments already have been returned.

Medalie refused to estimate how many aliens had been smuggled into the country by the alleged conniving of the 17 men, but 60 aliens questioned by the grand jury admitted they were "clients" of the indicted group.

—TELEPHONE MAIN 0442—

Ask For Coupons--Sales Slips--Cash Register Receipts--as Advertised by Each Merchant on This Page. Also Vote Advertised Brands.

Today marks the close of the second voting period of the Good Samaritan Buying Campaign . . . More than twenty churches and charities are officially participating . . . Each of these has officially entered the campaign by signing the nomination blank . . . In signing the nomination blank in behalf of the church or charity as such or in behalf of one of the sub-divisions or branches, a bonus of 10,000 votes is received. . . . Each of these more than 20 churches or charities, therefore, which have entered start out with 10,000 votes to their credit. These are counted in this week's totals . . . Those who have accumulated votes during the past week, or since the campaign opened, are urged to bring them down to Campaign Headquarters, 137 Peachtree Arcade, before 6 o'clock p. m. Saturday.

The second awards will be announced Tuesday morning, when the four churches or charities turning in the greatest vote will share in the second week's division of prize money.

The GOOD SAMARITAN CAMPAIGN offers substantial financial assistance to churches or charities of the community which may be interested in sharing a portion of the $6,000.00 in cash which is to be awarded during the next six months.

The Good Samaritan Campaign is made possible by the merchants and businesses whose advertisements appear on this page. They have been inspired by the manifold good purposes its operation suggests, and churches and charities are invited to participate under the conditions suggested below.

Whatever you buy from the stores, shops and enterprises advertising on this page counts for votes—one vote for each cent spent. Ask for your coupons, which a few give—and in other cases cash register receipts or duplicate sales slips.

Headquarters are at 137 Peachtree Arcade, street level floor, and entry blanks and other information can be had there. Telephone MAin 0442.

VOTES TO BE COUNTED EACH WEEK MUST BE CAST BY SATURDAY 6 P. M.

Weekly Prizes to Churches or Charities Delivering Greatest Vote for Each Period. Totals to Be Carried Forward to Be Applied to Grand Purse Distribution at Close of Campaign.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF AWARDS EACH TUESDAY MORNING

One vote for each cent of expenditure in cash purchases from participating businesses or firms. One vote for each cent paid on account, provided such receipts are voted directly by the payee. In no case shall uncalled for receipts be given to any organization or individual by participating firm to be voted by other than payee.

Businesses and merchants are required to dispose of all uncalled for and unused cash register tickets, duplicate cash sales slips which might otherwise be collected by contesting organizations and voted.

The purpose and theory of the campaign is to make all tokens voted representative of actual transactions by interested individuals and organizations.

The cooperation of both the merchant and the individual is necessary to the full attainment of the purposes of the campaign—to stimulate buying . . . to speed payment of accounts . . . to generally improve community business.

The right to throw out all votes offered which may indicate a vioation of the letter and spirit of the rules and purposes of the campaign is reserved.

Representatives of organizations entered in the campaign are requested to cast their votes at the Campaign Headquarters, Main Floor Peachtree Arcade, as frequently as possible, at least once each week.

The standing of competing organizations will be announced each Tuesday. Votes for each given week must be in by Saturday noon.

Read Every Advertisement Carefully

Only then will you know what counts for votes. In some cases it is the cash register ticket which you have been customarjly receiving and disposing of . . . Now these same tickets have a definite value to your church . . . In other cases it will be the duplicate sales slips. In a few other cases it may be wrappers or containers or labels or bottle caps.

SENATOR HOKE SMITH.

The death of former Senator Hoke Smith removes a distinguished Georgian who for many years played a prominent part in the politics of the state and the nation.

For the past several years failing health had gradually sapped his splendid physical strength and vitality. He retired from the active profession of the law about two years ago, since which time he has lived in the quiet seclusion of his country home near Atlanta.

His mental ability and remarkable physique combined to make him a vigorous fighter, whether in the practice of his profession or in politics. He supported his contentions in "hammer and tongs" manner and his personal force and ability as an orator contributed largely to his political successes.

His first entrance into national politics was as a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, in which he served as secretary of the interior from 1893 to 1896. Later he served two terms as governor, after which he reentered the national political realm as senator from Georgia.

Probably no man in the history of Georgia public life ever had stronger supporters or more bitter opponents. The long factional fight in which he was the leader of one side caused a split in the politics of the state such as had not been experienced since the Troup and Clark factions waged bitter contests.

While the rancors of those old-time political rivalries lasted until the death of the principals, this was not true in the case of Senator Smith. At the time of his death the personal rivalries and animosities engendered during his campaigns had long since disappeared and many of his most vigorous opponents had become good friends.

In going Senator Smith leaves an indelible imprint upon the history of the state, which he served long and well.

THE SOUTHERN MARKET.

The very magnitude of the $19,000,000,000 annual gross income from southern manufactures, mines and agriculture emphasizes the importance of our protecting and developing our own markets, points out the Manufacturers Record in a recent issue.

Forty-seven thousand four hundred wholesale and 438,700 retail concerns did a gross business in the south of nearly $27,000,000,000 in 1929. Forty-six thousand five hundred manufacturing establishments bought materials valued at $6,626,000,000. Railroad and public utilities spent more than a billion, while another billion went for highway improvement and public education.

The south will never reach its maximum of wealth and prosperity until it supplies these markets to the fullest extent from her own mines, fields and manufacturing establishments.

We must stop sending $1,000,000,000 a year, as we did in 1929, out of this section for foods. Practically all of our food necessities can be supplied by the south and there is no reason why they could not be prepared in southern factories for southern and national consumption.

Nature has made of the south an empire unto itself, but its people have not lived up to the opportunities presented to them. Every type of climate, soil and mineral deposit is to be found south of the Mason and Dixon line, but we still either send the majority of our raw products away to be manufactured and sent back to us, or else we buy articles both produced and factoried in other sections.

It is indeed time, as the Manufacturers Record says, for the south to look not only to her agriculture but to her markets as well.

THE CALL TO THE COUNTRY.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in a brief statement appearing elsewhere on this page succinctly points out one of the chief underlying reasons why our economic condition is out of kilter—and points the way to put it back on an even keel.

Our present lack of balance, he shows, is because farm industry has been converted into factory industry.

At the time of the war of independence we were 95 per cent a nation of rural dwellers. A hundred years ago 75 per cent of the American people still lived on farms. Now the figures are almost reversed.

When times of depression come the millions who have deserted the independence of the farm for more remunerative work in the cities are left either in hard or destitute circumstances, while those who stick to the soil as their method of livelihood are assured at least of food and shelter.

The carpenter, the bricklayer, the factory worker and the clerk has no source of revenue execpt his pay.

The tiller of the soil is the lord of his own kingdom. Whether or not he receives any cash from the sale of any of his crops, he is always assured of a shelter, and the soil he owns will produce enough food to banish the threat of starvation faced by the unemployed of the cities.

As Governor Roosevelt points out, the farmers of America are far from prosperous as a class, but nevertheless their condition, financially, physically and mentally, is a far happier one than that of many of the industrial workers of the city.

Far more important, however, than its bearing on the suffering of the city livers during times of adversity is the effect the repopulation of our deserted farms would have on the general prosperity of the country. The adoption of a nationwide back-to-the-farm movement would be our best insurance against the recurrence of distressing periods of depression such as the country has gone through since the beginning of this century.

More families on the farms would lead to improvement in rural conditions of all kinds, while fewer people in the cities would mean better wages for labor and relief from crowded conditions.

The broad scope, rich soils and varied climates of America make it fundamentaly an agricultural nation and not until we restore to the farms a proper per cent of our population will our economic balance be restored to a sound basis.

Captain Frank Hawks is quoted as predicting "high speed" flights for the future, which naturally leads to wonder as to what he calls his past 200-mile an hour flights.

When they put those 50 alimony club members in a Chicago jail to work, waiting on the other prisoners, the stubborn ex-hubbies will probably be tempted to say "Home again!"

The Chinese-Japanese controversy seems to have settled down to a regular routine—one day brings reports of peace agreements, and the next news is of fast falling Japanese bombs.

And now Florida fruit, jucily swaying on the bough in the morning—will be picked and delivered by air throughout the north in time to be served for dinner.

No doubt the Alimony Club boys, jailed though they were, philosophied on Thanksgiving Day that things might have been worse.

Laval's report on his Washington conferences has received the official sanction of the French deputies—but that, of course, is no assurance of what they will do in the future, in view of the well-known changeableness of the French temperament.

Those senate probers looked into the farm board's so-called stabilization and probably found little that could truthfully be called stable.

Georgia hunters should learn what their western brothers already know—that they are standing in their own light when they cause forest fires.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

A 3,000-Mile Garden.

Canadian businessmen are giving support to a picturesque scheme for establishing a strip of decorative landscape garden the whole way along the Canadian-United States border, a frontier already famous for the absence of a single fort. At various points along the long trail from Atlantic to Pacific botanical museums and hothouses for the rearing of delicate plants and shrubs would be established. The scheme would be financed from a $5,000,000 volunteer fund to be subscribed by local businessmen and others who are likely to benefit from the establishment of such a lure to tourists.

This 3,000-mile garden would be maintained from the interest paid on the $5,000,000 fund. Some economic experts have already figured it out that this is feasible. For the time being, it is pointed out, the idea will supply work for several thousands of men.

I cannot help comparing this garden, which would be symbolic of peace and good relations between the people of the United States and those of Canada, with another frontier garden which I inspected recently. This was located along the Rhine. But here, amidst clumps of flowers and hidden in the middle of artificial ponds, were small steel turrets equipped with machine guns whose nozzles pointed menacingly in the direction of the frontier. These sinister gardens form part of France's new gigantic underground girdle of forts which follows the Rhine and switches into Belgium and runs right up to the frontiers of Holland.

Important Anniversary.

We just passed over an important anniversary without commemorating it. I refer to the creation of the world. If we are to credit Archbishop Ussher, the seventeenth century divine who, after a lifetime of calculation, concluded that creation must have begun on October 23, 4004 B. C. Ussher's chronological tables are still retained in the Authorized Version of the Bible as the most reliable of the many pre-evolutionary attempts to fix the date of creation, which varied from 3483 B. C. to 6981 B. C.

Modern scientists have so familiarized us with the idea that the earth is not a few thousand but millions of years old that it seem almost incredible that Bishop Lightfoot, less than a century ago, should have refined on Ussher's calculations by confidently fixing the time of the creation of man at 9 a. m., October 23, 4004 B. C.

TWO ARE ADVANCED BY ICE CORPORATION

With the formal acquisition of the Southeastern Ice Utility Corporation of Portsmouth, Va., by the Atlantic Ice & Coal Co. on December 1, two Atlantans will assume their new duties as vice presidents of the concern, now the third largest of its kind in the United States, it was announced Friday.

F. G. Gordon, formerly secretary and assistant treasurer, and A. B. Pope, formerly general manager of the Atlanta company, are the two to be promoted. With the consummation of the deal whereby the Virginia corporation becomes a part of the Atlantic company, effective Tuesday, Atlanta will become the headquarters of a $25,000,000 enterprise, which serves the entire southeast.

C. H. Wessman, who served as assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of the Southeastern Ice Utility Corporation, will be transferred to Atlanta in the same capacity for the larger company, it was announced Friday.

Jobless City Residents Pictured By Governor Roosevelt in Worse Condition Than Unemployed Farmers

BY FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT,
Governor of New York.

Gov. Franklin Roosevelt.

I think we are all beginning to realize that some new factor is needed in our economic life as a nation. We are beginning to find that mere drifting is not enough. We are finding that the changing play of economic forces as we know them inevitably leads us to hardships that take the rank of great disasters, which affect all of us and bear most severely on those who have worked faithfully and unquestioningly — people who have depended on the leadership of the powerful to find them continuous work.

We are generally agreed today that things are somehow out of balance. It doesn't need any deep thinking to come to that conclusion. The bald facts are that the natural means or providing plenty of sustenance for all are still abundant. We have the resources of soil and other forms of productivity; we have the knowledge and we have plenty of trained labor. Of most commodities necessary to life and comfortable living we seem even to have a surplus. The producers can't sell all the goods they would like to make, nor can they buy the goods they want to buy.

What is this lack of balance and how is it caused? The question is one that must occupy every thoughtful mind today. It stands as a challenge to our ability to think.

It is a familiar fact to all of us that this nation has changed in a relatively few years from one predominantly agricultural to one predominantly industrial. A century ago 75 per cent of the population lived on farms and 25 per cent in the cities.

Today the figures are almost exactly reversed. There is an explanation, of course. Farm industry has been converted into factory industry.

But any suggestion that the pendulum has swung too far brings a prompt rejoinder. It is pointed out that our farmers now produce more crops than they can sell to advantage, that farmers only a few weeks ago were being compelled to let go of their wheat for less than the actual money they had put into its production, and that the situation was the same with respect to all other crops.

That is true enough, but it is equally true that the same thing could be said for many forms of manufacturing, and it is also true that the carpenter and the stone mason and the structural iron worker and the machinist — all manufacturers in the broad sense—are frequently unable to sell their labor and their skill, which are their only products, for any price at all.

Let us look one fact in the face. I do not want anyone to think that I am picturing American agriculture as being prosperous—the reverse is true. Nevertheless, when we read statistics that 6,000,000 or 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 Americans are out of work do we stop to consider where they are out of work? It is undoubtedly true that the overwhelming majority of these millions of unemployed are living in the cities of the country.

What does unemployment in the city mean? It means that the whole family is not only out of work and out of cash, but is also out of food and is threatened with losing a roof over their heads.

That brings about as serious a picture as we can well imagine—a picture of human misery.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 27.—The local rooting section is cheering hard for Tom Mix and crowding about the radio for the frequent news bulletins of his fight. So far—so good. But the next twenty-four hours will tell more about it.

Fine the way these professionals fight when they have their backs to the wall!

If Marion Davies gets her way, Leslie Howard will be brought back to Hollywood to be her leading man in the forthcoming picture. There's that little matter of a stage engagement, with Leslie Howard cabling to the effect that "thank you" and all the rest, but he is about to rehearse a play by Philip Barry which is ready to go into production.

But Marion Davies has a way of knowing what should be done with her pictures, and she seems convinced that "Polly of the Circus" needs one Leslie Howard. That being the case, it will be interesting to watch the outcome.

Ina Claire had the grandest idea for a "mistake" luncheon. It was to be given for Tallulah Bankhead and every one was to wear the "mistake" of the year—most of the women admitting that their closets housed at least two hats that were monumental errors.

The luncheon was to proceed with everyone admiring everything Tallulah Bankhead wore, and saying piteously: "We're so far from everything out here—is that what they're wearing in New York now?"

But somehow the idea petered out in the morning. Few girls have the courage deliberately to make comics of themselves—even to give their friends a laugh. And Ina alone remained with sufficient courage to go through with it.

Her costume was to be a sealskin coat—once the pride of her mother's life—and a diamond sunburst pin on the bosom of a gown which she admits "was a mistake from the beginning."

If you've been turning "Life Is Just a Bowl of Cherries" on and off the radio and wondering just how long your nerves will hold out—lay the blame at Mrs. Pat Campbell's door. Out here in Hollywood they claim that brilliant lady contributed this phrase to modern life. "May God forgive her! I have a radio."

Edmund Goulding says bachelors do not succeed in life as benedicts do—and since he joins the ranks of benedicts tomorrow, this is an interesting commentary. Marjorie Moss—of Moss & Fontana—is the lady, and Goulding admits his own is the second wedding he will ever have attended in life.

undertaken. The states, she said, have not sufficient taxing power to handle the tremendous task of education and kindred work which they have undertaken. She did not favor actual government control of education and the other social work of states, but said it should contribute largely to funds to be administered by the states.

Miss Elliott also favored regional and national financial advisory boards of experts to correlate government financing. She told the political economists that the annual "balanced budget" was a serious and costly mistake, and that in times of financial depression a normal government deficit should be taken for granted and be carried over for funding in good years.

It was largely for that work that she recommended the financial advisory councils, to be composed of men of sufficient economic knowledge and foresight to plan not by the year but on the basis of business cycles, and to lay up reserves of government funds for bad times as business does.

Interstate Compacts Urged.

In an address Friday night Robert S. Rankin, of Duke University, pointed out the necessity for interstate compacts to regulate the production of cotton, tobacco and oil in the southern states. He said: "The need of regional or sectional co-operation has become more apparent today because, through the development of industry, we have well-defined economic areas larger than any one state and yet peculiar to a certain section. Under present conditions the situation calls for action by congress far beyond the limits set by the supreme court. The solution therefore would seem to be regional co-operation.

"Today the south is faced with a bumper cotton crop of nearly 17,000,000 bales, and with nearly half of last year's crop to be disposed of. Cotton today is hardly worth the picking, and the southern states are grasping at any means offered to raise the price of cotton. The farm board states that it has received 501 proposals of means to stabilize the price of cotton."

The meeting began with a round-table discussion of "Rotten Borough Representation in the South" with C. B. Gosnell, Emory University, presiding. At the same time another discussion of "The Development of Municipal and County Government in the South" was being held in another room.

College Obligation Discussed.

Jessie Dell, member of the United States civil service commission, gave a talk on "The University's Obligation in Training for Life Work" and stressed the fact that of the half million students that enter our colleges each year, only one-third of them graduate. She blamed this partly on the faculties of the colleges for not providing better guidance for the first-year students in selection of courses. She also pointed out the economic, physical and mental reasons for students dropping out of school.

She brought out the fact that "large numbers of recent graduates who enter civil service examinations for professional, technical or scientific purposes fail to make the necessary grade or fall down on their work because the large number of students have not been in tune with the courses they were taking in college and have not absorbed fully the things they were supposed to have been taught." On the other hand many of them do splendid work after they are appointed.

In a discussion of "Financial Problems of Selected Southern States," Professor E. W. Manning, University of Kentucky, said that merger of county units is rapidly gaining favor in the south as a means of reducing state expenditures. Georgia and Tennessee already have taken steps in this direction, he asserted. He praised North Carolina as being the first state in the country to take steps toward county government reform in instituting the county manager system.

FIST FIGHTS BRING PARLEY TO AN END

the Trocadero, while the nationalist meeting of protest was in the Salle Wagram, a large public hall near the Avenue Des Champs Elysees.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot was the first to be howled down when he said, "The spirit must prevail over the brute forces of the world."

"Nonsense," shouted a large group of young men in the center of the audience.

Soon there was an uproar. Police were called and four of the disturbers, alleged to be members of the royalist organization known as "The King's Henchmen," were ejected.

Several fist fights broke out and the tumult became such that the Trocadero meeting had to be suspended.

Mlle. Louise Weiss, who was a member of Premier Laval's party on his recent trip to the United States and who organized the demonstration, also was howled down, as was Joseph Joos, member of the German reichstag.

While brilliant Kleig lights were thrown on the audience, revealing continued fighting, the meeting was temporarily suspended. Then Herr Joos resumed his speech under police protection. His remarks were greeted with cries of "liar," and catcalls.

Former American Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton sat on the platform all this while awaiting his turn to talk.

Viscount Cecil, of Chelwood, famous British statesman, next was greeted with howls which caused Chairman Herriot to exclaim, "Where is the French politeness?"

The veteran English statesman read messages from the Archbishop of Canterbury, David Lloyd George and the British National Women's Council.

"We want to halt war to devote the millions spent for armaments for humanitarian purposes," he said.

Former Premier Painleve was cheered when he said France could not disarm until it had an assurance of security. But a wounded veteran, who attempted to speak immediately afterward, was prevented by a fresh outbreak of fisticuffs as the audience rose and shouted, "Vive la France!"

Mr. Houghton got out only the first sentence of his speech of greeting. "From the millions of Americans united to aid in peaceful solution of international divergencies," when a fight in the orchestra rows below forced him to give up the attempt.

By that time the crowd was quite out of hand and rushed for the platform while two lines of police formed a pathway for Lord Cecil and Mr. Houghton to make their exit.

"I never saw anything like it in my life," said the former American ambassador.

Senator Henry De Jouvenel endeavored to stem the forward rush. Half of the crowd did remain in their seats, but the other half stampeded, jostling the speakers and raising such a hubbub of cheers from the men and cries from weeping women that none could be heard.

Calm was restored only after the crowd had been ushered outside by the police and had sung the "Marseillaise" lustily.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

SILLY SEED IS INTENDED FOR JAYS AND GREAT GAWKS.

Some naturalists contend that the great gawk is extinct, but from the inquiries coming to this column it is quite evident the bird still survives. Then, too, if he is extinct, why do the big nostrum people import so much silly seed to feed to such birds?

"Constipation," says a bulletin sent to the great gawk family by one such nostrum vendor, "is such an insidious disease! It steels upuon us like a thief in the night and saps our strength and impairs our vitality. . . ."

Uh-huh. That probably accounts for the demand for silly seed. Victims of the "insidious disease" become so weakened, especially in the mind, that they would probably steal the canary's seed if some philanthropic mail-order firm advised it.

Seriously, the humor in this is not the plight of the jays and great gawks who get so wrapped up in their little rackets that they allow their powerful intellects to relax a bit from concentration on their bowel function. The funny part of it is that these jays and great gawks really consider themselves quite intelligent.

This glorified imported bird seed is harmless enough in any case, if you're simple enough to pay the price. Compared with its cultivated relative, flaxseed, this expensive silly seed is a crude article and even for medicinal or therapeutic purposes it is inferior to flaxseeds in all respects. This is apt to hurt me more than it will you, but once I swore to Hippokrates to do as much good as I can even if it hurts my business. Real doctors are destroying their own business every day; why shouldn't I?

Better stop here, you folks from Connecticut and Scotland. If you read any further it may cost you a shilling.

In rare instances retardation or failure of the regular evacuation of the bowel is due to disease, and when it is the condition is a serious one which demands the best medical or surgical treatment, and no trifling. In 99 cases out of a hundred, however, constipation is merely a bad habit, and most or all of the unpleasant symptoms the victim feels are due not to the constipation, but to the untoward effects of the nostrums or other artifices habitually employed and to anxiety and introspection. I've told you here time and again how to overcome the habit, but you're so thoroughly misinformed you can't get it. So I've put it all in a little lesson (No. 25) in the ways of health—"The Constipation Habit." Send a stamped envelope bearing your address, and a dime (not stamps) for your copy.

JAPAN LAUNCHES NEW OFFENSIVE

ber of the council, urged that a definite time limit be set for the evacuation of non-treaty points by Japanese troops.

SIX EUROPEANS REPORTED IN TIENTSIN CASUALTIES.

MUKDEN, Nov. 27.—(AP)—An unconfirmed dispatch reaching Mukden tonight said at least six Europeans had been killed in Tientsin during the firing between Chinese marauders and foreign troops in the last two days.

It was reported that every male between the ages of 16 and 45 in the Japanese population of about 30,000 had been called out to assist in repelling the Chinese attacks.

A Japanese expedition, embracing all arms and heavily munitioned, moved southwest from Mukden toward Chinchow today with the avowed purpose of expunging the last traces of the Chinese regime from the map of Manchuria.

(A spokesman for the Japanese war office in Tokyo was quoted in dispatches received about the same time as the above as saying that the Japanese troops had been ordered to halt their advance at the halfway point of Yangkuantiatze and would be returned to Mukden.)

At nightfall the vanguard consisting of at least one armored train filled with troops had stopped at Yangkuantintze, a few miles east of Tahushan and 66 miles from Chinchow, following an encounter with a Chinese armored train from which the occupants fled in disorder.

Japanese headquarters declined to state the expedition's size or destination, but well-informed quarters expected it would drive at least as far as Chinchow, seat of what is left of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's government, in an effort to destroy General Yung Chen's army.

Six trains composed of South Manchurian railway stock moved southwest along the British-mortgaged Peiping-Mukden railway and it was estimated they were carrying at least 10,000 men.

Aircraft, including bombing planes, admittedly played an important role in the day's operations, although the details were withheld. It was understood that the bombers were used to scatter Chinese concentrations which threatened to block the column's advance, but press dispatches that Chinchow was bombed could not be confirmed.

Reports from Japanese correspondents accompanying Major Suzuki, the commanding officer, on the march indicated that the Chinese were dynamiting railway bridges in the path of the advancing expedition.

It has been learned that the entire Japanese command at Tsitsihar, totaling 5,000 men, is moving southward gradually to join the drive on Chinchow, leaving a lone regiment to guard the walled city, which was captured earlier on another front.

JAPANESE TROOPS RETIRE; SHIDEHARA REASSURED

TOKYO, Nov. 28.—(Saturday)—(AP)—A Rengo dispatch from Mukden today said Japanese troops along the Peiping-Mukden railway had withdrawn to Hsinmintun under express orders from the Japanese government.

"The situation at Chinchow is more reassuring than at any time during the last few days," said Baron Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, upon being informed that Secretary of State Simpson at Washington was apprehensive over the situation in Manchuria.

CHINA WILL DEFEND MANCHURIAN CAPITAL

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, Nov. 27. (AP)—China will defend its last military hold on southern Manchuria to the last but will not take the offensive against the Japanese, General Yung Chen told the Associated Press in an interview today.

"Marshal Chang's orders are to resist any Japanese offensive against Chinchow," said the commander of all the Chinese troops outside the great wall, "but he will make no offensive movement in the direction of Mukden.

"We merely hope to hold this corner of Manchuria until a turn of events—possibly through the influence of the League of Nations or the United States—enables the rightful rulers of Manchuria to return to Mukden."

There were only 20,000 to 30,000 Chinese soldiers outside the great wall, according to General Yung, and no reinforcements had been sent since the conflict began.

The only foreign flags visible in Chinchow were six tri-colors over the French Catholic mission, unmistakably asking Japanese air pilots to avoid it.

CHINESE MARAUDERS CONTINUE BOMBARDMENT

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Chinese marauders, using trench mortars, machine guns and rifles, continued for the second day their bombardment on the Japanese concession in Tientsin, Japanese dispatches said today.

An armored train carrying six field guns was removed from the native city to the east railway station, which borders on the foreign concessions and is located within 200 yards of the Japanese positions, it was reported.

CHINESE REPRESENTATIVES SEEK EVACUATION

BY P. L. LIPSEY JR.
(Copyright, 1931, by The Associated Press.)

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Definite approval of the League of Nations council proposal for an inquiry in the far east was withheld tonight while Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese member, continued his efforts to insert a provision for Japanese evacuation within a specified time.

The council's committee appointed to put the proposal into definite form went over it again in the afternoon considering further amendments before submitting it again to the Chinese delegation.

WASHINGTON GLOOMY OVER EARLY PEACE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Hope that Japan intends to restore the captured province of Manchuria to Chinese sovereignty without long negotiations diminished rapidly in Washington tonight as the Japanese invaders launched a new thrust at Chinchow.

The southward march of the Japanese legions violates directly an unqualified assurance given the American government by Tokyo only three days ago. Japan is moving on this last remaining Manchurian stronghold fully aware that the development will be regarded here as casting serious doubt on the validity of her repeated pledges against permanent aggression in Manchuria.

A swift American protest is expected to go forward. Its exact form has not been determined and the action taken may be agreed upon beforehand in conferences with the League of Nations.

Withdrawal of diplomatic representatives from Tokyo has been suggested.

Whatever steps are decided upon probably will be taken under the nine-power treaty, in which Japan specifically agreed to respect the integrity of China.

Secretary Stimson revealed that only three days ago both the civil and military authorities of Japan assured the United States in the most direct terms that no advance on Chinchow was contemplated. The assurance was in reply to an American inquiry which expressed deep concern lest such a campaign might be attempted.

The apprehensions of the Washington government tonight rose to a critical pitch of expectancy as a Japanese expedition, heavily equipped, moved toward Chinchow in disregard of American representations and the Japanese pledge. State department dispatches threw no light on the situation.

AIRPORT BUILDING BID IS APPROVED

mandant of the R. O. T. C. units of Atlanta high schools.

Grady Rules Abolished.

4. Abolished council rules and ordinances governing conduct of Grady hospital and authorized the board of trustees of Grady to promulgate such rules as it deems best for the institution with a proviso that all purchases shall continue to be made through the city purchasing department.

5. Elected Mrs. C. L. Maffett and George N. Woods as election managers of the tenth ward, following resignation of George I. Simons from one of the posts. There had been a previous vacancy.

6. Approved payment of $50 to Searcy B. Slack, state highway engineer, for inspecting the Whitehall street viaduct, but the payment failed to gain the sanction of the aldermanic board, the vote being four for and four against.

Fund Held Up.

7. Sanctioned setting up an additional fund of $4,310 to supplement scales to be paid by the Griffin Construction Company, low bidders, on the Candler field administration building, but the measure was held up in the aldermanic board. The Griffin bid for erection of the building was approved.

8. Referred to the police committee of council a request from the aviation committee that policemen be detailed to Candler field to aid in handling the heavy traffic and large crowds.

9. Appointed Mayor James L. Key as one member and authorized him to name a committee of five citizens to negotiate for funds with which to erect a new police station and auditorium.

Bid of $30,352.

Bid of the Griffin Construction Company called for an expenditure of $30,352, exclusive of certain fixtures and additional equipment which must be provided, and the $4,310 was an additional sum to be paid to labor and not to the construction firm, it was pointed out by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, chairman of the aviation committee.

Berman appealed for passage of the bid and also the wage supplement in order that work might begin at once, and despite the fact that the additional fund was held up through notice of Alderman E. A. Gilliam and G. Everett Millican, Berman announced that he had been assured by Carroll Griffin that the company would proceed at once to start actual work.

Millican launched a vicious attack on the supplementary fund, charging the aviation committee with "selling out, just because you had your backs to the wall."

His remark aroused the ire of Alderman Ben T. Huiet, Councilmen James L. Wells, Raymond Curtis and Homer Foster, other members of the aviation group.

Millican Attacks Paper.

When the paper was first presented, Millican attacked it on a point of order, that under council rules it must have the approval of the finance committee. Council adjourned for 10 minutes to give the committee an opportunity to consider it.

The paper came back with five favorable signatures and one against—that of Councilman J. Frank Beck. Millican attacked it because a majority of the 13 members of the committee had not passed on it.

"I say the committee did pass on it," Huiet said, jumping to his feet, his face flushed. "There were eight members present."

"Their names are not on this paper, and a majority of the committee did not pass on it," Millican contended.

"I don't care what you think about it," Huiet said. "Those men had a right to put their names on it or not as they saw fit."

"Headed for Rocks."

Millican told council the city is headed for the rocks, that it will hit hard because of "our own wild splurge."

"This city is now $1,300,000 in debt," he said. "There are $500,000 in unpaid bills now in the city comptroller's office. We cannot meet our pay rolls. We have a bid here which meets every requirement, but we are digging down into the funds of some widow or orphan and taking out another $4,310 to pay fancy prices for labor when people are actually starving. All the money the city gets does not come from bank presidents. This committee appears to have sold out just because its back was to the wall."

Beck opposed the contract, as did others, including Councilmen Claude L. Barnwell and John Owen.

can Cotton Shippers' Association had demanded an investigation of the board's activities in cotton, asserting they had done much harm and very little good.

The present inquiry is regarded as only a preliminary which may decide whether a further and more searching investigation is to be instituted, looking, perhaps, to abolishment of the board or sharp curtailment of its powers.

Much opposition to the board has been expressed in and out of congress, although its defenders also are numerous. Senator Bulkley, democrat, Ohio, returned to the capital today with the demand that the board should be abolished.

Creekmore agreed that an investigation might be a good thing, but thought it should include the American cotton shippers as well as other elements in the ramified cotton situation.

He challenged the statement by the shippers that farmers, businessmen and taxpayers were united in their demands that the board's cotton operations cease.

He said the shippers represented only themselves and added that the recent bankers' agreement to hold 3,100,000 bales off the market until next summer was proof they indorsed the board and the co-operatives which it is aiding.

Admitting that cotton stabilization at present values showed losses, Creekmore said the situation might be different if the board had money enough to "take advantage of the present situation."

In its report to the committee, the board said that only $45,000,000 of the $500,000,000 voted it by congress in 1929 remained uncommitted.

Charges have been made that cotton co-operatives are buying cotton in southern states with money furnished by the board. Creekmore said so far this season only 110,000 bales have been bought from non-members.

"This could hardly be called buying in large quantities," he said, explaining that the cotton was being turned over to 1930-31 co-operative pools "at which time futures purchases to replace sales during 1930-31 are sold."

He said it was for congress and the people to determine what the benefit of cotton stabilization operations had been. He added that in his opinion the board had lessened the shock of "perhaps the greatest world depression."

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLEN

ROBERT QUILLEN

My Dear Louise:

Yesterday I heard you say that some remark made by one of your classmates nearly tickled you to death.

The remark, as you reported it, was only slightly amusing. It may have caused you to laugh, since you are young and laughter requires little inspiration when mere living is a joyous adventure, but I'm quite sure you were not tickled to the point of death.

I don't blame you for the expression. You didn't coin it. You absorbed it, quite unintentionally, from your associates. But the blame will be yours, if you continue to give the thing brain-room, and you will bear the punishment.

Believe me, my dear, the punishment is real. It causes your brain to get rusty in spots for want of use.

Your mind is much like your self.

It never chooses a hard way if it knows an easier one.

When it discovers that a few stock phrases can be used on occasions, it never again troubles itself to think up original and intelligent comment.

Listen carefully and you will discover that those of your acquaintances who depend on stock phrases to express their meaning, if any, invariably are the ones who show the least evidence of intelligence in other particulars. And you will discover, also, that you are most inclined to use such phrases when embarrassment has addled your wits and left your tongue to shift for itself.

Stock phrases are a blessing to the stupid. They enable the dullest to do part of the talking. But since they are the tools of the stupid, people of normal wit can't cultivate their use without descending to the level of stupidity.

If you adopt the other habits of people who never wash, you may expect those habits eventually to convince you that washing is unnecessary.

If you develop the habit of using "Oh, yeah," "perfectly darling," "You tell 'em," and similar substitutes for intelligent speech, your mind will adjust itself to match the dullness of those who can talk in no other way.

It isn't funny to imitate a cripple; and if you do too much of it, you will eventually need a crutch.

Love, DAD.

MACON MAN FOUND DEAD OF SHOT WOUND

Body of James Leroy Brown, 37 Years of Age, Found in Home.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—James Leroy Brown, 37, who operated the Brown Produce Company here for some time and more recently had been a wholesale produce salesman, was found dead of a shot wound in his home Friday morning.

The body was found by a negro servant, lying on the dining room floor, and on the table was a .410-gauge shotgun, little more than a toy, that belonged to Mr. Brown's small son, David. Death was attributed to a shell fired from this gun.

Coroner Martin Thompson ordered an inquest at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Friends of the family said Mr. Brown apparently had been in good health but had seemed despondent lately.

Neighbors said Mr. Brown returned home about 9 a. m. after leaving for work as usual earlier in the morning. He went into the house and they thought he was peparing to make one of his frequent hunting trips, or a trip out of town on business. A short while later the servant arrived, and called in neighbors when she found the body. No one had heard the shot.

Mr. Brown had been connected for some time with the firm of Burney Brothers, wholesale produce dealers. Survivors, in addition to his wife and son, include his mother, Mrs. J. H. Wagner; a sister, Mrs. Jack Mann, and brother, W. R. Brown, postal worker, all of Macon.

BOYD MURDER TRIAL IS BEGUN IN JESUP

JESUP, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The case of Lonnie Boyd, of Odum, Ga., accused of the murder of W. R. Parker on a country road on September 20, 1927, began Friday. The state produced three witnesses who swore that Parker was on the road with his team of two mules and a mowing machine when he was approached by Boyd, from the woods, that Boyd called Parker, who stopped, and Boyd approached Parker and shot him with a single barreled shotgun.

The defense followed with witnesses to prove there had been ill feeling between the men and that Parker had threatened the life of the defendant. The state followed with witnesses who said the defendant had threatened the life of Parker.

Two Negro Girls Loot Jail in Brooks County

QUITMAN, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Charged with pilfering the city jail, two negro girls have been placed in the county jail.

Officers said they were locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct. One of them was released and then friends obtained the release of the other.

But before the second one left, blankets, pillow cases and other movable furnishings of the cell had been tossed out of the window. Officers said the first one stood below and took the furnishings away. They were found at their house later.

VICTIM OF AMNESIA IS FOUND IN MACON

MACON, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Officers Friday night were endeavoring to obtain a clue to the identity of a tall, blond young man who walked into a filling station on the edge of Macon and told the operator, Lee Davis, he did not know where he came from or who he was.

Davis called Bibb county deputies, who took the young man to a hospital here. Doctors said he evidently was a victim of amnesia. They reported they could find no injuries on him.

The man, six feet, two inches tall, with blue eyes, and a heavily-tanned face, said he found himself on a bridge near Macon Friday afternoon, with no indication why he was there. He said he could not remember anything beyond Friday afternoon.

Coming downtown, he said he walked down the main street in the hope someone would recognize him.

The only articles found on him were a pipe and a basketball guide book.

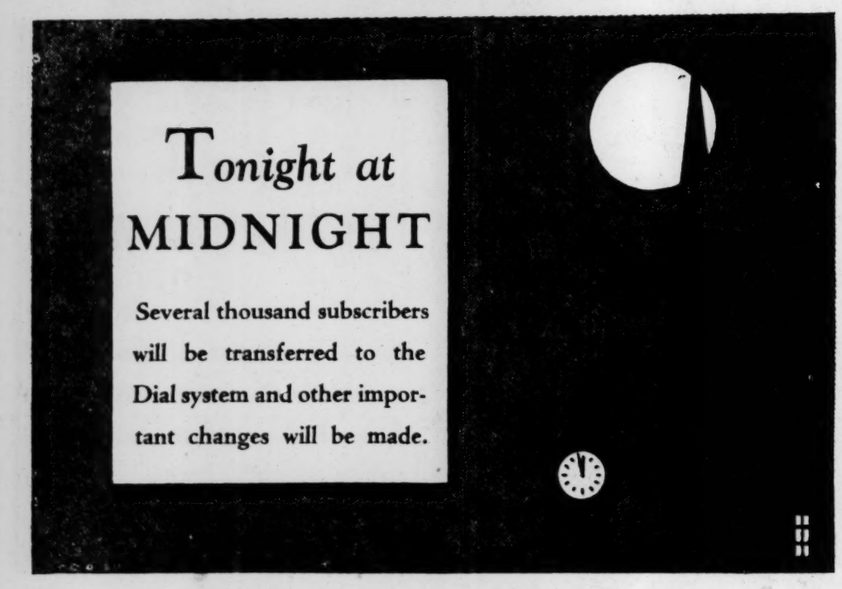

Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harris took the young man to his home for the night.

HARALSON FARMERS HELPED BY BANKERS

Groups Co-Operate To Employ Successful Live-at-Home-Program.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27.—The bankers of Haralson county have co-operated with the farmers of that county to establish a definite farm program that would enable the farmers to live at home and they also co-operated to obtain funds for a county agricultural agent.

When asked in what way the bankers aided the farmers through their co-operation, County Agent R. E. Hughes replied: "The local banker has become indispensable to the extension program since the farmer and his banker have come so close together and realized that one needs the other and that their interests are inseparable.

"The local banker is the 'key man' of any community, because the farmers and businessmen approach him daily for favors in the form of advice and credit. The banker, therefore, with his knowledge and influence directed, can build or tear down prosperity and progress. Dealing with the backbone of the commonwealth, he is naturally looked upon as possessing more foreknowledge than the average citizen. The local banker, in his position, can control a greater variety of characters than any other man in the community.

"The local banker can aid in building the extension program in two ways, by giving and refusing. He may be giving, in his personal contact, circulars, posters, through the local newspapers and through directed credit, have a tremendous influence in the building and carrying out of a sound live-at-home program. The second way is by refusing. He may deny any local credit that will not go to the upbuilding of the community. For example, he can co-operate with the county agricultural board any deny credit to any farmer who uses a one-crop system and will not diversify. He can refuse to finance the purchasing of any inferior live stock, poultry or seed that will be detrimental to the community.

"The local banker, the key man, in his important position which none other can fill, with his knowledge, his influence with directed giving and refusing, can lend more aid in building an agricultural program than any other one man in the community. Indeed, there is no one who can take his place."

Educational Research Bureau Seeks To Classify State 'Norm'

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—The bureau of educational research of the University of Georgia is conducting tests seeking to classify the state "norm," intelligence and achievement average of school pupils.

By means of tests now being conducted throughout the state, the bureau will classify results and establish a state "norm." By means of this it will later be possible to compare results achieved in Georgia schools with those achieved in any other state throughout the nation.

The bureau said that many of the so-called "national 'norms'" are not national at all, but are based upon tests in some particular section of the country where school conditions differ greatly from those in other states.

Under the tests now being conducted, with a separation of rural and city schools, it will be possible to standardize the state "norm," and with the work being done in other states along the same lines, new national "norms" will become more accurate.

EDUCATION FACILITIES FOR NEGROES SCORED

FORT VALLEY, Ga., Nov. 27.—The committee on the state of the country of the Central Georgia conference of the C. M. E. church, in session here Friday, reaffirmed its attitude in favor of "an intense development of rural church houses and the stabilization and contentment of the rural population, the building and beautification of church houses, planting of flowers and trees, arrangements of playgrounds, and the encouragement of pastors in buying small plots of land in rural sections and the settling down and contentment of rural people upon farms."

Further, the committee stated that "we are intensely interested in the erection of Rosenwald schools and longer terms of such schools." In speaking of high schools for negro people, the committee stated. "We shudder when we think of Georgia with a million population of negro people having not a single accredited public high school in cities ranging from 60,000 to nearly 100,000 people, Augusta, Macon and Savannah. As a result of this depression in educational standards for colored people, 600,000 negro citizens have left the state within the past decade. We recommend, therefore, a close study of these facts and consulting conferences with public school officials and patriotic citizens for the purpose of correcting this evil."

In speaking of better housing conditions for rural people, the report states: "The housing conditions of rural people should concern both the church and modern-day civilization. Without better housing and school facilities there can be no appeal sufficiently strong to stabilize the rural population."

As to religious instruction, the committee urged "our church to hold religious leadership training schools in strategic centers and train the young in the Scriptures in such a manner as will build character and bring about such restraintive influence that we may be able to rigidly enforce the 18th amendment."

The document was signed by J. A. Martin, Atlanta; G. H. Carter, J. M. McMath, Macon; B. J. Cofer, Milledgeville, and H. L. Stalworth, Savannah.

TEACHERS UNDERPAID, YALE MAN DECLARES

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The teachers of America's universities met today to consider the size of their salaries, and were informed they were underpaid.

Professors in many universities and colleges were losing their jobs or facing salary cuts, Professor Yandell Henderson, of Yale University, told the American Association of University Professors, because the schools spend all their money on building programs.

The greatest cause of financial distress in educational institutions, the Yale professor said, could be traced to endowments. Large building or costly new departments are brought to many campuses through gifts from individuals and foundations, he said, but no fund is established for upkeep.

BOLTON FARMER OWNS STATE'S CHAMPION COW

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27.—Imported Estella's Girl, a Jersey cow owned by Clark A. Baker, of Bolton, recently completed an official test which makes her the champion cow of all breeds for the production of butterfat in Georgia, reports Professor Frederick W. Bennett, associate animal husbandman of the Georgia State College of Agriculture. Her record is 12,166 pounds of milk, 810.77 pounds of butterfat, beginning at the age of only 2 years and 11 months.

Estella's Girl supersedes Raleigh's Corinne, a senior 3-year-old Jersey, owned by J. R. Humphries, of Acworth. The latter cow has held the state championship since 1920 with a record of 13,895.6 pounds of milk containing 773.61 pounds of butterfat.

The present champion's average daily yield for 365 days was three and seven-eighths gallons of milk and the equivalent of 2.6 pounds of butter. Her highest monthly yield was 1,112 pounds of milk containing 81.18 pounds of butterfat and her lowest, in her third month of lactation, was 1,038 pounds of milk, 57.51 pounds of butterfat. She had previously completed a record of 8,112 pounds of milk, 517.85 pounds of butterfat in 305 days beginning her test at the age of 1 year and 11 months. On this test she qualified for an American Jersey Cattle Club silver medal.

A visit, which the governor described as "non-political" was made at the Roosevelt cottage Friday by Colonel William Fitz, of Birmingham, Ala., who on his last visit said Alabama was strong for Roosevelt and that the state would send an instructed delegation to the democratic convention.

The governor Friday had lunch with Arthur E. Carpenter, resident trustee of the Warm Springs foundation, and Dr. Michael Hoke, newly-appointed surgeon-in-chief. Their discussions dealt with the plans for the foundation in infantile paralysis and orthopedic work.

Dr. Hoke said he would begin his official residence here next Tuesday.

ATLANTAN'S HUSBAND SEIZED FOR FORGERY

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Albert Sylvester Mayhew, who gives Oklahoma City as his place of residence, was arrested here this afternoon on a charge of forgery, and while he is being held in custody his bride of a few days is being cared for at a private home.

After the arrest of the young man it developed that on Monday he was married in Griffin to Miss Ruth Thompson, of Atlanta, and they came to Valdosta where he began working for subscriptions.

The bride at first refused to permit any communication with her mother, but tonight she gave her consent and the mother asked that her daughter be cared for until she could come after her.

78-Year-Old Woman Was Widely Known Throughout North Georgia.

Mrs. Sarah Catherine McHan, 78, of 625 Seminole avenue, died at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at the residence of her grandson, J. B. Richards, of the Richards Printing Company, of 869 Courtney drive. She had been ill about a month.

Mrs. McHan, who had resided here for the past 10 years, was the widow of A. McHan, prominent merchant and hotel owner of Jasper. After his death Mrs. McHan took over the hotel and operated it for many years. She was widely known throughout that section of the state. She was a member of the Jasper Baptist church.

"MERGER ORGY" SEEN AS FACTOR IN DEPRESSION

a return of only about 4 per cent a year.

"The significance of that fact becomes great when we look at the earnings of certain of the great corporations in our country, which earn 5 per cent, 10 per cent, 100 per cent, and in some cases even greater percentages. Whenever we notice a block of capital dipping out of this 4 per cent pool more than 4 per cent some other block of capital must take less than 4 per cent or nothing; because there is only a 4 per cent net production in all our country.

"From that fact it follows that the great stable and certain and well-settled industries of our country ought to operate at the lower percentage. They can afford to do it. But instead of doing that they are dipping out the larger percentages, and that is the cause of the industrial depressions we have.

Right of Government to Control.

"The corporation laws are mostly state laws. The federal government has chartered few corporations except the national banks. Most of them get their charters from the states and then enter interstate commerce, and, of course, interstate commerce is the biggest portion of our commerce.

"About 85 per cent of railroad transportation is interstate. These corporations combine a big volume of capital and then enter interstate commerce without any regulation except the anti-trust law. There is nothing in the federal laws that controls their profits or tells them in any way how much they shall charge the people for the privilege of being corporations created by the law.

"A corporation has no existence but under the law, and I maintain that, since the law creates it, the law has the right to say to it what kind of a life it shall live and what profits it shall charge the people for the privileges of combination that are given to it by the law."

ROBERT AMES, STAR OF FILMS, DIES

have left Hollywood, Cal., yesterday for New York, but found she was unable to do so. Ames telephoned her from the hotel three times yesterday. He and Miss Claire were understood to be considering appearing in a play of only two characters called "Interview," which Tom Van Dyke proposed to produce.

Ames had dinner Wednesday night with Miss Claire's mother, who lives in Port Chester, N. Y. She said he appeared in good health then.

After dinner with his father and Fagin last night, police learned, the trio went to the Grand Central Terminal where the actor's father boarded a train for Hartford, Conn. Fagin said he then asked Ames where he was going and the actor replied: "I'm going back to the hotel. I have a date with one of my former wives."

Ames, Fagin said, did not mention which of his four former wives he meant and police did not know whether the meeting took place.

A telegram sent from Hollywood, found in the actor's room, read:

"Darling. I am necessarily delayed. (Signed) "Ina."

The last of three calls Ames made to Ina Claire in Hollywood was put through at 2:30 a. m. today.

A native of Hartford, Conn., Ames had spent the greater part of recent years on the Pacific coast appearing in films. His first outstanding Broadway success was achieved in 1921 when he played in "Nice People." Later he was cast opposite Francine Larrimore in "Icebound." Owen Davis' Pulitzer prize play. His last important New York engagement was with Alice Brady in "Seed of the Brute."

Divorce dissolved each of Ames' four marriages. Two children, a son, now 22, and a daughter, 19, were born of his marriage to Alice Gerry, of Fall River, Mass., in 1908. Two years after their divorce he was married in 1917 to Frances Goodrich. This marriage was dissolved by divorce in 1923 and Ames was wed to Vivienne Segal, musical comedy prima donna.

About a year after divorce separated the actor and Miss Segall he and Miss Muriel Oakes, New York and Greenwich, Conn., society girl, were married in Waukegan, Ill., in 1927. She obtained a divorce in Los Angeles in 1930.

In his last picture, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," he played opposite Ruth Chatterton.

Among the pictures in which he played leading roles were "Without Money," "Wedding Song," "Three Faces East," "Crown of Lies," "Voice of the City," "Black Waters," "Marianne," "Kelly's Vacation," and "The Trespasser."

AIR VIEWS

•••BY GENE HINTON•••

WITH the virtual assurance that Mayor James L. Key, a real friend of aviation in Atlanta, today will affix his signature to the council measure approving the Griffin Construction Company's bid on the Candler field administration building, it now appears that actual construction, after many delays, can be started within two weeks. Work of moving the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service hangar to its new location will be begun about the middle of next week and the concern will be operating from its future site within six days thereafter, J. H. Gray, manager of the airport, said following council's action Friday. Although the north-and-south runway extension still is far from completed, there is plenty of landing area in front of the new site. With the hangar out of the way, work of excavating the administration building tract will be started immediately, Gray stated, and the structure will be completed and ready for occupancy by the last of February or the first of March. Although many agencies, both civic and official, have helped to push the building proposal to a successful climax, impetus was given the movement by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which made the work its major project for the year.

Incidentally, Airport Manager Gray, in attending the council meeting Friday afternoon was thereby making his first out-of-doors appearance since he was taken quite severely ill about a week ago. Although considerably weakened, he was well repaid for his effort, since he had the satisfaction of seeing and hearing final adjustment of the administration building tangle. Gray contracted a severe cold about a week ago which developed into a bit of pneumonia before responding to treatment. He will return to his duties at the field this morning.

The worst weather in a twelve-month descended on Candler field and the south Friday, with the result that for the first time in many, many months air mail operations in this section were practically at a standstill. At our own airport, only one passenger and two air mail planes arrived or departed during the day and commercial operations and pleasure flying were indulged in not at all. Even Amelia Earhart, whose Autogiro is considerably safer in any kind of weather than the more conventional types, was forced to bow to the zero-zero conditions and cancelled her scheduled demonstration flight Friday afternoon. A. H. Hutchins, who was to have been met in Shreveport early this morning by E. W. Hightower, of the Blevins Aircraft Corporation, and flown to Athens, where he was slated to referee the Tech-Georgia game this afternoon, was forced to see his plans go awry. Heavy fog on the Pacific coast delayed the start of American Airways' eastbound plane to such an extent that he missed all of his train connections.

The smoke pall which settled over the southland a couple of weeks ago and did quite a bit of damage to air mail schedules and what-not was not a circumstance to the deadly combination of smoke and fog and low-hanging clouds and haze which put aviation activities quite out of business Friday. At noon, visibility at Candler field extended from the hangar almost to the center of the airport and later in the afternoon things had closed down even more securely. And the weatherman holds out no prospect of improvement today, although he does say that a clearing-up process will get under way over the weekend.

Speaking of Amelia Earhart, who is winding up here an extensive tour in the Beech-Nut Autogiro, the distinguished aviatrix made a first-class talk before the Exchange Club at the Henry Grady hotel Friday at noon. She made some generalizations on the future of aviation, discussed the flying qualities of the windmill-plane she piloted here and modestly recountered some of her experiences during her flight across the Atlantic in 1928—the first and only transoceanic hop by a woman in a heavier-than-air machine. Miss Earhart expressed the opinion that "selling" the public on aviation as a rapid and economical means of transportation was more important in developing the popularity of flying than the preaching of the "safety" angle. Discussing the Autogiro, the feminine pilot said quite frankly that the unique craft still is in its experimental stages and that its greatest handicap at present is its comparative slowness. But she visioned a great future for it, commercially.

Winship Nunnally, governor for Georgia of the National Aeronautic Association, who shared the program with Miss Earhart (or Mrs. George P. Putnam, as you will), gave an insight into the strides being made to increase the safety in the air by quoting some pertinent statistics. Mr. Nunnally pointed out in the course of his talk that, based on present mortality averages, a person could fly more than 20,000 miles a year in perfect safety and "might get killed" only if he continued his aviation activity until he had attained the ripe old age of 200, or thereabouts. All of which should be highly heartening to those timid souls who think their life is a gamble every time they take their seat in an airplane.

Lieutenant James Willis, of Bolling field, and one of President Hoover's aviation aides, landed at Candler field Thursday on a ferry trip from Washington to Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas. He was flying a Douglas BT-2-B, which he will turn over to the Army's advanced training center at Kelly. About half a dozen of the Douglases have been transferred from Mitchel field, New York, to Kelly, and are being replaced at the metropolitan base by the new Curtiss O-39, which is the last word in observation planes. Powered with a Curtiss Conqueror of 600 horsepower, the O-39 is equipped with motor cowling, wheel "pants" and a cockpit hood and has a top speed of about 175 miles an hour.

Waycross Wouldn't Change.

"Heyward Rivers, president of the Augusta Central Labor Union, and Tom Strickland, secretary of the Carpenters' union at Waycross, state that labor is well pleased with eastern time as it gives one hour more recreation in the afternoon and that they would not have central time if they could get it. It also allows the laboring man one extra hour to work around his home and attend to any personal business he desires before darkness comes on.

"The Associated Master Barbers and Journeymen Barbers' Union in the city of Atlanta have gone on record as favoring eastern time and these two organizations are doing everything possible to impress upon the members of their respective organizations the importance of going to the polls and voting for eastern time on December 2. They are also calling the attention of the public to this matter by placing large placards in the barber shops, thus showing that the barbers are in favor of it, as it will prove of special benefit to them. These placards are also placed in other places of business, urging the people to vote for eastern time on December 2, as shown above.

Laborers for Change.

"Regardless of the action of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, taken at a meeting on Wednesday night, November 25, opposing eastern time, a large number of individual members of the different unions throughout the city of Atlanta are calling at eastern time headquarters, stating that they appreciate the advantages of eastern time and the benefits to be derived therefrom and they are going to the polls and vote for it on December 2 and will urge their friends and constituents to do likewise.

"The Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers have strengthened their former indorsement of eastern time for Atlanta and have printed about 15,000 pamphlets, urging the citizens of Atlanta to vote for eastern time on December 2. These pamphlets are being distributed throughout office buildings in the city of Atlanta and are placed in the elevators so that they will be handy for the public to read. This pamphlet further states: "Set your clock and forget it," and the daily life of Atlanta will have no change except that we will all have one added hour of daylight and within a short time no one will notice the difference but, at the same time, every citizen of Atlanta, rich and poor, will profit by this step and we will be given an extra hour of daylight each day the balance of our lives."

Handicap Cited.

Adding another voice with terse and emphatic argument, John Gilmore, of 857 Durant place, N. E., said:

"Atlanta is situated just about midway between the 75th and the 90th meridian, but practically 90 per cent of our business is with cities that have eastern time, and for this reason we are now 'out of step' with our company. Individuals and concerns doing business with New York and other eastern cities, find this quite a handicap, and this is really the main good reason for the change. The average citizen who has given the matter thought, is indifferent, because it will not make the slightest difference to him. All of this talk about getting up before daylight and going to school by lantern light is foolishness, as anybody knows who has taken the trouble to look into it. Macon, Ga., which is almost due south of Atlanta, has eastern time, and the people have no difficulty about getting up before daylight.

"The question is, what is best for the greatest number of people, and it seems to me the change would be beneficial for the following reasons:

"1. It would help materially in the transaction of business with eastern cities (about 90 per cent of our out-of-town business).

"2. It would give an hour more of daylight in the afternoon for recreation.

"3. To the great mass of the people it would not make the slightest difference, and if the change were made without notice, in the language of the old song, 'More than half the population wouldn't know it had occurred'."

Escorts To Be Named.

Organizations of which Senator Smith was a member and past member planned to have escorts of honor in attendance at the funeral. Martine Harmsen, commander of Camp John B. Gordon, Sons of Confederate Veterans, said that organization would appoint an honorary escort.

William D. Thomson, president of the Atlanta Bar Association, of which former Senator Smith had long been a member, named the following members of the association as an honorary escort: Robert C. Alston, Reuben Arnold, Morris Brandon Sr., Shepard Bryan, John S. Candler, John T. Dennis, Paul S. Etheridge, Sam N. Evins, W. A. Fuller, M. F. Goldstein, John M. Graham, T. A. Hammond, Frank A. Hooper Sr., L. C. Hopkins, William Schley Howard, Marion M. Jackson, John A. Hynds, Robert P. Jones, John D. Little, Walter McElreath, Sanders McDaniel, Daniel MacDougald, Eugene M. Mitchell, Walter T. Colquitt, A. G. Powell, Charles B. Shelton, John M. Slaton, Albert Howell, J. J. Spalding, Henry B. Troutman, John L. Tye Sr., George Westmoreland and Edgar Watkins.

Has Many Survivors.

Besides his wife, who was Miss Maisie Crawford, of Cordele, Senator Smith is survived by four children, Mrs. Ronald Ransom, Mrs. S. D. Grant and Mrs. Callie Smith May, all of Atlanta; one son, Marion Smith, prominent Atlanta attorney; one brother, Burton Smith, of New York; one sister, Mrs. Everett McAshan, of Houston, Texas, and 10 grandchildren, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Lucia Smith, Miss Sarah Smith and Hoke Smith II, Miss Barbara Ransom, Hoke Smith Simpson and Miss Raymur Simpson, Miss Birdie Pratt, Miss Olive Pratt and Hoke Smith May.

Despite illness, which has confined him to a hospital in New York, his brother, Burton Smith, who is aide to the attorney general of that state, will attend the funeral. Mr. Smith telegraphed The Constitution Friday nigh that he would arrive here at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

The Constitution of Friday morning published the physician's bulletin, saying that death was near, and all morning, until his death, scores of friends besieged the editorial offices with telephone calls concerning his condition.

Many Friends, Some Enemies.

He made many friends throughout the country during his life. He also had many enemies, the inevitable penalty characters on the political stage must pay. But his enemies were enemies of opinion and there were few men who doubted the everlasting honesty of Hoke Smith.

Reform characterized his long career. He was known in Washington during his cabinet service as the "trust-busting Georgian." All writers and historians have agreed that among his outstanding qualities were his gifts of honesty and integrity and his abounding capacity for loyalty.

Hoke Smith perhaps came as near as any Georgian in the last half-century to the nomination for the presidency of the United States. His waging of intense campaigns led to his prominent mention in 1911 as the south's candidate for the country's highest office. Early in life he became one of the section's leading lawyers and from 1887 to 1900 he was owner and editor of The Atlanta Journal.

Born September 2, 1855.

He was born September 2, 1855, at Newton, N. C. His father, Professor H. H. Smith, was of a family prominent in the early history of New Hampshire. The professor came south in 1850, for several years was president of Catawba College and later a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina. Young Smith's mother, who before her marriage was Mary Brent Hoke, was a native of Lincolnton, N. C., and member of a family that filled one seat in the Continental congress and gave North Carolina its first chief executive.

In 1883, when 28, he married Miss Birdie Cobb, of Athens, Ga., daughter of General Thomas R. R. Cobb, of the Confederate army, who commanded Cobb's legion and who was killed while repelling the assaults of the federal forces upon the famous stone wall at Fredericksburg.

By his first wife, Mr. Smith had four children. Mrs. Smith died in 1919. In 1924, he married Miss Maisie Crawford, of Cordele, Ga.

Admitted to Bar.

In 1872 Smith began the practice of law in Atlanta and after a year of combining study with teaching, was admitted to the bar. He was then 17 years old. His first adventure into the field of politics was at the age of 20, when he became chairman of the democratic executive committee in his county.

Family characteristics of self-reliance, acquisition of knowledge and love of country dominated his life. His interest in law broadened to include activity in educational matters, and he became president of the board of education of Atlanta.

His interest in public affairs led him in 1887 to purchase the Atlanta Journal and he became president and editor. He continued in the practice of law and in the same year gained recognition for successfully representing the state in the prosecution of convict lessees. A year later he projected the Journal into a fight that contributed toward seating him in a president's cabinet.

Smith was for tariff reform and his beliefs led him to support Grover Cleveland in 1888, through his newspaper and his position as president of the state convention. Four years later, Cleveland was bitterly antagonized in Georgia by advocates of the nomination of David B. Hill. The Journal supported Cleveland with such intensity and success that a Cleveland delegation went to the national convention. Hoke Smith was a delegate. A year later he became secretary of the interior.

Opposed to Bryan.

His record as a cabinet officer included one incident that later was to be remembered enthusiastically by those who desired that he make the race for governor of his state. He alone of the cabinet stood for the retaining by the United States government of the ownership of the Union Pacific railroad and its operation in the interest of lower freight rates between the two oceans. The railroads later furnished him a battleground for one of the most interesting contests of his career.

In the campaign of 1896, Smith was opposed to William J. Bryan and engaged in a series of joint debates with Charles D. Crisp, then speaker of the house. When Bryan was nominated Smith resigned from the cabinet, upon learning that President Cleveland and other members of the official family would not support the democratic nominee. Although opposed to Bryan in the primaries he regarded it as his duty to his party to support its nominee.

A large law practice engaged him when he returned to Atlanta. In 1900 he sold the Journal to James R. Gray and for the next five years devoted himself solely to his profession. In 1906 the call of politics again drew him from the law.

Alleged discrimination by the railroads against Georgia cities and towns brought Smith into the race for governor as a candidate of the opposing forces.

Sweeping Victory.

Of the 145 counties he carried 122, the 23 others being divided among four other candidates. Of a popular vote of 170,000 Smith received 110,000.

The new administration was scarcely three months old when the panic of 1907 swept over the country and although Georgia suffered slightly in comparison with some sections, the future was not painted in golden colors. The railroad question then precipitated a disagreement that ended in a row.

Joseph M. Brown was the only one of three railroad commissioners to vote against the reduction of intrastate passenger rates, a piece of legislation dear to Governor Smith. As a result, the governor removed Brown.

In the spring of 1908, Governor Smith became a candidate for a second term. Joseph M. Brown, the discharged commissioner, was the opposing candidate.

With a slogan, "Brown and Bread," the opposition carried on a determined campaign and at the primary in June, 1908, Brown was nominated, receiving in round numbers 109,000 votes to Smith's 99,000.

Convict Reform.

The state dates the present system of disposing of the labor of convicts from the last year of Governor Smith's first term. After a series of revelations of abuses under the lease system, Governor Smith gave notice he would veto any bill renewing the convict lease, and finally called an extra session of the legislature to end it. This was successfully accomplished and 5,000 convicts were put to work on the public roads of the state.

The law held Smith's attention for only a few months. Toward the close of Governor Brown's term, he incorporated in one of his messages to the legislature an attack on the policies of his predecessor. Smith accepted the challenge, described his cause as that of the "progressive democracy," and made a whirlwind campaign of the state. At the primary, he was nominated by a popular vote of 97,000 to 93,000. The convention vote, on the county unit plan, gave him a majority of a hundred.

His inauguration took place July 1, 1911. Twelve days later the legislature elected him to the senate by an overwhelming majority to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Senator A. S. Clay, who still had four years to service. He continued as governor until congress met in December.

Washington remembered him as the member of President Cleveland's cabinet; it formed the acquaintance during his first term as senator of a man the newspapers called the "trust-busting ex-governor."

Again in Senate.

In 1915, he was re-elected to the senate. The League of Nations fight in the senate found him at difference with President Wilson. Senator Smith's opposition to the policies of President Wilson carried him so far that his name was offered in the presidential primaries in his state. He lost the fight and when he offered a year later for re-election to the senate, was defeated.

His term expired, he took up the practice of law in Washington. He was employed by the government of Peru in 1923 to represent it in litigation involving that country with Chile, work which kept him in Washington much of the time. Wade Ellis, of Washington, was associate counsel in the litigation.

In 1924 he removed to Atlanta, abandoning his private practice in Washington. As counsel for the Peruvian government, however, his interest demanded that much of his time be spent in the capital city.

Following his return to Atlanta he resumed his law practice but not with the zeal he had shown in his earlier days. The hand of time and the toll exacted through his years of tremendous activity had brought him a desire for a less strenuous life. However, he could never separate himself entirely from the legal profession and until a few months ago he was often called upon to lend his judicial mind to the problems of his friends.

Hoke Smith was a man of intensive social and business activity and to his energy Atlanta and Georgia owe much for development. He was the last surviving charter member of the Capital City Club which he helped to organize. He was also a member of the Piedmont Driving Club, a Mason and Shriner.

Many blocks in downtown Atlanta show buildings and business concerns which he aided in building and organizing. He and associates erected the Piedmont hotel in 1903 and at the time of his death he was a director in the company. He and associates also organized the Fulton National Bank. His love of development took him into real estate circles and he acquired much acreage in the now fast growing residential section of Howell Mill road. He owns much property there and elsewhere and is known as one of Atlanta's wealthy men.

These back pictures are available at the office of The Constitution or by mail. Mail orders for the pictures should be accompanied by 2 cents extra for postage.

CHANGES IN SYSTEM ASKED BY SIMMONS

Steps to eliminate confusion over a special account of money paid into court were taken Friday by J. W. Simmons, clerk of Fulton superior court, when he requested the judges of superior court to ask the county auditors to devise a new system which will replace the present method and aid the clerk to avoid errors. The judges may take up the matter at their usual conference today.

In a special audit filed with the county commission several days ago the auditors recommended that the account be kept on a business basis. Simmons said that the audit was made while he was ill at home, and that returned checks and subsequent deposits did not show in the audit because of the obsolete method followed. He has requested that the judges have a new audit made up to December 1, which, he said, would show that the account balances except for a possible shortage of a few dollars caused by bookkeeping errors.

Davison-Paxon To Receive Santa Claus This Morning

This morning out of the blue to the northward of Atlanta will zoom a trimotored silver airplane, bearing to Atlanta her most distinguished guest of the entire year—Santa Claus.

The patron saint of childhood will come soaring over Atlanta and will land at Candler field at 9:15 o'clock. From the municipal airport, his route will lead to the Davison-Paxon Company, where he will take up his headquarters until Christmas.

Near the downtown section a big parade, consisting of musical trucks, cars and trucks laden with banners, welcoming Santa, and a specially chartered bus of the Georgia Power Company, laden to the gunwales with happy children, will form in order to escort Santa to the toy department of the big Peachtree street department store.

Santa Claus comes to Atlanta and Davison-Paxon's this year with a bag full of brand-new tricks. For the first time in history of Atlanta he will come by airplane, leaving his reindeer far to the north and taking advantage of the most modern means of transportation. In addition, he will also make use of another innovation of science—the radio. Every night, except Sundays, from now until Christmas Santa Claus will be heard in a program over station WSB, beginning at 5:30 o'clock. All the kiddies in Atlanta are urged to listen in on Santa Claus and his orchestra of elves, his singing dolls, his special autogiro, and all the fancy tricks of amusement that the old gentleman will provide.

The parade in honor of Santa Claus this morning will proceed from Whitehall and Forsyth streets, up Whitehall to Peachtree, up Peachtree to Ellis, down Ellis to Ivy, one block to Cain, and thence, back to Peachtree, disbanding in front of the Davidson-Paxon Company at 10 o'clock. At this time, Santa Claus will be formally seated on his royal throne, on the second floor toyland of the Davison-Paxon Company. From this throne he will hold reign daily until Christmas, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., and all Atlanta childhood is cordially invited by old Santa himself to come in and visit with him.

Santa will be surrounded in the Davison-Paxon Company's toy department by a gay and fascinating whirl of bright new toys for Christmas, 1931. Officials of the Peachtree street department store announced that this Christmas' stock of toys is the most complete ever offered the Atlanta public, and hundreds of novel and instructive ideas have been incorporated in this season's toys and playthings for boys and girls of all ages.

"Tell all the little boys and girls in Atlanta that I will arrive at the store promptly at 10 o'clock next Saturday morning." Santa Claus has wired the officials of the Davison-Paxon Company. "Tell them all to be sure and be on time to meet me and we will all have a big time together."

A special airplane carrier, for letters addressed to Santa Claus, from Atlanta youngsters, has been arranged on the street floor of the Davison-Paxon Company, which is now a gleaming colorful presentation of the glory of Christmas. The elevators have been camouflaged to look like a row of big chimneys with stockings hung, ready for Santa Claus' visit. Christmas trees, bright holly wreaths and illuminated panels, depicting the journey of the Wise Men, features the display. The grand climax is a gigantic panel, extending the entire length of the store, which shows the North Pole home of Santa Claus, the Eskimo igloo, the frozen seas of the northland, and the multi-colored midnight sun of the Klondike. The entire display has caused widespread favorable comment, and all Atlanta is invited to come in and see it.

DANIEL B. CANDLER DIES IN DALLAS, TEX.

Relative of Atlanta Family Formerly Was Coca-Cola Official.

Daniel Belville Candler, 67, former vice president of the Coca-Cola Company, died Friday at his home in Dallas, Texas. He was a former resident of Atlanta and was connected with the Candler family here.

He was the son of the late E. S. Candler, brother of Judge John S. Candler, Bishop Warren Candler, of Atlanta, and the late Asa Candler. He was southwestern manager of the Coca-Cola Company for 40 years, and had resided in Dallas for the past 37 years, retiring from active business in 1928. He resided here for 20 years prior to moving to Dallas.

Surviving Mr. Candler, besides his Atlanta relatives, are two sons, Patrick Henry Candler, a lawyer in Dallas, and Lieutenant E. S. Candler IV, of the United States navy; two daughters who reside in Texas, and one brother, E. S. Candler III, former congressman from the first district of Mississippi. Funeral services will be held in Dallas.

Four Dial Exchanges Will Open Tonight

Dial telephone service will be inaugurated by four local telephone exchanges at midnight tonight. More than 12,000 telephones will be added to the dial system and the change will be made simultaneously at the Cherokee, Calhoun, Raymond and Vernon offices.

Construction of the four new buildings and the installation of the dial equipment required more than a year. The change will be made simultaneously in all offices without interfering with the service. A new directory containing all changes and new numbers has been delivered for use after midnight tonight.

ALL 'BRIGHT LIGHTS' FOR HOLIDAY URGED

Plans for return of Atlanta's complete whiteway system for the Christmas holiday season were being considered Friday at the city hall.

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of the finance committee of council, announced he would offer a measure at the December 7 meeting of council to turn on all of them in the important business centers unless some plan is evolved between now and that date by which the city can obtain the current without cost.

A move to ask the Georgia Power Company to donate the current through the holiday season was under discussion in city hall circles, and it is probable that official action will be taken within the next few days with that in view.

Murphy pointed out that merchants, newspapers and others are doing everything that can be done to make Christmas a bright and enjoyable occasion. About 50 per cent of the whiteway lights were turned off several months ago in a retrenchment move by the city government.

Increased advertising was used by 29 of these; 19 maintained advertising schedules; 5 reported "extensive" advertising; 5 "aggressive" advertising; 4 "careful" advertising; 4 "reduced" advertising, and 14 reported "other methods" of advertising.

Increased sales efforts helped 37, four increased their sales forces and five sustained previous sales efforts.

"I'll stand by it!"

"I'll stand by tobacco... in good times, in hard times... all kind of times... it helps a whole lot!

"I GREW up with tobacco. Mostly I smoke cigarettes now—but I've smoked plenty of cigars, and pipes, too. And I never got anything but good from tobacco in any form—pipe, cigar, or cigarette—and that goes for every smoker I ever heard about.

"Why, I remember as a boy, way back, how the old folks in the fall used to pick and cure tobacco from a little patch they'd raised, and save out the best for their own smoking. And my father fought all through the war, and lived to be ninety.

"He'd certainly appreciate what we get today, though. Just think about these CHESTERFIELDS of mine—fine tobaccos from all over the world, and cured and blended just so; you couldn't get anything purer, or milder. Cleanest factories you ever saw, too—never a hand touching the cigarettes... everything up to date.

"A big improvement over the old ways... reckon that's why I like CHESTERFIELDS so much. I notice most of my friends get a lot of pleasure out of them, too.*

"But what I started out to say was, you can always depend on tobacco, no matter how things are going. Probably there was never anything in the world that meant so much to so many people, and cost so little, as tobacco—whatever way they smoke it.

"Yes, sir—I'll stand up for tobacco as long as I can strike a match!"

*NOTE. In the sections where tobacco grows and where people know tobacco, Chesterfield is usually the largest-selling cigarette.

DETROIT PROFITS BY TIME CHANGE

Michigan City Pleases Bankers, Brokers and Businessmen.

DETROIT, Nov. 27.—After 12 years' experience with eastern standard time, Detroit is well satisfied that it made an advantageous move when it shifted from central standard.

The change was voted by city council September 16, 1919, and went into effect October 26. Detroit, geographically, is on the extreme edge of the eastern standard zone.

One of the most generally noted advantages of Detroit's adoption of eastern, or fast, time was the elimination of the confusion which existed before 1919 between Detroit and Windsor, Ont., just across the Detroit river.

Windsor, many of whose residents worked in Detroit, was on eastern time, and was considering adoption of daylight saving time, which would have made the time difference two hours between the neighboring cities. Finally, the Windsor council agreed to pass up the suggestion for daylight time if Detroit would adopt eastern time, and this was done.

The change also has been beneficial to bankers and brokers with important and numerous dealings with New York Chamber of Commerce officials said bank clearances had increased in Detroit since the change, and that brokers were highly satisfied with the arrangement which put their local stock exchange on the same working hours as that of New York.

Confusion in train schedules, great before 1919, also was eliminated with the change, it was said. Prior to setting the clocks an hour ahead in 1919, trains from the east arrived on eastern standard time and left on central.

Most of the towns and cities near Detroit have followed Detroit in the time change, and even in the western part of the state the switch to eastern time has been made.

FLORIDA DEMOCRATS CHEER ROOSEVELT

MARIANNA, Fla., Nov. 27.—(AP)—In a rousing rally of democracy, Florida party leaders in informal conference here today issued the call for solidarity in the coming campaign and defined the principal issues as economic ones.

United States Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, presiding, sounded the keynote, asserting the work of prime importance before the party is action helpful in improving economic conditions and a full return to the "simple and fundamental principles of government advocated by Jefferson and Jackson."

He was followed by Governor Doyle E. Carlton, who said the country is now "ready to turn to the democratic party as an agency of relief to bring economic conditions to a higher level." Governor Carlton said the tariff was "so high it is impossible for us to trade with the world." He asserted the democrats could remedy the situation.

Congressman R. A. Green, second Florida district, made the only reference by speakers to the 1932 presidential standard-bearer possibilities. He told the conference either United States Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, or Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, would be the next occupant of the White House. Applause greeted the statement.

There was a sprinkling of Roosevelt buttons in the audience, these having been distributed by Roosevelt workers to persons who wished to wear them.

Mayor H. Clay Armstrong, Pensacola, listed the eighteenth amendment, the tariff, the League of Nations and reaffirmation of state's rights as among the most pressing problems the democratic party must consider, "with less looking to Washington for plums, and more response to duties at home."

In referring to the eighteenth amendment, Armstrong declared the "nation finds itself victim of one of the most tragic and pathetic facts that ever confronted any representative government.

"We have written into the law mere police regulation which in those states and communities in which its provisions are repugnant is an obnoxious law enforced by an alien power."

MAIL FLYER KILLED IN FOG-CAUSED CRASH

PASCO, Wash., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A night mail plane from Portland, flown by Pilot E. C. Bigelow, crashed in a fog a mile and a half west of this city late last night and Bigelow was killed. The plane did not burn.

The area was blanketed by fog. Airport officials said Bigelow apparently became confused in attempting to locate the landing field.

BRITISH COTTON MILLS TO END WAGE ACCORD

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Owners of cotton mills decided at a meeting here today to give operatives one month's notice that their existing agreement would be terminated with a view to increasing hours and reducing wages.

A serious conflict between employers and workers in the Lancashire cotton industry was expected as a result of the decision.

On the Air Today

BEGINNING today Trade and Mark, the radio branch of the Smith Brothers family, will be heard each Saturday from 8:30 to 8:45 over a nation-wide hook-up of the Columbia network.

The program, produced by the makers of Smith Brothers Cough Drops and Syrup, one of the first four American firms to sponsor a broadcast, will include a novel feature—music will be heard constantly from the time the broadcast begins until it ends.

The talent will include Billy Hillpot and "Scrappy" Lambert, who will be heard in vocal arrangements of the latest Broadway and Hollywood successes, and Nat Shilkret's orchestra, old favorites in the radio world.

The Clarinet Scholarship Ensemble of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society will be heard throughout the United States, over the Columbia network, when it makes its first public appearance at Carnegie Hall during the concert scheduled to be broadcast from 10 to 10:30 a. m.

This will be the third broadcast in the series for children and young people which are presented under the direction of Ernest Schelling.

The music has been selected to illustrate and explain the place and function of the clarinet and bassoon in ensemble and orchestra. Members of the ensemble are selected by scholarship from the ranks of public school children who show decided talent for musical instruments, but who have no means of obtaining tuition. They are placed under the care of the orchestra's first-desk men, and the clarinet group to be heard in this program has been trained by Simeon Bellison. The average age of the instrumentalists is about 16.

They will be heard in a group of three numbers, illustrating both classical and romantic styles and periods in composition—a minuet of Mozart, a Grieg Norwegian dance, and the Russian dance from Tschaikovsky's ballet, "The Lake of the Swans."

Bellison himself will be heard in Weber's concertino for clarinet solo and orchestra, and Benjamin Kohon will appear as soloist in the andante from the same composer's concerto for bassoon and orchestra.

Children's fears will be analyzed by Harold E. Jones, psychologist, in a 15-minute lecture over an NBC-WEAF network today beginning at 7:30 p. m. Edwin G. Nourse, economist, will discuss agriculture in its relation to economic recovery.

The speakers are presented under the auspices of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, in its weekly half-hour series offered over a nation-wide network.

Nourse is director of the Institute of Economics at Washington, D. C., has taught in various universities and is author of texts and articles on agricultural economics. Jones is an authority on child development on the staff of the Institute of Child Welfare at the University of California.

Hinkler Completes Flight Across Ocean

PARIS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Captain Bert Hinkler, noted British aviator, was safe tonight in French West Africa after completing the first eastward flight across the south Atlantic.

He dropped down at Bathurst, on the African coast, from Natal, Brazil, yesterday to complete a flight of more than 1,500 miles in about 22 hours, said a message to the Aeropostale Company.

Soon afterward he left for Saint Lolis de Senegal, a short distance north of Bathurst, arriving there a little after 2 p. m. today. He planned to go to Port Eitienne, Mauritius, tomorrow.

C., police requesting them to question Francis A. Gudger, retired Sebring, Fla., businessman, who recently married Marjorie Rambeau, screen actress in Yuma, Ariz. District Attorney Tom Whelan said possibly Gudger had a double.

TENNESSEE MOVES TO CURB EXPENSES

Legislative Group Recommends 15 Per Cent Cut by State Leaders.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A 15 per cent reduction in Tennessee's expenditures during the rest of the biennium that ends June 30, 1933, was recommended today by the joint legislative finance committee that is seeking to balance the state budget.

Committee members estimated the saving for the period would approximate $3,300,000.

Committeemen John Riley and J. M. Spencer had proposed a horizontal slash of 15 per cent in the unexpended three-fourths of the 1931 general appropriation bill, but an amendment adopted extended the reduction to include also expenses provided for in special acts and not included in the appropriation bill. The amendment also permits the department heads to decide where the knife is to be applied.

Members of the judiciary, the governor and other elected officials would not come within the provisions of the reduction in so far as their salaries are concerned.

The committee's recommendations will be presented to a second extraordinary session of the legislature, scheduled to begin Monday for the purpose of putting Tennessee on its feet financially.

Because of the work still before the budget-balancing committee, Chairman Hu C. Anderson, was directed to confer with Governor Henry H. Horton with a view to delaying the session until Wednesday.

Unconditional authority to raise taxes and reduce governmental expenses was given Tennessee's legislature tonight by Governor Henry H. Horton in a proclamation calling a second emergency session to convene Monday for the purpose of balancing the state's budget.

The legislature was authorized to increase revenues either by amending existing statutes, creating new sources of income or strengthening the powers of revenue-collecting agencies. It also was given carte blanche to reduce or repeal any appropriation, either by general or special act, made by any legislature.

FOURTEEN ARRESTED FOR DEMONSTRATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A small anti-government demonstration in front of the White House was squelched today as quickly as it materialized.

Policemen, in fact, displayed more zeal than the demonstrators. Many of them had waited four days for the paraders to arrive and they quickly pounced upon and arrested 14 negro and white participants. Only one offered resistance and he not for long.

The demonstration proved a double-barreled affair. While the 14 walked before the White House with banners condemning the government's efforts at unemployment relief and demanding "free food and lodging," four others made an effort to see President Hoover. They were denied admittance to the executive offices.

Discharged Employes Sue Alabama Governor

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Governor B. M. Miller and three state officials were made defendants in suits totaling $75,000 filed in Jefferson circuit court here today by three former employes of the state highway department who charged the officials "wrongfully and maliciously conspired" to discharge them from the state's employ.

The suits were filed by J. Fayette Taylor, Paul Newton and J. A. Hollingsworth, and in addition to the governor, named William F. Feagin, chairman of the state board of administration; L. G. Smith, acting highway director, and J. Houston Morris, of the highway department, as defendants.

GRANDI PRAISES U. S. NEWSPAPERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—To the fairness and spirit of understanding of the American press, Dino Grandi, Italy foreign minister, speaking today at a luncheon given to him by The New York Times, attributed much of the success which he hoped his visit has had in this country.

"I was impressed," Dino Grandi said, "in your country by many things, but I wish to tell you that the most impressive things were not those that appeal in general to European visitors.

"More than by your wealth and power I was impressed by the moral qualities of this country, by the humanity, the loyalty and energy of these builders of the new civilization, not only in the material field but in the spiritual one also."

Grandi thanked especially The New York Times for the "sympathetic help" it had given him during his visit.

"You kindly said that my work here has been successful," he said. "I hope it has really been so. The word success is a dangerous one for a statesman. If I use it, it is because much of the success I owe to the fairness and spirit of understanding of the American press."

Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of The Times, said in part:

"Your excellency, I congratulate you on the success of your mission of good will. You go home with the assurance that you have made a profoundly favorable impression on the American people, and that the relations of Italy and the United States hereafter will run very smoothly and agreeably in an atmosphere of confidence and respect."

Britain May Control Luxury Consumption

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Measures for the curtailment of the British people's indulgence in early grown fruit, vegetable and floral products from abroad are embodied in a government resolution made public today.

The resolution left the country in some uncertainty, however, as to what extent its dining tables might be deprived of luxuries in this class.

The motion provides that duties up to 100 per cent may be levied upon such fresh fruits as cherries, currants, plums and strawberries, and such vegetables as asparagus, green beans, broccoli, cauliflower, cucumbers, lettuce, new potatoes, peas and tomatoes. The imposition of similar duties upon cut flowers, plants in flower, bulbs and rose trees also are authorized. The act's effectiveness would be limited to one year.

Social News of Varied Interest

Mrs. J. D. Rhodes was hostess Wednesday to the New Era Study Club at a luncheon. The lace-covered table was decorated with a silver basket of yellow chrysanthemums and silver candlesticks holding yellow tapers tied with a tulle of blending shade. The decorations of the house carried out a color scheme of yellow and white chrysanthemums with a touch of dogwood berries. The members' donation of well-filled baskets to be given to four needy families expressed the annual Thanksgiving spirit.

The general topic of the club's study for this year is "Contemporary Europe." Mrs. John Heath read a paper on "Poland's German Frontier" and Mrs. George Phillips read a paper on "The Eastern Frontier." The following guests were present: Mesdames S. C. Orr, John Heath, Frank Pike, George Phillips, Robert Pritchett, Pendleton, Garnett Quillian, J. D. Rhodes, L. O. Turner, Eva Hewitt, W. B. Sewell and C. R. Stauffer.

Mrs. John Underwood Jr. entertained yesterday at a bridge-luncheon at her home on Virginia avenue in honor of Miss Nettie McFarland, bride-elect of December. Those invited were Misses Margaret de Medicis, Sarah Bittick, Dorothy Pomeroy, Helen George, Mesdames Bob McFarland, C. O. Livingston, Mildred Smith, Effie Albright, Miss Evelyn Hicks, Miss Nannie Mayes, Mrs. D. H. McFarland, Miss Winifred Orr, Miss Margaret McFarland, Miss Viola White, Mesdames H. T. Wall, Miss Frances Barnwell and Miss Loretta Fancher, of New York city.

An impressive event featured by the Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C., was the ceremony Tuesday afternoon at which Mrs. A. O. Woodward presented to the chapter a life-size oil portrait of General Lee, once the property of Dr. Amos Fox, former superintendent of the Confederate Soldiers' home, who gallantly followed the peerless leader through the war. In appreciation of Mrs. Woodward's efforts to contribute to the comfort and happiness of the veterans, Dr. Fox game the portrait to her. The exercises opened by an invocation by Dr. Herman Lee Turner, of the Covenant Presbyterian church. Mrs. A. McD. Wilson spoke for the Southern Confederate Memorial Association, of which she is president general for life. General J. Colton Lynes, adjutant general on staff of the commander-in-chief, U. C. V., paid tribute to the women of the Confederacy and their "Daughters." Captain H. M. de Jarnette, of Camp Atlanta, 159, U. C. V., eulogized his leader, General Lee, as a Christian gentleman. Mrs. Howard McCall expressed her appreciation of Mrs. Woodward's gift to the chapter.

Martine Harmsen, commander of John B. Gordon Camp, Sons of Veterans, spoke of the preservation of Confederate relics. John Ashley Jones, past commander-in-chief, Sons of Veterans, paid tribute to the Daughters of the Confederacy, and spoke of the special work Mrs. Woodward had accomplished, as the chairman, in raising funds over a period of many years to enable the veterans to attend annual reunions. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller chose for his subject, "Lee, the Man of Conviction." Violin solos by Miss Lucile Bush, accompanied at the piano by Miss Virginia Morris, included "Tenting Tonight" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." In a tribute to the Confederate soldier of which General Lee was the highest type, Mrs. Woodward likened him to the "silver-clothed knight of our dreams, the composite of all the manly qualities, he stands a modern Arthur in faith, a Merlin for wisdom, a Launcelot for daring, a Sir Galahad for purity. The valorous deeds of the Confederate veterans have been to every southerner a glory undimmed for more than half a century, and I count this the greatest privilege of all to pay him homage in word and deed."

Mrs. William J. Poole, first vice president of the chapter and daughter of Mrs. Woodward unveiled the portrait, drawing apart the Confederate flag which covered it. Mrs. Warren D. White, president, received the gift in behalf of the chapter, expressing the earnest desire that as the Daughters looked upon the face of General Lee, they would be inspired to follow the teachings of this beloved Confederate hero and great American. Mesdames James Stanley Moore, James R. Thornton, P. H. Cherry and Max Cherry assisted in entertaining.

Powerful Technic Displayed in Debut By Miss Ardis Colby

When Miss Ardis Colby played before a large group of friends and music lovers Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John M. Slaton, 2962 Peachtree road, her first appearance since her return from two years' study in Germany under the famous master, Breithaupt, she established for herself an enviable reputation as a young artist of the highest caliber. The musicale was the expression of Miss Colby's desire to compliment the sponsors of her foreign study, a group of Atlanta's most prominent women. Miss Colby is a former pupil of Mrs. Mabelle S. Wall.

Playing a program of unlimited demands, technically and artistically, Miss Colby carried her audience with her in enthusiastic praise from the beginning to the end. She plays with a depth of feeling and an understanding that is far beyond her years, yet her entire performance was impassioned with that joyousness of youth that captivates. She possesses a technic that is powerful and fleet, and a tone that is warm and pure.

The opening number, Scarlatti's "Pastorale," was played with exquisite daintiness in strict classic style. This was followed by "Melodie," Gluck-Sgambati, the melody of which vibrated with the soul of the artist. "The Harmonious Blacksmith," variations by Handel, was an outstanding number of the program, executed with extreme clearness and finished phrasing.

The dramatic context of Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata" was remarkably portrayed by this young artist and given an interpretation of deep feeling.

Her poetic aptitude in musical expression was revealed in a group of Chopin preludes, including Nos. 12, 11, 10, 4, 16, 23 and 22, and of the two Chopin etudes, Op. 25, No. 2, and Op. 10, No. 12 (revolutionary). The latter was notable for the tremendous speed and accuracy of the left hand.

A lovely "Romance" of Sibelius, effectively done, preceded the final number, the brilliant "Etude in E Major," Paganini-Liszt, when the artist again proved herself to have the ability, the fire and brilliancy, and the technique for an unlimited future in her chosen career.

After the musicale the guests enjoyed a delightful social tea in Mrs. Slaton's charming and spacious home.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

We were speaking of sad incidents that we had witnessed and the doctor in the party contributed this one. "I had a friend who was divorced from his wife, in wretched health, and in consequence had to give up his practice.

I said to him one day, 'C, I wat you to use my office just as you would use your own. The stenographer will take your dictation any time you have any letters. Here's the key and help yourself.' One night about 11 o'clock I had to go by the office for some dressings and as I entered the pitch black room, I was conscious of a presence.

"'Who is that?' I called. A hoarse voice replied, 'I am glad you've come. I want to talk to you but before I talk to you I want you to see these movie reels of my children.' It was C. sitting in that dark, lonely office running off reels of moving pictures of his children. I sat down and looked with him. First they appeared in their baby carts, then on their bicycles, then playing tennis on the spacious lawns of their home, and, finally, embarking for a European holiday. He frequently interrupted the progress of the picture to comment on some trait that amused him and one that he thought an inheritance from himself. Once he called attention to a gesture which he thought was like his. When the reels were exhausted he settled himself for a talk. There is something very solemn in midnight conversation with a man who has received his death sentence. He was not emotional. In a steady voice he began: 'The specialist has told me that I have a cancer of the throat and I can't expect anything but death. I wrote to my wife (divorced, remember), and told her that I had only a few months to live and that I wanted a visit from the children. It would be the last favor I would ask of her. I explained that I was not up and around much and that the children could have a pleasant visit to the city, spending only a few hours a day with me. But she turned me down flat. She said she thought it would be terribly depressing to them to see their father in such a bad condition and she didn't want to do anything to make them morbid, so instead of sending them to me she was shipping them off to Europe for a holiday. The last pictures you saw were the ones taken at the boat. She was good enough to send them to me.'" The doctor confessed that he felt like he (rather than the narrator), had the cancer of the throat, so taught were his muscles. And he added that he was vastly relieved when C. said to him, "If you don't mind, I am going to stay and run my pictures once more before I go home. I might not get back soon."

The sequel was that the poor fellow died in a few months, still caressing the mental pictures of his children from whom he was divorced. We all agreed the doctor's story was the best. We signed and sealed our votes with tears.

What does that story mean to you, reader? It means this to me: That if there is brutality in a man's or a woman's nature, divorce throws it in bold relief against the curtain of life and death. It means this to me: That no man and no woman, however wronged he or she may be, has the moral right to cheat children of their birthright. It means this to me: That nobody can ever be happy again in this life after having inflicted such torture on another soul. It means this to me: That, if there is any way to avoid it, divorce should be avoided.

We are all, in this life, caught in some trap. It may be a marriage trap. It may be a financial trap. It may be a physical trap, or a spiritual one, but we are all caught. Why should the marriage trap be so much worse than others? All marriage problems reduced to their lowest common denominator read this way: Will you go? Will you cut loose? Will you stay? Will you stick?

Culbertson on Contract

A Plan and the Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of making a definite plan by which you hope to make your contract the moment the bidding has ended, the first lead has been made and the Dummy spread upon the table.

Quite frequently the thoughtless play to the first trick has prevented the making of a contract. The expert player always has a plan in his mind. Once made, he adheres to it unless the play discloses that he must make new disposition of his forces if he is to accomplish the desired end.

There is nothing more annoying to a partner and nothing better calculated to cause frayed nerves and thus result in squabbles at the Bridge table than purposeless play.

I cannot too strongly advise that anyone wishing to become proficient in the play of Contract, prepare his plan—a bad plan is better than none—but practice in the making of plans will soon result in an increasing number of perfect ones.

Today's hand:
South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A 6 3 ♡ K 10 9 5 3 ◇ 9 5 4 ♣ A 5
♠ 10 2 ♡ Q 2 ◇ K Q 10 8 ♣ K Q J 4 2	N W E S	♠ Q 8 5 ♡ J 7 6 4 ◇ 6 2 ♣ 8 7 6 3
	♠ K J 9 7 4 ♡ A 8 ◇ A J 7 3 ♣ 10 9

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♣	2♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was the King of clubs, and South proceeded to count his losers. It was apparent that he must lose a trick in the club suit. He might lose a trick in trumps, depending on the distribution of the suit and whether the finesse won or lost. He might lose two and possibly three diamonds. His best chance for game lay in the establishment of the heart suit but it would be useless to establish it and then have no card in the Dummy with which to re-enter it and use the hearts to discard losers. This plan indicated that entries in the Dummy were a prime essential to the success of the Declarer's campaign. There was no purpose in refusing to win the first club lead so the Ace was played, a small spade led from Dummy and when the spade finesse held, South varied the usual procedure and laid down the King of spades.

Both East and West followed but South did not continue the trumps in order to pick up East's Queen. The Ace of trumps was to play a much more important role than that. South now led the Ace of hearts and continued with the 8 of hearts, which was won with Dummy's King. The heart Ten was then led from Dummy and East played the Knave. Had he refused to cover, South would have discarded a club as his game would have been certain in any event.

South now trumped the heart and led a spade to the Ace in the Dummy hand, using the established hearts to discard two of his losers, thereby making not only his contract but an extra trick as well. South had formed a sound plan and had carried it out successfully.

RUNTY HAS A SURPRISE LESSON.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

That day is lost wherein no gain
—Old Mother Nature.

Clinging with all four feet and his funny little tail to the tree which he had climbed, Runty, the smallest of the 12 little Possoms, looked down at his father, Unc' Billy Possum, as he lay on the ground apparently dead. Flip the Terrier had caught Unc' Billy and right before Runty's terrified eyes had shaken him to death. Anyway, he thought he had and Runty thought he had. Do you wonder that Runty was as badly frightened a small Possom as ever was?

Suddenly he stopped crying. He stared long and hard at Unc' Billy. He let go of the tree with one hand and rubbed his eyes. Then he looked again. He was sure, absolutely sure, that Unc' Billy's eyes had been closed all the time, and now one of them was open. What was more, one of Unc' Billy's ears had twitched. Yes, sir, that ear certainly had twitched. Then Unc' Billy's mouth closed and his lips drew back over his teeth. Runty's eyes looked as if they might pop right out of his head.

Slowly, very slowly and cautiously Unc' Billy raised his head and looked all around. Then he scrambled to his feet, shook himself and looked up at Runty and grinned. "Ah reckon it is safe fo' yo' to come down now," said he.

"Ah done fool that Dog," said he, "Did you see me?"

"Ah saw him kill yo'," replied Runty. "Anyway, Ah thought Ah did."

Unc' Billy chuckled. "So Ah fooled yo' as well as the Dog," said he. "Yo' have had one of the most impo'tant lessons a Possum can learn."

Runty looked the surprise he felt. "What lesson?" he demanded.

Again Unc' Billy grinned. "The lesson of using wits," said he promptly. "Ah didn't have a chance to run, did Ah?"

"No," replied Runty.

"Ah didn't have a chance to climb a tree, did Ah?" demanded Unc' Billy.

"No," replied Runty.

"Ah couldn't fight because that Dog was too big and strong fo' me," Unc' Billy continued. "So Ah just fooled him. Ah made him think Ah was daid. That's an old trick of the Possum family. Ah done saved mah life many times that way. Yo' mammy done saved her life the same way mo' times than she can remember. When there is no chance fo' yo' to run or climb or hide, just pretend that yo' are daid, and stay that way until yo' are sure the danger is over."

"Didn't that Dog hurt yo' when he shook you?" Runty wanted to know.

"It wasn't just comfortable," grinned Unc' Billy, "but what does that amount to when it is a matter of saving yo' life? Just nothin' at all."

PAUL EWING'S ESTATE OF $176,500 SETTLED

The $176,500 estate of Paul Ewing, jeweler, who was killed last spring in an automobile accident, Friday was settled in Fulton superior court when Judge E. D. Thomas signed an order giving court sanction to terms agreed upon.

Under the settlement, Mrs. C. J. Ewing, his mother, will receive $60 a month; L. E. Ewing, a brother, $1,000 in cash and 50 shares of stock in the Ewing Brothers Jewelry Company; A. L. Callaway, a relative, $2,000 in cash and 40 shares of stock; Thelma Carter, $500 and 30 shares, and Ashley Carter, $500 and 30 shares. Miss Carter is a niece and Mr. Carter a nephew of Mr. Ewing.

The residue of the estate is to be entrusted to the Trust Company of Georgia for the payment of an income to Mrs. Lucy Ewing, the widow, and Miss Dorothy Ewing, the daughter. The settlement was made when it was found that if Mr. Ewing's last will was carried out his widow would receive approximately $500 a year, the court agreeing that this was not the intention of the testator, who did not see such a situation when he made the last will.

Mrs. Ewing was represented by Hugh Howell, of Howell, Heyman & Bolding, and Henry Troutman, of Colquitt, Parker, Troutman & Arkwright, and other heirs by William Grant.

The will was probated in DeKalb county, and Mrs. Ewing received the DeKalb county home as a year's support. The court action which resulted in the settlement was brought in Fulton county because of the residence here of the trust company.

Unequal Division Of Wealth in U. S. Hit by Blanshard

With the average wage in the United States under $25 per week—and in southern cotton mills between $12 and $13 per week—511 people are drawing salaries in excess of a million dollars each per year, Paul Blanshard, lecturer for the League of Industrial Democracy, told Emory College students Friday.

Blanshard attacked as the "three great human failures," the distribution of wealth and of work and the system of control. He sketched the Russian contrast, about which he expects to lecture more fully while here.

Touching upon prejudices and passions, Blanshard said that, although a board of inquiry attributed it to an external explosion, the world still doesn't know what sunk the Maine. It does know the United States went to war about it though, he said.

"Racketeering, High and Low," will be Blanshard's subject at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when he addresses the Atlanta Forum Association at the Central Congregational church. Mrs. Mary Raoul Millis will preside.

Powerful Technic Displayed in Debut By Miss Ardis Colby

When Miss Ardis Colby played before a large group of friends and music lovers Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John M. Slaton, 2962 Peachtree road, her first appearance since her return from two years' study in Germany under the famous master, Breithaupt, she established for herself an enviable reputation as a young artist of the highest caliber. The musicale was the expression of Miss Colby's desire to compliment the sponsors of her foreign study, a group of Atlanta's most prominent women. Miss Colby is a former pupil of Mrs. Mabelle S. Wall.

Playing a program of unlimited demands, technically and artistically, Miss Colby carried her audience with her in enthusiastic praise from the beginning to the end. She plays with a depth of feeling and an understanding that is far beyond her years, yet her entire performance was impassioned with that joyousness of youth that captivates. She possesses a technic that is powerful and fleet, and a tone that is warm and pure.

The opening number, Scarlatti's "Pastorale," was played with exquisite daintiness in strict classic style. This was followed by "Melodie," Gluck-Sgambati, the melody of which vibrated with the soul of the artist. "The Harmonious Blacksmith," variations by Handel, was an outstanding number of the program, executed with extreme clearness and finished phrasing.

The dramatic context of Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata" was remarkably portrayed by this young artist and given an interpretation of deep feeling.

Her poetic aptitude in musical expression was revealed in a group of Chopin preludes, including Nos. 12, 11, 10, 4, 16, 23 and 22, and of the two Chopin etudes, Op. 25, No. 2, and Op. 10, No. 12 (revolutionary). The latter was notable for the tremendous speed and accuracy of the left hand.

A lovely "Romance" of Sibelius, effectively done, preceded the final number, the brilliant "Etude in E Major," Paganini-Liszt, when the artist again proved herself to have the ability, the fire and brilliancy, and the technique for an unlimited future in her chosen career.

After the musicale the guests enjoyed a delightful social tea in Mrs. Slaton's charming and spacious home.

The boy was carried to the hospital by J. R. Purvis, 398 Cooper street, and A. J. Kelly, of 336 Ashby street, who were passing by in an automobile. Kimball's case will be heard at 8:30 o'clock December 2, it was said.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

We were speaking of sad incidents that we had witnessed and the doctor in the party contributed this one. "I had a friend who was divorced from his wife, in wretched health, and in consequence had to give up his practice.

I said to him one day, 'C, I wat you to use my office just as you would use your own. The stenographer will take your dictation any time you have any letters. Here's the key and help yourself.' One night about 11 o'clock I had to go by the office for some dressings and as I entered the pitch black room, I was conscious of a presence.

"'Who is that?' I called. A hoarse voice replied, 'I am glad you've come. I want to talk to you but before I talk to you I want you to see these movie reels of my children.' It was C. sitting in that dark, lonely office running off reels of moving pictures of his children. I sat down and looked with him. First they appeared in their baby carts, then on their bicycles, then playing tennis on the spacious lawns of their home, and, finally, embarking for a European holiday. He frequently interrupted the progress of the picture to comment on some trait that amused him and one that he thought an inheritance from himself. Once he called attention to a gesture which he thought was like his. When the reels were exhausted he settled himself for a talk. There is something very solemn in midnight conversation with a man who has received his death sentence. He was not emotional. In a steady voice he began: 'The specialist has told me that I have a cancer of the throat and I can't expect anything but death. I wrote to my wife (divorced, remember), and told her that I had only a few months to live and that I wanted a visit from the children. It would be the last favor I would ask of her. I explained that I was not up and around much and that the children could have a pleasant visit to the city, spending only a few hours a day with me. But she turned me down flat. She said she thought it would be terribly depressing to them to see their father in such a bad condition and she didn't want to do anything to make them morbid, so instead of sending them to me she was shipping them off to Europe for a holiday. The last pictures you saw were the ones taken at the boat. She was good enough to send them to me.'" The doctor confessed that he felt like he (rather than the narrator), had the cancer of the throat, so taught were his muscles. And he added that he was vastly relieved when C. said to him, "If you don't mind, I am going to stay and run my pictures once more before I go home. I might not get back soon."

The sequel was that the poor fellow died in a few months, still caressing the mental pictures of his children from whom he was divorced. We all agreed the doctor's story was the best. We signed and sealed our votes with tears.

What does that story mean to you, reader? It means this to me: That if there is brutality in a man's or a woman's nature, divorce throws it in bold relief against the curtain of life and death. It means this to me: That no man and no woman, however wronged he or she may be, has the moral right to cheat children of their birthright. It means this to me: That nobody can ever be happy again in this life after having inflicted such torture on another soul. It means this to me: That, if there is any way to avoid it, divorce should be avoided.

We are all, in this life, caught in some trap. It may be a marriage trap. It may be a financial trap. It may be a physical trap, or a spiritual one, but we are all caught. Why should the marriage trap be so much worse than others? All marriage problems reduced to their lowest common denominator read this way: Will you go? Will you cut loose? Will you stay? Will you stick?

Culbertson on Contract

A Plan and the Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON,

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of making a definite plan by which you hope to make your contract the moment the bidding has ended, the first lead has been made and the Dummy spread upon the table.

Quite frequently the thoughtless play to the first trick has prevented the making of a contract. The expert player always has a plan in his mind. Once made, he adheres to it unless the play discloses that he must make new disposition of his forces if he is to accomplish the desired end.

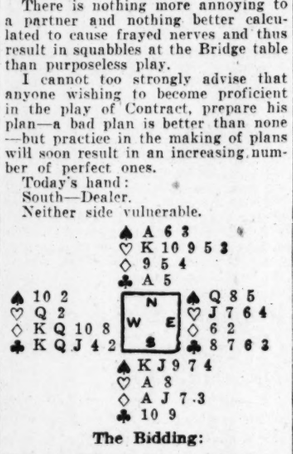

There is nothing more annoying to a partner and nothing better calculated to cause frayed nerves and thus result in squabbles at the Bridge table than purposeless play.

I cannot too strongly advise that anyone wishing to become proficient in the play of Contract, prepare his plan—a bad plan is better than none—but practice in the making of plans will soon result in an increasing number of perfect ones.

Today's hand:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was the King of clubs, and South proceeded to count his losers. It was apparent that he must lose a trick in the club suit. He might lose a trick in trumps, depending on the distribution of the suit and whether the finesse won or lost. He might lose two and possibly three diamonds. His best chance for game lay in the establishment of the heart suit but it would be useless to establish it and then have no card in the Dummy with which to re-enter it and use the hearts to discard losers. This plan indicated that entries in the Dummy were a prime essential to the success of the Declarer's campaign. There was no purpose in refusing to win the first club lead so the Ace was played, a small spade led from Dummy and when the spade finesse held, South varied the usual procedure and laid down the King of spades.

Both East and West followed but South did not continue the trumps in order to pick up East's Queen. The Ace of trumps was to play a much more important role than that. South now led the Ace of hearts and continued with the 8 of hearts, which was won with Dummy's King. The heart Ten was then led from Dummy and East played the Knave. Had he refused to cover, South would have discarded a club as his game would have been certain in any event.

South now trumped the heart and led a spade to the Ace in the Dummy hand, using the established hearts to discard two of his losers, thereby making not only his contract but an extra trick as well. South had formed a sound plan and had carried it out successfully.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What are the requirements for an Opening bid of one no-trump?

Answer: About 2 1-2 honor tricks in three suits—add 1-2 trick if vulnerable.

RUNTY HAS A SURPRISE LESSON.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

That day is lost wherein no gain
—Old Mother Nature.

Clinging with all four feet and his funny little tail to the tree which he had climbed, Runty, the smallest of the 12 little Possoms, looked down at his father, Unc' Billy Possum, as he lay on the ground apparently dead. Flip the Terrier had caught Unc' Billy and right before Runty's terrified eyes had shaken him to death. Anyway, he thought he had and Runty thought he had. Do you wonder that Runty was as badly frightened a small Possom as ever was?

Suddenly he stopped crying. He stared long and hard at Unc' Billy. He let go of the tree with one hand and rubbed his eyes. Then he looked again. He was sure, absolutely sure, that Unc' Billy's eyes had been closed all the time, and now one of them was open. What was more, one of Unc' Billy's ears had twitched. Yes, sir, that ear certainly had twitched. Then Unc' Billy's mouth closed and his lips drew back over his teeth. Runty's eyes looked as if they might pop right out of his head.

Slowly, very slowly and cautiously Unc' Billy raised his head and looked all around. Then he scrambled to his feet, shook himself and looked up at Runty and grinned. "Ah reckon it is safe fo' yo' to come down now," said he.

"Ah done fool that Dog," said he, "Did you see me?"

"Ah saw him kill yo'," replied Runty. "Anyway, Ah thought Ah did."

Unc' Billy chuckled. "So Ah fooled yo' as well as the Dog," said he. "Yo' have had one of the most impo'tant lessons a Possum can learn."

Runty looked the surprise he felt. "What lesson?" he demanded.

Again Unc' Billy grinned. "The lesson of using wits," said he promptly. "Ah didn't have a chance to run, did Ah?"

"No," replied Runty.

"No," replied Runty.

"Ah couldn't fight because that Dog was too big and strong fo' me," Unc' Billy continued. "So Ah just fooled him. Ah made him think Ah was daid. That's an old trick of the Possum family. Ah done saved mah life many times that way. Yo' mammy done saved her life the same way mo' times than she can remember. When there is no chance fo' yo' to run or climb or hide, just pretend that yo' are daid, and stay that way until yo' are sure the danger is over."

"Didn't that Dog hurt yo' when he shook you?" Runty wanted to know.

"It wasn't just comfortable," grinned Unc' Billy, "but what does that amount to when it is a matter of saving yo' life? Just nothin' at all."

PAUL EWING'S ESTATE OF $176,500 SETTLED

The $176,500 estate of Paul Ewing, jeweler, who was killed last spring in an automobile accident, Friday was settled in Fulton superior court when Judge E. D. Thomas signed an order giving court sanction to terms agreed upon.

Under the settlement, Mrs. C. J. Ewing, his mother, will receive $60 a month; L. E. Ewing, a brother, $1,000 in cash and 50 shares of stock in the Ewing Brothers Jewelry Company; A. L. Callaway, a relative, $2,000 in cash and 40 shares of stock; Thelma Carter, $500 and 30 shares, and Ashley Carter, $500 and 30 shares. Miss Carter is a niece and Mr. Carter a nephew of Mr. Ewing.

The residue of the estate is to be entrusted to the Trust Company of Georgia for the payment of an income to Mrs. Lucy Ewing, the widow, and Miss Dorothy Ewing, the daughter. The settlement was made when it was found that if Mr. Ewing's last will was carried out his widow would receive approximately $500 a year, the court agreeing that this was not the intention of the testator, who did not see such a situation when he made the last will.

Mrs. Ewing was represented by Hugh Howell, of Howell, Heyman & Bolding, and Henry Troutman, of Colquitt, Parker, Troutman & Arkwright, and other heirs by William Grant.

The will was probated in DeKalb county, and Mrs. Ewing received the DeKalb county home as a year's support. The court action which resulted in the settlement was brought in Fulton county because of the residence here of the trust company.

Unequal Division Of Wealth in U. S. Hit by Blanshard

With the average wage in the United States under $25 per week—and in southern cotton mills between $12 and $13 per week—511 people are drawing salaries in excess of a million dollars each per year, Paul Blanshard, lecturer for the League of Industrial Democracy, told Emory College students Friday.

Blanshard attacked as the "three great human failures," the distribution of wealth and of work and the system of control. He sketched the Russian contrast, about which he expects to lecture more fully while here.

Touching upon prejudices and passions, Blanshard said that, although a board of inquiry attributed it to an external explosion, the world still doesn't know what sunk the Maine. It does know the United States went to war about it though, he said.

"Racketeering, High and Low," will be Blanshard's subject at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when he addresses the Atlanta Forum Association at the Central Congregational church. Mrs. Mary Raoul Millis will preside.

Miss Risdon Gives Dinner at Vanity Fair

Miss Elizabeth Risdon, star of the production of "Elizabeth the Queen," being played at the Erlanger theater this week, entertained at a Thanksgiving dinner Thursday evening at the Vanity Fair tea room on Peachtree street. The table was graced in the center with a bowl filled with pink chrysanthemums and Shasta daisies.

Covers were placed for the members of the cast of "Elizabeth the Queen," including Miss Renee Lambert, Arling Alcine, John Burkell, Brandon Evans, Earl McDonald, George Blackwood, C. Welsh Homer, Howard Inches, Miss Gloria Gilbert, Miss Jane Churchhill, Miss Janice Johnson, Herschell Cropper, James Dixon, Perry King, R. L. Pearsall, George Seaton, John Ellsworth, Arthur Griffin, Miss Dolores Gay, Miss M. C. Adgate, Harry Lester, James Wilson, Harry Kerwin, Leo Warren and Lewis Haase, manager of the Erlanger.

Miss Risdon is popular and beloved in Atlanta, having distinguished herself as the leading woman in the Theater Guild's production of the "Strange Interlude." Her brilliant performance in the stellar role of Elizabeth in the current production of "Elizabeth the Queen," is one of the most finished acting ever seen by Atlanta theatergoers. The play will be given Saturday matinee and on Saturday evening and lovers of the best in the art of the theater should avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing this interesting production.

JACKETS AND BULLDOGS BATTLE TODAY

TECH CONCEDED OUTSIDE CHANCE TO TAKE GAME

Goldsmith Only Cripple. Thousands From Here To Attend Classic.

By Jimmy Jones.

Everybody must be going.

The horn of humanity will be inverted on Athens today for the 26th football meeting between Georgia and Tech and, as usual, Atlanta and this end of the state will pour out its quota.

The weather on the eve of the game was typical Tech-Georgia weather and the Yellow Jackets rode out of the city last night in a mist. Coach Alexander, veteran teacher of football at the Flats, who goes out once more to joust with his young friend, Harry J. Mehre, called the turn of the weather vane correctly last night when he said:

"We'll drive over in a rain but it probably will be cold tomorrow with the field just a little damp." But dampness is not as alarming to Tech teams as it is to those who employ the unabridged Notre Dame attack with fast-working plays that go better on firm footing.

Although the Yellow Jackets are not the powerful team this year that they have been in the past, it is a team of immense possibilities and enough daring to inspire its followers with hope.

The fact that Tech has not won as many victories as Georgia this year means absolutely nothing to its partisans. Tech is a young team with real threats in Pat Barron and Jap Hart, and much of the spectacular is promised today when the Engineers tackle the Bulldogs on Sanford field.

Coach William A. Alexander, of Tech, has seen many close conflicts between these greatest of state rivals since he has been coaching at the Flats. The seasons of 1926, 1929 and 1930 were big years for Georgia. In 1925, 1927 and 1928, Tech held the mastery.

TECH IN SHAPE.

"I guess it will always be an interesting game, and if I have one statement to make," said Alex Friday, "it is this: We are in pretty good shape and we hope to give Georgia a great game. We hope that it will be close, and that the best team will win."

The Tech team held a final workout yesterday at Grant field. The varsity squad left by bus for Athens at 7 p. m. and was to arrive at 9:30. Members of both the varsity and Grey Devil squads will see the game, the latter going over today. The squad will stop at the Hotel Georgian in Athens.

With the exception of Jerry Goldsmith, right end, all the Jackets were reported ready by Trainer Mike Chambers. Sid Williams, a very capable performer, will start the game in Goldsmith's place. Commenting on the latter, Coach Alex said:

"If the game is close and I see that we have a chance I might play him. If not, Williams and the substitutes will be used at right end."

Goldsmith suffered a broken jaw in the game with Florida, and has been on a liquid diet most of the time since. His lower jaw has been wired to the upper, and, although the boy is eager to play, Coach Alex is reluctant to use him unless absolutely necessary.

DISASTROUS START.

The early part of the season was disastrous for Tech. The Jackets opened nicely by defeating South Carolina, 25 to 13, and then dropped games to Carnegie Tech, Auburn, Tulane and Vanderbilt. Then came one of the greatest comebacks a southern team ever staged.

The Jackets tied North Carolina's Tarheels, 19-19, at Grant field, and then went to Philadelphia to play Pennsylvania off its feet and finally lose a 13-12 game. The Jackets rallied to defeat Florida, 23-0.

The only two games left are with Georgia today and California December 26. Naturally the team has high hopes of closing its season successfully.

While Georgia is the favorite today, a Tech victory is not beyond the realm of possibility. In fact, the Jackets are much better off today than they were last year, and it was a mighty close game in 1930. Tech is a coming team with a real open field threat in Pat Barron, a fine off-tackle runner in Jap Hart, a capable fullback in Ben Cherry and a very fine field general and passer in Roy McArthur.

The Bulldogs may win by two touchdowns. They should on past

Kid Brother - - - Two Bulldog Threats - - - Another Kid Brother

On the left above you see Pat Barron, last of the great Barrons. He has found himself this season and reminds one more and more of his big brother, David Irenus, every time Tech plays. He can be expected to give the fans at Athens a few thrills today. Those two gentlemen in the center of the group are Mr. Buster Mott and Mr. Catfish Smith. The Catfish will be making his last stand on a southern gridiron in a Bulldog uniform. Mr. Mott has been the outstanding Georgia backfield star in the last few games. On the right can be seen Sam Fincher, who, like Barron, has a family reputation to uphold. He is a kid brother of Bill Fincher, who, as you already know, was one of the greatest tackles ever to wear the Gold and White. There should be a lot of reputations upheld in the battle at Athens today. Constitution staff photos.

FULL STRENGTH OF BOTH TEAMS TO START GAME

Georgia Expects Fierce Battle; Good Weather Is Promised.

Barron, Hart and Galloway. And hard-running backs in the others. They out-played Penn. Georgia isn't expecting anything soft. Georgia never has had anything soft in playing Tech."

"There was the grisly wet day in 1929 when a big tackle picked up a fumble to win for us in a game which saw our running attack stopped," said Mehre. "There was 1930 and one of the most stubborn defenses we encountered all year. No, Georgia isn't thinking it will be easy."

Harry Mehre will start his first team against the Jackets from the Flats. There will be Wed Kelly and Catfish Smith at ends; Jim Hamrick and Bobby Rose at tackles; Red Leathers and Red Maddo at guards, and Vason McWhorter at center.

THE BACKFIELD.

In the backfield Austie Downes will go at quarter with Candler and Dickens at halves and Gilmore at fullback. Jack Roberts isn't ready yet.

There are just two possible variations of that starting lineup, according to Mehre. Sully Sullivan may call them in Downes' place at the start and Freddie Miller might start in Kelly's place at end.

It is perfectly apparent that both coaches are wanting that early lead. It is a most comforting thing, indeed, an early lead.

William Alexander, of Tech, will start his best eleven also. And it will be a grim test. It is going to be a grand sight to see this Tech team go into this game. If there is yet time for you to change the old mind and come over, do so by all means.

A GREAT GAME.

Because here are all of the elements of a great game. There is the underdog, who has developed teeth. And in that team, doped to lose, has been born a mighty desire to make the game a great one that Georgia won't forget.

It is for the spirit of things like this that men rush into battles where guns roar. It is a fight for Tech. It is a slim, forlorn chance the Jackets have. And they are going to stake it all on one great fight that will be worth seeing.

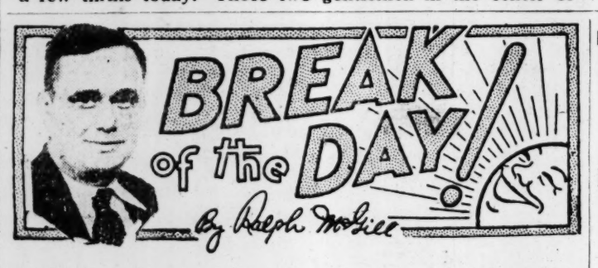

The game will begin at 2 o'clock Athens time, which is 1 o'clock Atlanta time. Ticket sales have been a bit slow, but people are waiting for the weather.

There is no way to escape the pull of the game—Tech and Georgia are meeting again. The tocsin of war is sounding in the old red clay hills.

Much of the interest in Saturday's game and Georgia's offense centers, of course, in Homer Key and Buster Mott, the two great offensive threats of the Georgia eleven. It was Mott who ran 97 yards against New York and 56 against Auburn. It was Key who was a veritable gad-fly to the opposing defenses in games all this season.

And Austie Downes, who ran back a kick-off against Yale a year ago, is also dangerous.

These three men will be those on whom the Tech defense will center.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27.—Coaches gathered here tonight to see Harry Mehre suffer. All the boys who have finished up were coming in by train and rail to be on hand when Georgia and Georgia Tech meet Saturday afternoon.

Harry Mehre, the favorite, is on the hot seat. Coach Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, has all to gain and nothing to lose. And so here they came tonight in a big mob to watch Mehre squirm.

What a great day it will be for the boys Saturday.

There was Billy Laval, of South Carolina, who lost a tough one to Auburn Thursday at Montgomery. Billy said he came up to watch a game in which the issue didn't matter a bit. Roger Kiley and Chet Wynne, of Auburn, are here and still excited.

"What a team Laval has got," said Wynne. "I'm still so nervous I can't sleep."

Frank Thomas, whose Alabama team made a great record by finishing out in front of Vanderbilt Thursday, arrived in company with Harry Robertson, of Oglethorpe.

Scrappy Moore, who turned in one of the south's finest bits of coaching by jockeying the Chattanooga Moccasins to the S. I. A. A. title, arrived along with Harold Drew, Alabama backfield coach.

And Francis King (throw the order over the transom), of O'Shea Knitting Mills University, was also on hand to answer the roll call.

Bill White, Georgia baseball coach, whose suffering won't begin until spring, joined the party.

Coach Alexander joined the discussion after bedding down his athletes.

And they all looked with amused eyes at Harry J. Mehre. The old boy has two more games to go. And how they did laugh.

"Harry, who will you start tomorrow? Oh, Harry, how will you play that wing back? Oh, Harry, who do you think will win?"

SANTA CLAUS IS ON HIS WAY.

Every now and then one of the football squad will drop up to Harry Mehre, the head coach here at Athens, and say:

"Coach, my father writes me that there are some mighty fine coveys of quail on our place, and he's saving them until I can bring you down there hunting. Any time you want to go is swell."

Or another may saunter up and drop this remark, casually, nonchalantly:

"Well, coach, do you like sorghum or syrup? We made a lot of it down on the place this year, and I thought I'd ask them to send you up a can or so if you like it."

Still another approach is—

"Coach, we had a great pecan crop down on the farm this year, and I'm asking my father to send you up a bushel or so."

Coach Mehre manages to maintain a negative attitude.

The reason for all these approaches is that Santa Claus is coming. Small boys, before they get to college, clean up leaves and work vigorously about the place before Christmas, and here at Athens Santa Claus is coming to those who make the trip to California for the Southern California game.

Santa will be riding a big modern train. There are some of the boys who have slim chances to go. And they are men-

TULANE SEEKS CROWN TODAY

L. S. U. Primed for Great Stand Against Ancient Foes, However.

By Dillon Graham.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Tulane University, prematurely voted the Southern conference football championship after Tennessee's tie with Kentucky on Thanksgiving, today will have to prove its right to the title in its final game with Louisiana State University.

The Green Wave has swept away the challenges of seven conference opponents, and is the only untied and unbeaten team in the circuit. However, in the annual Tulane-L. S. U. contest, previous performances count for exactly nothing. Louisiana State has potentially a strong team, and, if the Tigers start clicking Tulane undoubtedly will be in for a tough battle.

WAVE 3-1 FAVORITE.

Tulane is a 3-to-1 favorite, but, as the fans in Kentucky will tell you, so was Tennessee. Last year a fine Tulane team was held to a single touchdown triumph in a hard-fought closing game. Coach Russ Cohen's men would like nothing better than to climax a rather spotty season with a win over their state rival.

This twenty-ninth battle between these teams will see Jerry Dalrymple, one of the greatest ends the south has ever produced, playing his last conference game.

Georgia, gathering momentum after its setback by Tulane, also has a full afternoon in prospect at Athens, with Georgia Tech.

A month ago Georgia Tech was looked upon almost as a set-up for the ravaging Bulldogs, but the Golden Tornado has shown strength in its last three games, and is expected to give Georgia a scrap from starting whistle to closing gun.

FOND MEMORY.

Those who hold hopes for a Tech victory recall the situation four years ago when a powerful Georgia team came roaring into Atlanta doped to win handily, but took a two-touchdown jolt on the jaw. However, the experts figure Georgia too strong even for the rejuvenated Atlanta eleven.

The only other Southern conference engagement is booked for Lexington, Va., where Washington and Lee meets Duke. Jimmy DeHart, who was replaced by Wallace Wade at Duke last year after a great season, now is coach at Washington and Lee, and DeHart will open his full bag of tricks in an effort to trounce his old team.

William Alexander Fine As Coach, Man, Friend

Tech Mentor Commands Affection and Respect of Every One Who Knows Him.

By Jimmy Jones.

He's the kind of a man that a stranger finds hard to know, but never regrets having known.

He's the kind of a coach who never likes to beat the other team badly or humiliate a rival. When his team is safely ahead, he likes for his quarterback to start kicking the ball and give the opposing team a chance to escape the shame of a top-heavy defeat. He likes to win a game 7-0 or not more than 13-0.

And, as a friend, he is the kind of person that an unfortunate would go to in time of trouble for the best possible advice, and to whom a dying man would leave his last will and feel sure that it would be executed to the final degree of honesty.

Football is a grand game, but we are sometimes led to wonder if William A. Alexander isn't just a trifle above it—above any game. He might set a standard of fairness for a big corporation, or deal out justice from a judge's chair to friend and foe alike.

But the Georgia Tech coach would not like to have it said that he is above his profession. To it he has given dignity and a faultless code of sportsmanship.

FINE CHARACTER.

Other coaches have come to trust his word, and newspapermen have learned to respect his opinion. No, Alexander would not care to be a judge or a corporation head for he is a coach and a moulder of high-class men. That is his life.

Some day football will come to appreciate its gentlemen and the name of Alexander will be recalled with pride by the men who occasionally have criticized him. Some day southern football will come to remember the men who helped build it from a sandlot sport with wooden stands on each side, and then they will think of Alexander.

When we first met him as a young reporter, we were alarmed at his reticence. He actually appeared gruff and his tone seemed a little sharp. He is a man, we thought, who will make it very tough indeed on a newspaperman.

NEW VIEWPOINT.

But older and wiser heads told the writer things about Alexander. He could always be trusted, they said, and would walk blocks to telephone a news item to a newspaperman who might have missed it. His word was as good as a cashier's check, and when he made an announcement it stood.

We were to learn that all this

Jackets Are Given Rousing Sendoff

A "pep" meeting which included the entire student body of Georgia Tech last night gave Coach W. A. Alexander's team an enthusiastic send-off to Athens for the game with the Bulldogs today.

The Tech team left last night at 7 p. m. by bus, while most of the student body will follow this morning on the various trains leaving Atlanta. One of the biggest crowds ever will go along to root for the Jackets.

The pep meeting, held on the Tech campus last night, marked the last student gesture before the big game.

BOYS' BATTLES SIDNEY LANIER

Boys' High's football team will end their 1931 schedule this afternoon in Cramton Bowl, Montgomery, Ala., against Sidney Lanier High.

The Hurricane will leave the city early this morning to play the last game against an old rival, in a game formerly played as a Thanksgiving Day feature for Montgomery fans.

Boys' High has everything to gain and nothing to lose in the game. They have been eliminated in the city and state consideration, but have a chance to block Sidney Lanier's path to an Alabama state championship.

The entire squad of more than 25 players are expected to make the trip and Coach Doyal intimated Friday night that every player possible will be given a chance to get into the fray.

CARNERA STOPS FOE IN SECOND

Carnera Knocks Out Victorio Campolo in Second Round.

By Edward J. Neil,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, the Leaning Tower of Italy, bent down upon Victorio Campolo, almost as large and even taller heavyweight specimen from the Argentine, and snuffed him out in surprising fashion tonight in the second round of a 15-round struggle.

Carnera, a small matter of 266 1-2 pounds and a mere 6 feet 6 inches tall, bounced the South American and his 6 feet 7 inches and 224 1-2 pounds to the canvas for a count of nine as soon as the second round had opened and then finished him in 1:27 of the session with another volley of head punches.

It was a surprising but unconvincing display of punching power on the part of the vast Venetian, still the enigma of the heavyweights, for Campolo took the final count sitting down, gazing in melancholy fashion at the canvas. The crowd of 12,000 roared as the giants mixed wildly in the first round, stared as Victorio reclined in the second, sighed and left the arena unmoved for the most part.

The first round was hot and thunderous, full of punching, as the super-dreadnaughts of the division lately created by William Muldoon, high commissioner of the New York state athletic commission, thundered about the ring and raised the resin dust in clouds.

The slenderness of Campolo, despite his slight height advantage, told in the second as Carnera, slumping around on legs that might have been cut from the stumps of oak trees, wrapped his left fist about the nape of Victorio's neck and belabored the Argentine's chin with short rights. Campolo sighed, after a couple of dozen of those, and sank to the canvas. Gunboat Smith, once quite a heavyweight himself, but a dwarf in this league, counted nine over Victorio and even touched ten as the dazed South American, looking very mournful but unmarked, showed little disposition to get up.

Victorio stirred at nine and the gunner gave him the benefit of the doubt, dusting off his gloves as Campolo came to his feet at nine and ninety-nine one-hundredths.

The crowd, estimated at 12,000, was the first of the season to witness a show here at $15 top prices. The bouts, bringing together heavyweights throughout, were staged for the benefit of the Jewish charities.

Bulldogs in Shape For Game of Lives.

BY AL SMITH.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 27.—A brisk workout in the gathering shadows of evening today brought the Georgia Bulldogs up to the peak at which they will be when they play Georgia Tech here tomorrow in Dixie's most colorful gridiron classic.

Dummy scrimmage against Tech plays, another dummy scrimmage with their own plays, and 15 minutes of signal running completed the Bulldogs' work for their final southern appearance of the 1931 season, the last game against Tech for 12 of Georgia's regulars. The Bulldogs practiced returning the kick-off as the dessert to the day's work. Returning the kick-off for a touchdown is an old Georgia custom.

Every member of the squad is ready for action against the Yellow Jackets with the exception of Mack Crenshaw, varsity left end, who is suffering from an aching back. Jack Roberts and Vason McWhorter, who were out of the Auburn game, are ready to go.

Low-hanging foggy clouds gave a hint of possible rain Saturday, but a chilly atmosphere, which has turned colder during the day, is against the appearance of rain at the annual classic. The Bulldogs donned their hoods for one of the few times this year. It will probably be cold tomorrow, but amateur prognosticators declare against rain.

The Red Devils, those big, silent men who have taken everything the varsity had this season and always come up smiling, are ingenious chaps. After they had run off Tech plays for the varsity today, they climbed high up in the stadium and sat down in the chancellor's box, where they

Tech High Retains City Prep Title With 10-7 Defeat of G. M. A.

Hoot Gibson's Great Kick Thrills Crowd at Spiller's.

By Roy White.

Throwing every ounce of energy, skill and strategy into the last five plays, Tech High staged a whirlwind finish that turned defeat into victory and beat back G. M. A., 10 to 7, Friday afternoon at Spiller field. The victory gave Tech High its second successive city prep championship and the right to represent the northern division of the G. I. A. A. in the state title game early in December.

Hoot Gibson's perfect 17-yard placekick from the right sideline on the last play of the game was the margin of victory and turned an otherwise listless game into a regular Frank Merriwell affair. It was one of the greatest climaxes ever recorded in prep grid history in Atlanta and a fitting close to one of the city's most successful seasons.

Tech High started its great breathtaking drive to glory on its own 6-inch line after a magnificent stand that halted a Cadet drive inches short of a touchdown. In less time than it takes to tell the story, Tech High was riding the crest of the victory wave.

The Smithie board of strategy went into action and nothing but thrills for the crowd resulted. Gibson went back into the end zone and instead of kicking he passed 14 yards to Pug Boyd, who raced the remaining 86 yards to a touchdown. He was given some excellent interference, particularly by Johnny Hadley, who blocked out G. M. A.'s safety man long enough for Boyd to change his course and outrun the field. Gibson's placekick tied the score at 7-all.

Tech High kicked off and stopped G. M. A. on the 15-yard line, as the time was fast getting short. In a desperate attempt to break the tie G. M. A. passed, but Boyd, the crippled Smithie flash, leaped into the air, speared the ball and dashed 35 yards goalward before being tackled on G. M. A.'s 9-yard line, near the sideline.

Time was almost gone and Tech High didn't even call signals for the play. Boyd knelt on the 17-yard line to receive the pass from center and Gibson was ready for the kick. The Tech High line knew it was their last play, and that victory hung on the accuracy of Gibson's toe. Signals in that situation were not necessary.

KICK IS GOOD.

Gibson's kick sailed straight and high between the goal posts as the timekeeper gave the signal to halt the game. It was a great finish, one that is pictured in the movie but seldom ever seen in reality. A finish never to be erased from the minds of those present Friday afternoon.

Tech High deserved to win the game, even though it was not their best of the season during 55 minutes. They outgained G. M. A., seven first downs to four, and took advantage of their only scoring opportunities to win.

Striving for its first Atlanta title in more than a dozen years, the Cadets went into the lead in the first few minutes of play. They received the ball on Tech High's 44-yard line after two exchanges of punts. An end run lost four yards and then Keever, a defensive tackle, broke through left tackle for a 48-yard dash and a touchdown. McCay's place-kick for the extra point was good.

ACTIONS WANES.

Throughout the remainder of the first quarter there was little action, except some nice punts.

In the second quarter Tech High staged a brief offensive that netted two first downs, but no serious damage was done. G. M. A. came back with another first down as the half ended, and left the field with a 7-to-0 lead.

There was no action to thrill the crowd in the third quarter and neither team made a first down. It was largely a punting duel between Gibson and Chase, with the latter having a decided edge. McCay's quick kicks also aided the Cadets in gaining ground on exchanges of punts.

Early in the first quarter Tech High put on a drive that had scoring intentions, but Chase intercepted a pass on the 8-yard line and ran it back to midfield to halt the drive. Tech High secured three first downs in the march.

G. M. A. rallied with two first downs, but was held in the shadow of Tech High's goal, from which point the Smithies began their spectacular finish.

Gannon, at offensive tackle and backing up the line; Rice, at tackle; Quinn, at guard; Keever, at offensive fullback and defensive tackle, and Chase, McCay and Pendleton in the backfield, were outstanding for G. M. A.

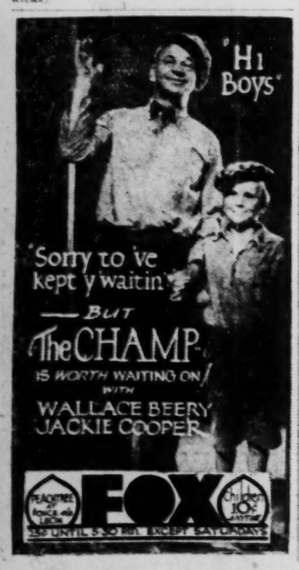

Captain Street, Boyd and Scarborough, in the backfield, and Gibson, Hadley, Tolve and Heard, in the line, were outstanding for Tech High. The blocking and tackling of Hadley and Scarborough were particularly good for Tech High.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

A mammoth and a mastodon took a crowd back to the days of the cave man as they clawed and slugged at Madison Square Garden in New York last night. And the mammoth by the name of Carnera knocked out mastodon Campolo in the second round with a flurry of wild, savage swings.

Campolo took the count of nine early in the second round and finally staggered back to his feet. He looked like a fallen pine being hoisted upright. A minute later Carnera nailed him again with a fusillade of rights and lefts and this time the towering Campolo fell to rise no more until he was sure the count was over.

Campolo got the jump on Carnera in the first minute of the fight and had the Italian rocking on his huge feet. But Carnera came back with a savage charge to finish the stronger at the bell. He carried this charge into the second round, hitting harder than he has ever hit before and Campolo couldn't take it.

The battle ended after one minute and 27 seconds of the second round with Gunboat Smith counting Campolo out and Carnera counting the house.

Close Fighting.

Most of the Army-Notre Dame battles in recent years have been closely knit. There have been few runaways. Even in the' days when the Four Horsemen galloped back and forth across the landscape from coast to coast, Notre Dame beat the Army only by a touchdown two years in succession.

In 1929 the Army had the edge over Notre Dame until Jack Elder intercepted Cagle's pass at his own goal line, and ran for the only touchdown of the game. Last year, in the rain and slush of Soldier field, Chicago, Notre Dame's margin was a single point. And these were among Notre Dame's best teams.

Notre Dame is widely favored to win again, but there is no evidence of any avalanche at hand. The Army has yet to show its best stuff.

It can play better football than it has turned on this season, and the Army team is usually at its best against Notre Dame. It is at this spot that the Cadets nearly always rise to their limit and shoot the works.

Both Harvard and Pittsburgh turned back the Army through the air and if Notre Dame has any decisive margin it will be above ground—not along the turf, although a young man named Schwartz will be hard to suppress.

There will be another star back on the field by the name of Ray Stecker, but both Schwartz and Stecker will find stout defenses in the road when they start moving along.

Quite a Team.

There is little doubt that Pittsburgh has the strongest team in the east. The Panthers cracked the Army, 26-0, and they manhandled Nebraska, winners of the Big Six title, 40-0. Any team that can run up 66 points against Army and Nebraska without being scored on is well above the rest of the teams along the eastern sweep.

Pitt has a powerful line with Quatse, McMurdo and Dougherty on the job, and a strong backfield headed by Reider. Pitt's lone defeat of the season came from Notre Dame and Notre Dame had no easy afternoon.

The Panther line was about on a par with the big forward wall that South Bend sent into action.

Not Through Yet.

The unbeaten still have their troubles to face. Tennessee, tied by Kentucky, has a hard test with New York University, a team strong enough to beat Colgate and Carnegie Tech. Tulane has Louisiana State and Washington State still left but neither has much of a show against the swish of the Green Wave. Tulane has too much speed.

Southern Methodist has an even harder pair of dates against Texas Christian and St. Mary's. And Northwestern has Purdue in the way. Just how many of these unbeaten teams may fall will not be known for another week.

Tennessee and Southern Methodist have the roughest stops on ahead against New York University and St. Mary's. N. Y. U. may not have the best football team in the east, but it is always a hard team to beat as Georgia, Fordham and Carnegie Tech discovered.

Stanford in the East.

Stanford so far has known only soft picking in the ranks of eastern football. Pop Warner's outfit cracked the Army badly two years in a row with a flow of man power, and last fall overran Dartmouth. This time Dartmouth expects to present the far westerners with a pair of problems listed under the names of Morton and McCall. It so happens these two young wearers of the Green have bothered any number of people this season, handing Cornell her only defeat of the year. Whoever wins, this same pair will be active enough most of the afternoon.

The Last Stand.

This is the Tiger's last chance to redeem part of a terrible season—not by winning from Yale but by putting up at least a fairly even scrap. The odds against Princeton in a Yale game are the greatest in their football history, and that goes back more than 50 years.

Princeton has everything in the way of inspiration for today's game, but Yale has entirely too many guns—too much speed, too much power, too much football ability for the unhappy Tiger to meet.

Princeton can only cling to the dream of a miracle, for the material isn't there to beat a first-class Yale team with a stout line and a high-grade set of backs. A wild Nassau uprising may hold the score down and make it fairly close.

could get a worm's-eye view of the workout.

Suddenly the boys down on the field were startled to hear a big Georgia yell coming down from the Reds' perch. The last three words of the yell were like this, "Rah, rah, rah, Red Devils." No one has thought about cheering the Reds this fall, so they did the job themselves, and did it right well.

That brought a big laugh from the Bulldogs, who like those Reds very much. So the workout took on a less grim tinge, and pretty soon the boys were yelling encouragement to each other. When they went up the hill a few moments later they were still yelling, and seemed to be having a fine time.

The starting lineup Saturday will probably find Vason McWhorter at center, with Leathers and Maddox at guards, Rose and Hamrick at tackles, and Smith and Miller at ends. Sully Sullivan may open at the quarterback post and Spurgeon Chandler and Marion Dickens will hold down the halfback jobs. Lloyd Gilmore is the starting fullback.

NORTHWESTERN, PURDUE READY

Boilermaker Victory Today Would Spoil Wildcats' Chances of Title.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Northwestern, undefeated Big Ten champion, and Purdue, tied with Michigan and Ohio State for second place, will meet in a charity post-season game before 50,000 persons in Soldier field tomorrow.

Although Northwestern already has rightfully won the Big Ten title and has its eye on the Tournament of Roses game with Southern California, all its hopes would be blasted by a defeat.

A victory would give Purdue a share in the Big Ten title, and perhaps the best claim of any team to the Middle-Western championship. Purdue has won eight games and lost one—a 21-14 defeat to Wisconsin in October. If Northwestern loses tomorrow, every leading Big Ten team and Notre Dame will have at least one defeat and one tie against it, while Purdue will have only one defeat.

Two other Big Ten charity games tomorrow bring Ohio State and Minnesota together at Minneapolis, and Wisconsin and Michigan together at Ann Arbor. More than 100,000 are expected to see the three games, with charity realizing about $225,000.

A four-way tie can result among Northwestern, Michigan, Ohio State and Purdue if the latter wins from Northwestern and Ohio and Michigan win their games. Northwestern has won five conference games, while Purdue, Michigan and Ohio State each has won four and lost one.

The meeting between Northwestern and Purdue should result in one of the finest offensive battles of the season unless there is a slow field to hamper the teams.

TECH CONCEDED OUTSIDE CHANCE

performances. But Pat Barron and his backfield mates, running behind that fighting line of Jack Cannon's, are certain to make a very spectacular bid for victory. Tech will present one of the smartest and most brilliant centers in the conference in Captain Howard Neblett.

Seven members of the Tech squad will play their final conference game today, but four of them are not regulars. These seven are Sam Fincher, who will start at right tackle; Ray Isaacs, who may relieve Sid Williams at right end; Buck Flowers, veteran punter and passer; Ike Farmer, tackle and center, who has been on the injured list; "Duck" McKee, guard; Clint Ezell, right tackle, and George Vierick, end.

TWO MORE YEARS.

The rest of the Tech squad returns next year and the year after, and for this the Jacket rooters are thankful.

The flower of southern society will be at Athens today. In parties going from Atlanta will be Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Jones Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Black, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jones, of Sea Island Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. (Chip) Robert, Charlie and Nell Walker Freeman and Charlie Jr.; Theo Black and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tift, of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. David Black, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Becker Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Black Jr.; Colquitt and Mary Bryan Carter, Caro Henry Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carter Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Beck Treat, of Rockford, Ill., and Al Doonan.

Special trains from Macon, Augusta and Savannah will also bear the fans to Athens.

22,000 EXPECTED.

A colorful crowd of 22,000 is anticipated.

From Americus will go Alice and Frank Harrold and Anne Ridley.

College girls, high school students and men and women from all walks of life will swell the crowd.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson, who is the guest of Miss Connor Cleckley, of Augusta, will be among the visiting society belles, and Miss Elizabeth Treseder, accompanied by her guest, Louise Harris, of Savannah, and chaperoned by Mrs. Ross Treseder, will form another party of visitors.

Others attending will include Mr. and Mrs. William Fulghum, the Charley McGehees, Nisbet and Sally Hurt Marye, Florence and Mary Bryan, Betty Timmons, Ben Smith, Nancy Frederick and Bob Pegram.

The Tech student body and faculty will go over this morning by train and auto.

RAMBLERS FACE 'JINX' OPPONENT IN ARMY TODAY

Irish Favored To Win Despite Prospect of Heavy Field.

By Dixon Stewart.

United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(UP)—Army, praised by the late Knute Rockne as "one opponent that never folds up," resumes its 18-year-old competition with Notre Dame at Yankee stadium tomorrow.

And, because of Army's unbroken record of giving Notre Dame its hardest fight of every football season—win or lose, and regardless of apparent inequalities in strength—the 1931 game retains ranking as New York's feature football treat of the year.

Rated strictly on the records, Army, beaten by Pitt and Harvard and tied by Yale, is not a worthy opponent for Notre Dame, whose only setback in three years of competition occurred last Saturday in a 16-to-14 battle with Southern California.

DOPE IS "OUT."

However, records mean nothing in Notre Dame-Army competition, as was proved in 1929 when a reputedly weak Cadet team held Notre Dame to a 6-to-0 score, and again in 1930 when a point after touchdown provided the winning margin in the westerners' 7-to-6 victory.

Snow and heavy footing today gave Army renewed hopes of victory, and resulted in betting odds falling to 7-5 on Notre Dame. The unfavorable weather also had a depressing effect on ticket prices. All of the 78,000 tickets for the game were sold weeks ago, and the only ducats available today were in the hands of scalpers.

These tickets have been offered throughout the week at prices ranging up to $100 per pair for locations between the two goal lines, and $10 each for seats in the unprotected sections behind the goal lines. With the prospect of unfavorable weather, scalpers now are faced with difficulty in unloading tickets at more than the regular price of $4 each.

RAMBLERS FIT.

Notre Dame's squad arrived in New York today and appeared fit for a fray—which Coach "Hunk" Anderson and his men hope will mark the start of a new string of victories comparable with the three-year record started under Rockne in 1929 and broken by Southern California a week ago.

"The defeat shattered our hopes of an unbeaten season," said Anderson, "but I don't think it will help Army. Our boys will fight all the harder now, and the absence of worry over keeping the winning streak unbroken should work to our advantage."

"Army is in top shape," said Major Ralph Sasse, head football coach, "and has an equal chance of victory. This is the game we want to win above all others, and you can depend on our players to give their best efforts."

COACH ALEXANDER FINE MAN, FRIEND

was true and then some. We came to know him as a man of wit who could entertain an audience, and as a football coach with a great understanding who could lead a young team along until it developed confidence in itself through supreme confidence in him.

We remember the time someone informed him of a score by which a strong southern team had triumphed over a weaker opponent:

"I'm sorry to hear that," he said, "it seems that they could have been more lenient and sent in some substitutes."

TRUE TO LIGHTS.

As badly as Tech needed a victory and as keen as his young backs were to cross the goal line against the 'Gators Saturday, Alexander sent in substitute after substitute against Florida to keep the score down.

Florida, the year before, had beaten Tech, 55-7. Many a man would have longed for an equal numerical revenge, but not Alexander. Tech won the game, 23-0. That was too much, said Alex.

There is a side of Alexander that we shall always remember. In the early fall when his team was going badly, after every practice and every game, he would sit down and talk to his assistants and the newspapermen with a patience and humor that was admirable. It takes a man who has seen a lot of adversity and a lot of success to do this. He was bigger than the game.

DEVOTED TO MOTHER.

Coach Alexander is a bachelor and strongly devoted to his mother, with whom he lives. It is his custom to take her for a drive in his roadster every Sunday. A personality sketch of this tall, quiet man with the quizzical eyes and ruddy face would not be complete without touching on this phase of his character.

He has his own stern principles of ethics in sports and refuses to step aside and allow them to be violated. He believes that a boy should get something out of college besides a knowledge of football. He is well posted on the trend of the times and is a most intelligent conversationalist.

We remember the time, he told several football anecdotes of his experience and then launched into a discussion of O. Henry, the short-story writer.

He is a great lover of dogs. This trait, after all, is one of the best criterions for judging a man.

For more than a decade Alexander has coached football at Georgia Tech. He took over the helm when Heisman left, back in 1919. He emerged from the World War a captain of engineers. He has won championships and has experienced failures. Today he will send another team out to play Georgia. His boys may lose, but they will lose honorably.

If football should ever build a statue to a coach, it would be difficult to find a better model than William Anderson Alexander.

He has said little and accomplished much.

JULYS TRIUMPH IN FOX TRIALS; 'RUTH' IS STAR

Only One Walker Placed; Weary Hunters Return To Homes.

YATESVILLE, Ga., Nov. 27.—Pleasure-worn fox hunters, after chasing Reynard and trying out their Julys and Walkers in the fields and woods of Upson county, near Yatesville, today returned to their homes in Georgia and Alabama, keenly satisfied that the fourteenth annual field trials of the Georgia Fox Hunters' Association was the best of them all.

The huntsmen spent five days just two miles from Yatesville, in the old Haygood home. Beginning Tuesday morning they put their fox hounds in the field and on succeeding days watched them pile up points for the silver cups which were given to the owners yesterday.

A PROUD GENTLEMAN.

Among the fox hunters, there was one gentleman who was particularly proud of his hounds' achievements. He was J. H. Steadman, of Clayton, Ala., who had six trophies of ten, in his possession, when his car began rumbling back over the roads to 'Bama.

Mr. Steadman's "Ruth" did the almost unbelievable in the trials. The pretty July captured first place in both the derby and all-age stakes. Four other hounds of Mr. Steadman won places.

After four days of trials, the judges figured up points made by dogs and presented trophies to the owners of the winners.

RESULTS.

Derby winners: First place, Ruth, owned by J. H. Steadman, Clayton, Ala.; second, Bell, owned by T. Z. Abercrombie, Culloden; third, Boll Weevil, owned by J. H. Steadman; fourth, Eagle, owned by J. H. Steadman.

All-age winners: First place, Ruth, owned by J. H. Steadman; second, tie between Dixie, owned by A. M. Bentley, Macon; Joe, owned by J. P. Spear, Forsyth; and Dick, owned by Johnny Haygood, Culloden; third, Boll Weevil, owned by J. H. Steadman; fourth, tie between Shot, owned by J. H. Steadman, and Flee, owned by George N. Jordan.

Bench show winners:

Best hound, Big Boy, owned by Johnny Haygood.

Second best hound, Bill, owned by Clarence Balcom, Dry Branch.

Best Bitch, Shot, owned by J. H. Steadman.

BIG PROBLEM.

The great problem of the judges was in deciding the best bitch, Shot or Dixie. It was finally decided to give the prize to Shot, although after the decision was made there was a great deal of doubt if the right bitch had been selected for the prize.

John M. Howard, of Barnesville, was master of hounds throughout the trials.

The judges were B. H. Barksdale, Barnesville; W. H. Brown, Culloden; J. H. Harris, Reynolds; R. O. Zellner, Forsyth, and J. S. Abercrombie, Culloden.

Thursday was the big day at the camp for the hunters. Besides the 100 who were there for the trials, another 100 persons were invited out to a big barbecue that day. Thursday night a big dance was enjoyed by the hunters and visitors.

OFFICERS NAMED.

Officers for the ensuing year have been named as follows: W. H. "Uncle Ham" Holland, Round Oak, president; A. J. Hill, Dawson, first vice president; A. M. Bentley, Macon, second vice president; J. K. Hogan, Macon, secretary-treasurer. One change in the directors was made. T. Z. Abercrombie, of Culloden, was named in the place of Mr. Garrett.

At least 70 hounds were carried to the scene of the trials by their owners.

The everlasting argument—which is the best, the Walker or the July—was temporarily settled as far as the hunters at the trials were concerned. Only one Walker, Clarence Balcom's "Bill," placed in any event. The rest of the hounds were July strains.

The time and place for the fifteenth annual field trials of the association will be decided upon at a later date, it was announced.

Scratch Causes Grid Player's Death

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Francis W. Dolliver, 16, a junior in the Stoneham High school, who was scratched in the face two weeks ago during a neighborhood football scrimmage, died today at the Massachusetts General hospital. He was taken to the hospital a week after he suffered his injury, in a semi-conscious condition, and his malady was then diagnosed as erysipelas.

Doctor Here Upholds Strib's Hand Injury

Conclusive proof that the left hand of W. L. (Young) Stribling has suffered a fracture of the metacarpal bone has been sent along to the Illinois boxing commission by Dr. W. A. Arnold, official physician for the Atlanta fight commission.

Dr. Arnold made the examination and upheld the statement made by two Macon physicians, one of whom was Dr. Newman, noted bone specialist of that city, to the effect that Stribling is unfit for a fight. Dr. Arnold's statement follows:

"W. L. Stribling's left hand: Considerable swelling of anterior and posterior parts of hand, extending into middle and index fingers. Slight discoloration along and over the region of the metacarpal bone. X-ray examination of left hand shows a subperiostol fracture of the second metarcarpal bone and at corpa-metacarpal joint.

"Advise he refrain from use of the hand for three weeks from this date at least. W. A. ARNOLD, M. D."

The Illinois commission had demanded a re-examination of Stribling's hand following the injury in the bout with Pietro Corri in Birmingham. It was an old injury, Stribling having hurt the hand first in a bout with Frankie Wine, one of the toughest of the heavyweights.

"Pa" Stribling has advised his son to take at least a three weeks' rest to allow the injury time to heal.

tioning hunting, syrup, pecans and other things in an innocent, naive manner. When Coach Mehre goes to put down the names of the doubtful ones, they want to be in his mind.

The trip to California is taking a little bit out of the Georgia team for the game with Tech. They are looking ahead to the Golden Gate.

They may get knocked into a heap Saturday afternoon.

California is quite a hop for a Georgia country boy to make. And come to think about it, it is quite a hop for any of us.

The odds, of course, favor the Southern Californians. But Herman Jerome Stegeman says the Bulldogs have a slim chance. So has the man in the electric chair. Paul Revere may gallop up with a reprieve any moment, but the boys are already hoping for a chance to win.

And they all want to go. That's why no one is getting hurt any more, and that's why Harry Mehre is getting so many invitations to go hunting.

RED DEVILS CHEER SELVES.

Anyone who has spent any of his spare minutes about a football field learns to have quite a lot of respect for the Red Devils, the Gray Devils or whatever names they call these various reserve teams.

The scrubs take all the hard knocks, or most of them. They are sort of like the lamented Fuzzy Wuzzy in Mr. Kipling's famous poem about the savage who broke the British square. They haven't got any newspaper clippings, and they haven't got any rewards. They get some kind words and a seat at the banquet, and that is about all.

They manage to keep a sense of humor about it, and make things tough for the varsity all season. In fact, they now and then develop a real rivalry.

This afternoon the Red Devils finished up the most strenuous part of their work. They went up into the stadium where the radio announcers give out a lot of misinformation. There was a loud speaker there. In some way they got it hitched up.

And then what was the surprise of the startled varsity squad and coaches to hear a loud cheer for the Red Devils from the Red Devils themselves. No one ever cheers them, and so they did it themselves!

FEW HONEST DIMES BEING MADE.

There are, if one is to believe one's investigators, few wagers being made on the Tech-Georgia game here Saturday. The Bulldogs are top-heavy favorites in what betting there is.

Eighteen and 12 points seemed to be what the Jacket supporters are asking. There are no takers, or few at any rate. The Bulldogs are afraid of what the Jackets might do in the way of an upset.

ATHENS REMAINS CALM.

Athens is calmer tonight than it has ever been before on the eve of a big game. The hotels are filled, but the crowd is waiting for Saturday and the dash over the roads from Atlanta, Monroe, Madison and other centers of population.

From all indications at 7 o'clock it appeared that it might be possible to go to sleep by midnight. Which is an unheard-of thing.

GET THE RIGHT PROGRAM.

University officials again tonight warned the public against purchasing the programs hawked about the streets and the hotels. They are not the official programs. The latter are on sale at 25 cents each in the stadium and on the approach.

MR. MEHRE IMPROVES.

One of the surprising developments of the current football season has been the sleep habit which Mr. Harry Mehre has developed. He who once stayed up until 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning before football games now goes to bed shortly after midnight.

Four Ramblers Named On All Mid-West Eleven

By Ralph Cannon.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 27.—Four or five members of this all-midwestern team deserve serious consideration for All-American. Rentner cannot be left off, nor can Schwartz. Munn is as valuable a guard as there is in the country, owing partly to his kicking ability, and Yarr and Hoffman are as good linemen as can be found.

Rentner first featured as a remarkable forward passer, but his thumb was crushed in the Illinois game. His long runs game after game testify to speed and elusiveness. Rentner has those deceiving long strides with high knee action, and a remarkable stop and pickup that enable him to break away. Coaches and scouts rate him generally with or even ahead of Red Grange.

Schwartz this year added fine punting to his other attributes. His speed made Notre Dame's fast reverses their strongest scoring threats, and his passing was all that could be asked. He was the leader of his team's backfield.

Northwestern and Notre Dame are the strongest teams in the middle west. Northwestern rates two men on the All-Midwestern, and Notre Dame gets four. Northwestern's powerful team owes much of its showing to a big tackle, Riley, weighing around 240, yet fast and active. So he gets a place on the team. For the other tackle position, Kurth, of Notre Dame, has the best claim.

The ends are not so much to brag about. Moss should have played more than he did at Purdue, but his pass-catching and punting, added to his general work at end, give him the call. Hewitt was the strongest end in the Big Ten, although he played most of the year at fullback for the good of his team. Williamson, who played at end for Michigan, probably was the best of the other ends around. Kosky at Notre Dame helped hold up the rugged standard of his team.

The middle west brought out a great youngster in Cramer, who started by beating Michigan and got better every game. At first he excelled at returning punts, but he later made remarkable improvement as punter, passer and field general.

Manders was the best natural fullback, a great line plunger especially valuable on spinners because he could start fast. Notre Dame has a good boy coming on in George Melinkovich, a big, fast fellow like Savoldi, but he was held back by injuries.

There is also a long list of other good players who flashed from time to time. Bob Monnett, Michigan star, was a halfback almost up to the class of those selected. Detroit had a good fullback in "Rocky" Parsaca, and Gene Ronzani starred for Marquette, which missed John Sisk while he was injured. Ed Krause, Notre Dame sophomore tackle, is a boy who will be up there in another year or so.

Greg Kabat was a flashy guard at Wisconsin, as was Jim Evans at Northwestern, and Bill Bell was the best player in Ohio State's strong line. Purdue had good backs led by Jim Purvis, a veteran blocking right half, and Paul Pardonner, sophomore quarterback.

Maynard Morrison at Michigan again was the best conference center. Captain Sammy Horwitz, guard at Chicago, and Vin Sahlin, flashy little sophomore halfback, would have stood out on a stronger team.

Illinois had a good sophomore end in Fred Frink, but Gil Berry, All-Big Ten back last year, was handicapped by a lame back and a bad leg. In minor circles, Bob Wheaton, De Pauw, was a halfback sensation.

SOLUTION SEEN TO MOBILE ILLS IN 'FAIR' OFFER

Martin Announces Bid for Marine Club by "Substantial Man."

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 27.—(AP) John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs, revealed today that a "responsible baseball man" has made a "fair and substantial" offer for the franchise and players of the Mobile Baseball Corporation.

Although he declined to reveal the source of the offer or forecast what action would be taken on it, the Southern league president said he was confident that the matter will be "concluded satisfactorily" at a league meeting he called to meet at West Baden, Ind., Tuesday morning, December 1. The National Association of Baseball Leagues, of which Martin is vice president, meets at West Baden, December 2.

The offer, he said, has been submitted to the Mobile Baseball Corporation with the approval of league directors.

SETTLEMENT SEEN.

Martin's three-paragrph announcement was construed by sports editors as indicating that a permanent settlement of the Mobile-Knoxville franchise situation was near. For the last three seasons, Southern league directors have tried in vain to put the club on its feet. In the middle of the past season when things apparently were working smoothly at Mobile, the league was asked to take over the operations of the club.

The franchise was tentatively transferred to Knoxville interests and the club removed to the Tennessee city. However, Knoxville sportsmen were unable to raise enough money to purchase the franchise as they agreed to do, and the franchise reverted to Mobile.

Following his custom, Martin declined to comment on his formal announcement which said the offer for the club had been made in writing and called for the purchase of the franchise and players, free of all indebtedness.

"Notices have been sent out by me calling a league meeting to be held at West Baden, Ind., Tuesday morning, December 1, at 10 o'clock in the West Baden hotel for the purpose of acting upon the Mobile-Knoxville franchise situation," Martin's formal announcement said.

"Since the adjournment of the annual meeting, I have procured from a responsible baseball man an offer in writing for the franchise and players of the Mobile Baseball Corporation, free of all indebtedness.

"This offer is fair and substantial and has been submitted with the approval of league directors to the Mobile Baseball Corporation. I have no forecast to make as to what action will be taken in the league meeting, but am confident that the matter will be concluded satisfactorily."

Martin declined to discuss his formal statement.

Dothan Team Beats Bainbridge, 33 to 0

DOTHAN, Ala., Nov. 27.—A post-season charity tile here this afternoon saw the Bainbridge (Ga.) Bearcats, co-holders of the south Georgia title, humbled before the powerful Dothan High eleven, champions of southeast Alabama, by the one-sided score of 33 to 0.

Riley and Ford, of Dothan, pushed over two touchdowns in the first quarter and one in the second.

At the start of the third quarter the light Bainbridge team tightened and outplayed the Alabamans, but were too worn out in the final period to prevent two additional Dothan scores. Nesbitt and Nussbaum, of Bainbridge, got off on several spectacular runs, but were stopped short of the goal.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

Once Irma had cleaned the apartment with a fantastic zeal never before equaled in that apartment's experience it really did look ever so much nicer. Everything that could be made to shine was shining. Everything that was intended to be white was as dazzling white as its age and quality would permit when young Martin Graham and his nurse walked into their new home. No woman hired for the day would have done so thorough a job, and besides, Irma knew that pennies had to be counted. It was these reflections that kept her from minding the sickening fatigue which beset her.

"It will be nicer," she said to Miss March, "when I have made some curtains and things."

"Yes," Miss March answered. "I would like a bed lamp, too, and the lock on the bathroom door to be fixed. I was thinking, Mrs. Graham, that when you get time to shop we should have some first aid things on hand. I have made a list of things. You know how children are always falling and catching cold and getting chapped lips."

"Yes," said Irma. "I'll give you money and you can lay in a supply of drugs and you can get your bed lamp." A warm feeling toward Miss March suddenly filled her. The baby was going to be safe with this woman. O, it was good to know that she could manage him now without interference. Nobody could disregard her wishes and notions concerning him and if those wishes were disregarded the offending person could be paid off and discharged. Blissful thought.

Lying, stretched upon her day bed, with the baby prattling contentedly beside her on a big chair, Irma thought of Wallace. Had he been surprised to find her gone? By this time Bill had told him all he knew about her departure. Wallace, no doubt, was perfectly contented. He certainly would not mind losing her, and no matter what his opinion of her was, he would know that in her care his child was safe. Just before she dropped into a short, heavy slumber she hoped that Mildred had been located and that Wallace had reconciled himself to her marriage.

Miss March, looking very disapproving and hampered, prepared dinner for herself and the baby on the shallow, little kitchenette. It had been agreed that Irma was to shift for herself, eating out or cooking her own dinner as her mood dictated.

Tonight she went out. The short nap refreshed her considerably and when the baby was sleeping peacefully in the bed which Irma, after careful examination, knew to be clean, she bathed and dressed and ventured forth. On 116th street she dined in a Hungarian restaurant and later went to the movies. Tomorrow the practicing that had been set aside in the interests of finding, cleaning and moving into an apartment would have to start. Also, dining out and seeing the movies would have to stop. Bill's $500 was now only $350. Of course, she had paid a whole month's rent, but God alone knew how far she was from a job.

She wondered with increased trepidation just how far away that job was when, on the following morning, she joined the limbering up class at Rackoveya's studio.

The awful stiffness of her body frightened her. Would it ever again move without effort? Within the week would she be able to make it forget that years had passed and that she had borne a child since she had last done professional dancing?

The fresh, easy grace of the younger girls struck terror to her heart. Many were in choruses of current attractions. Some were no older than Mildred. All of them were able to do the most strenuous contortions with the utmost casualness. There was a dubious consolation in remembering that she wasn't an acrobatic dancer, anyhow. Her forte was romance dances. There was money, perhaps, but certainly not beauty in rolling splits. Still, even in her sort of dancing one had to do a back hand without looking as though it were an agonizing pain.

She worked very hard that day. It was more wearing and the results less heart warming than the cleaning of the little apartment. It was difficult to get to sleep that night. How in the name of God could she ever get a job if every little chorus girl in town could dance circles around her? How could she live on a chorus salary providing that her dancing and looks were good enough for her to get a chorus job? As a matter of fact it would probably be as tough to get that as it would to get a decent job. At almost 23 a girl is getting a little old to break into the chorus.

By the time her money was getting very low she would know whether or not she could ever dance professionally again. Suppose she couldn't? What then? What would become of the baby? Wallace would take him, of course, but how could she bear giving him up? Wallace would not take her nor would she care to go to him. She had no friends. Bill Fitzroy was a friend, but unless some vital matter concerning the baby arose she would never impose upon his kindness again. What was ahead of her?

But, like so many things that haunt us in the dark hours, Irma's fears fled with the sunlight and that day saw terror substantially lessened. Though her body ached from the strain which had been put upon it, there was a noticeable improvement. It was as though her limbs were awakening to the fact that at some earlier forgotten period these ridiculous undulations had not been completely unknown. At noon she had a sandwich and a cup of coffee, and put in the balance of her rest period practicing hand and arm movements with castanets and tiny thumb cymbals used in oriental routines. She put "Anitra's Dance" on Rackoveya's victrola and after a few minutes turned it off. There was a baby-faced blond watching her with a slightly amused light in her eyes. Irma knew better than to expose her rising spirits to such a blight.

She couldn't guess that by the end of the week she and the little blond would be munching their sandwiches side by side and that the little blond would be painstakingly imitating the graceful gestures of Irma's arms. Nor could she guess that by that time the almost insolent confidence in her dancing which had placed her in many engagements would have returned with full force.

Mr. Rackoveya introduced her to a young man who was interested in having a partner with whom to practice Spanish dancing. His name was Carlos Gonzalez. At least he said it was. Looking at his undeniably Anglo-Saxon face, Irma was reminded of Phil de Rodriquez's passion for having his name agree with his dancing. But there the similarity between Phil and Carlos ended. Carlos was depressingly refined and mannerly.

He was a good dancer. There was strength and sureness in his slim arms. Almost from the start Irma knew that here was an ideal partner. She had never felt the confidence with Phil that a few days with Carlos gave her. He was pleased with her, too. It had been difficult to find some one slim enough for him to handle with ease and an appearance of lazy strength. From the first each regarded the other calculatingly, wondering if a permanent business partnership could be established. Carlos' interest was solely in Spanish dancing, and Irma knew that she was at her best in it. If some craze didn't suddenly sweep the country like the Hawaiian fad had done some years before, Spanish dancing had a chance to be in the money. Lots of people had drawn huge salaries with Spanish dancing. To be sure, it was mainly genuine Spaniards who had cashed in. Still, all Irma wanted was a decent living. The day was gone when she craved sparkling lights shouting her name to high heaven.

Over coffee and ham-on-roll sandwiches at the Automat the dancing team of Gonzalez and Irma was formed. Carlos thought that both Corbin and Graham were fatal names to attach to a Spanish dancing act.

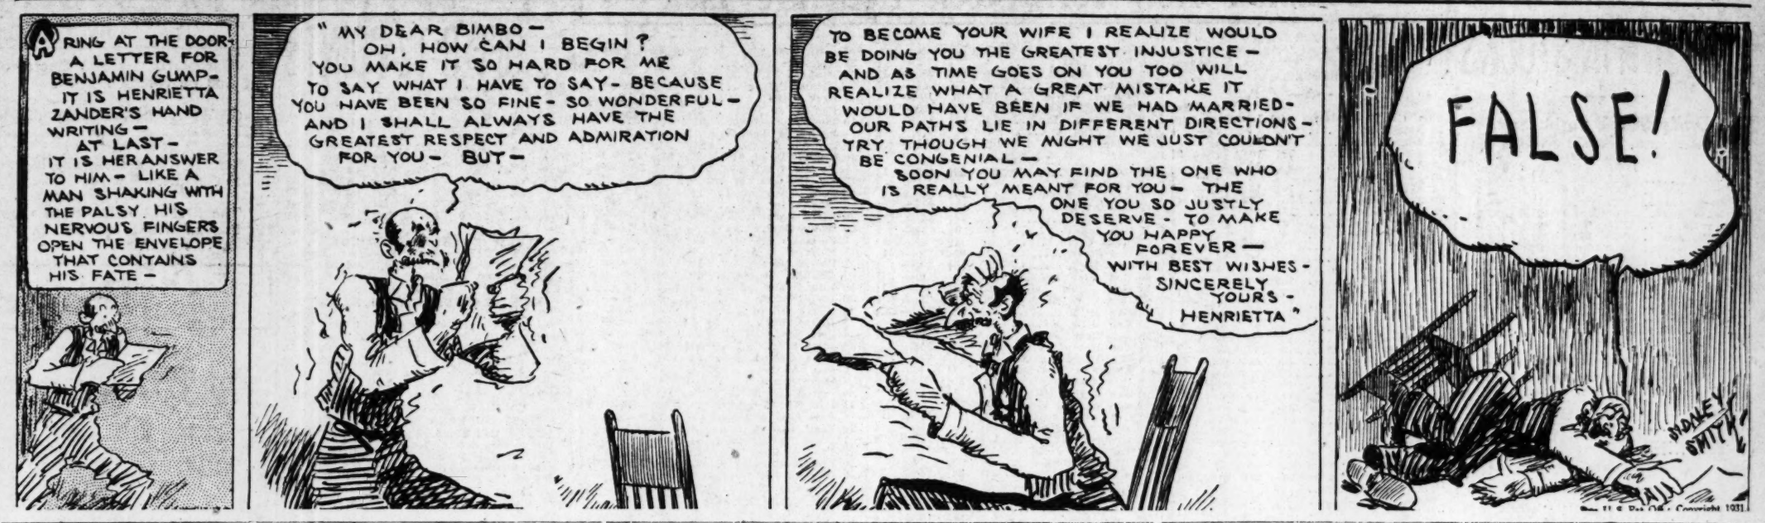

"I'll call myself Irma, if that'll please you better, but you know, kid, if it's a good act I could call myself O'Shaughnessy and they'd still book it."

"Yes, but there's no use in starting out with a handicap now, is there?"

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—(AP)—The securities markets today took up their decline in prices where they left off Wednesday for Thanksgiving holiday, and with few exceptions the trend of all major markets was downward.

The brightest ray of light that appeared in an otherwise drab stock market session came from the copper industry. The report from London that Belgian owners of rich Congo mines had agreed to curtail production was distinctly encouraging.

An important contributing cause for the day's selling which swept over the commodity as well as securities markets was the weakness of sterling. The cable rate declined 7 1-2 cents to $3.54 1-2 and offerings were reported large in both London and Paris.

Premier Laval's statement that France would not consider the suggestion that Germany's private debts be given priority over her reparations debts created some concern in speculative quarters, but was not disturbing to leading bankers.

While stock exchange sales totaled only 1,855,755 shares, which is substantially below normal business, today was the most active of the week. Temporary rallies developed occasionally, but failed to attract much following.

Stocks of practically all classes except coppers gave ground under modest offerings and the railroad issues again went to new low prices.

United States Steel yielded into new low ground, closing 2 5-8 points down. Other industrials which lost quite sharply included American Can, Eastman Kodak, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Westinghouse and International Telephone.

Foreign Markets

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON—Apart from the firmness in copper shares on the reported Belgian agreement to curtail production, prices on the stock exchange suffered from lack of support and profit-taking. Japanese bonds and Argentine rails were weak spots.

PARIS—Prices moved with a strong downward trend on the bourse today due to lack of buying. The closing was heavy.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 10 points down, at 5.80. Receipts, 45; shipments, 58; stocks, 137,397.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Cotton was lower today under a little southern selling combined with liquidation and local selling.

The decline extended to 6.02 for January, or 13 points net lower, and that position closed at 6.06. The general market closing steady at net declines of 8 to 12 points.

The opening was barely steady, 7 to 9 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables and selling by brokers with Liverpool, continental and southern connections. During the middle of the day December sold off to 5.96 and May to 6.36, or about 11 to 14 points of the lowest.

No change was reported in the southern spot situation. The demand was said to be comparatively slow, but the basis firm and while the south sold some here at the opening there was very little pressure from that source later in the day.

The decline in wheat and heaviness in the stock markets were most generally mentioned as the chief factors on the decline, while some thought the market might have been influenced by the weakness in sterling and that the talk of renewed agitation for export debentures or the equalization fee in Washington, was having a somewhat unsettling effect on sentiment abroad.

Liverpool cables said that local buying in that market had been supplied by selling on lower sterling and weakness in Alexandria, and reported an unsettled tone in the Manchester goods market with buyers cautious. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria were 14 to 41 points lower. General business here during the day was comparatively quiet. Exports today 18,260, making 2,710,966 so far this season. Port receipts 70,451. United States port stocks 4,809,806.

SPOTS IN NEW ORLEANS AGAIN HIT NEW LOWS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Cotton developed a downward tendency in today's trading, mainly due to weakness in the stock market. There were periods of steadiness from time to time, however, owing to favorable weekly statistics and more or less trade buying on the scale-down. Prices, after easing off 9 to 11 points in early trading on unfavorable cables and weakness in stocks, later rallied 3 to 6 points on covering, induced by favorable mill takings for the week. Weakness in stocks, however, which persisted, caused prices to ease off again to new lows of 9 to 12 points below the previous close. Prices ruled easy most of the afternoon and near the end with a new low for March, 13 points below the previous close. There was a rally of 2 to 5 points at the end on covering and the market closed steady with net declines for the day of 7 to 11 points.

Liverpool was due 7 to 9 penny points down on New Orleans.

Liverpool came in unchanged to 1 penny point lower than due and sterling was easier. Private cables stated that there was local buying on easier sterling, but that the Alexandria, Egyptian market was weak. Manchester cabled that the market was unsettled with buyers cautious.

Brokers' Views

Cotton Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The market today sold off to net losses of 10 to 13 points but despite slight rallies closed within 2@3 points of lows for the session. The south, houses with far eastern connections, Liverpool, the continent and local professionals were among the principal sellers, though there was a great deal of outside liquidation which was doubtless promoted by fears that the attitude of France, in placing reparations ahead of private debts of Germany, left little basis for solution of problems of short-term credits, reparations and intergovernmental debts and by the strong support accorded the equalization fee and the export debenture plan by national farm organization, which was interpreted as a threat that these features would be incorporated in legislation at the forthcoming session of congress, thus tending to further restrict export outlets for American cotton.

BEER & CO.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 27.—The cotton market continued to be depressed by weakness in other markets, particularly wheat and stocks, and considering the extreme softness of wheat and the further decline in United States Steel, which is attracting much attention, it might safely be said that cotton is ruling relatively steady. This continued decline in steel is causing the investment element in the cotton market to hold off in the hope of still lower prices. Another feature which is attracting considerable attention, particularly abroad, is the agitation of the old debenture and equalization plans in Washington and the probability that they will have to be again threshed out in the coming congress. The market was quiet during the afternoon, but showed a slight improvement and closed steady with net loss for the session of 7 to 11 points.

HUBBARD BROS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—After the initial decline this morning the market was extremely quiet and fluctuations very narrow. The trade again were willing to buy cotton on the decline with offerings coming principally from the south. The tendency of prices today was downward in view of the easier wheat and stock markets. The market in the earlier part of the week had a technical rally, but its failure to hold brought about further selling and now we are at a price level which is practically the low point established from the last move. If the market breaks through this low ground it is probable that we will have further selling, but it must be said that the market at times appears extremely short of contracts and any covering move should bring about a sharp upturn.

Grain Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

CHICAGO, Nov 27.—New foreign financial difficulties which developed over the holiday, were reflected in a drastic decline in sterling exchange and the Liverpool, Baires and Winnipeg wheat markets yesterday. This weakness was even more pronounced in Liverpool this morning and with a partially demoralized stock market our market developed into a desperate scramble on the part of sellers at the opening. Buying against daily and weekly bids furnished about the only support and renewed liquidation caused a further decline about midday. We continue to feel that wheat is working into a very strong world position and a further decline from this level will be stubbornly contested.

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Unfavorable factors were again ascendant when trading was resumed after the holiday closing. Traders took their text for today's operations from the market's uninspiring midweek session and continuing weakness in the rails.

Judged by the number of instances in which individual issues have violated former resistance levels, stocks have few friends. Nevertheless, liquidation proceeds without urgency and there is reason to believe that influential scale support underlies the market.

DOBBS & CO.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Constant dribble of liquidation of railroad stocks, which has found fresh encouragement in a succession of highly unfavorable October earnings statements, carried the rail averages (Dow-Jones) to another new low for the bear market today and suggested more definitely that the industrial averages will break through their previous bear market low of 85.51 reached on October 5. At the low of the day these averages stood at 90.65 and closed at 91.55 for a new loss of 2.60 points, while the rails pierced their previous low of 41.78, by nearly 2 points. In view of the fact that the latest French pronouncement on the relation of reparation payments to private debts is likely to cause further uneasiness, we believe that, despite the drastic deflation of the whole marekt, more attractive buying levels are likely to be seen prior to the end of the year.

BEER & CO.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Stocks generally opened well under Wednesday's closing prices and in many cases the opening prices were improved on at the close. The rails were the weakest feature of the market and steady liquidation even at prices which constantly registered new lows proved discouraging to holders of stocks in other groups. Volume increased somewhat although trading was quiet and there were no wide fluctuations after the first half hour of the day.

So far as we can learn there was considerable short selling today but this was done by traders who would sell again after a rally developed which gave them a trading profit.

Accordingly we doubt if a rally can be well sustained until we have had a day of volume liquidation.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—While the market was again confronted by unsettling news developments today, with the result that prices generally sold down to new lows on the move and not far from record bear market bottoms established on October 5, it still shows a marked lack of the kind of support which will be necessary if a break into new low ground is to be avoided.

Just at present the combined price average of all important classes is not far from its October 5 record low, the market therefore should soon give some indication of its position by the support or absence of support which it finds around this point. For the time we would watch developments from the side line.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Dragged down by a severe fall in British exchange rates and by crumbling prices for stocks in Wall Street, grain values underwent sharp setbacks today. Export demand for North American wheat was almost at a standstill.

Wheat came back about 1 cent a bushel from the extreme low of the day, but closed unsettled, 1 1-2 to 3 1-8 cents lower than Wednesday's finish, corn 1 7-8 down, oats 1 to 1 3-8 off, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Until near the end of the day, wheat showed but little power to recover from a storm of selling which swept over the market the moment trading began. The fact that sterling exchange had collapsed about 15 points since early on Wednesday overshadowed completely such bullish factors as fading of Russian wheat exports.

The downward swing of the market carried Chicago wheat futures to more than 19 cents a bushel under the high point reached on November 9, when the recent 24-cent advance reached its apex. Corn was off more than 11 cents. Rain and snow in drouth districts of domestic winter wheat territory were regarded as too light to change crop prospects a great deal.

Provisions sagged with hog values and with grains.

xNew 1931 lows.

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Although there was no disturbing news of consequence, in either business or politics, the bond market today continued to breathe feebly and the averages of prominent railroads and utilities made new low records for the year.

The total sales were $13,892,000, which is the largest day's trading since November 9. All United States government bonds closed lower and foreign issues had but few friends.

German obligations were especially weak, some of them registering as much as an eight-point loss. Recent expressions of Premier Laval, of France, that reparations payments should precede the settlement of private debts were believed by many to have contributed largely to the decline in the German loans.

South American issues were unsettled by the news that Brazil would be compelled to default in the payment of coupons due December 1, on Brazil 8s, 1941, and the 7s of 1952.

New lows were the rule throughout the railroad list. Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s, 1933, touched a bottom of 77 1-2 for a net loss of 4 7-8 points; St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1-2s, Nickel Plate issues, and Chicago & Northwestern found new low ground.

Sugar, Coffee, Rice.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Raw sugar was quiet again today and the only sale confirmed was 5,250 bags of Cuban from store at Norfolk to a Baltimore refiner concluded late on Wednesday at 3.28. Duty frees for January and February arrival were available at 3.25, with local refiners as a rule showing no interest.

Futures shared the general decline of other commodities, with all positions making new low records for the season, and final prices 3 to 5 points net lower.

Approximate sales were 19,250 tons, including considerable exchanging from the December to later position. December closed 1.08, January 1.07; March 1.10; May 1.16; July 1.22; September 1.28.

Refined was unchanged at 4.50 for fine granulated, but with the continued easiness of raws, the trade are inclined to expect a downward revision of prices in the near future.

SHARES ON CURB MEET PRESSURE

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—(AP)—The curb was under rather general selling pressure today and closed lower, although there was no such increase in activity as would indicate a selling climax. Transactions approximated 300,000 shares.

Selling slackened early in the afternoon, permitting some steadying of prices, but the market's undertone was heavy and recoveries were inconsequential. Final prices in most instances represented the day's lows. A few stocks broke into new low ground, notably American Superpower which sagged 5-8 to 4 7-8.

Utilities and industrials were in moderate supply during most of the session, but the oils were dull.

Standard Oil of Ohio lost a couple of points, although its volume was light. Standard of Indiana and Humble gave up 3-4 net.

TARZAN THE TERRIBLE No. 60

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The high priest paled as Tarzan ordered him to liberate the living sacrifices. "It is sacrilege!" he cried. Raging within him was a conflict of fear that this might be the god's son, and his hope that it was not. But he decided to take no chances, and his fear won. "The son of Jad-ben-Otho has spoken," he said at last. "Remove the bars!" When this was done the prisoners, believing a miracle had saved them, crowded about Tarzan, threw themselves on their knees, and raised their voices in thanksgiving.

Now Tarzan signified that he would leave the temple. As they departed he noticed a small ornate building standing entirely detached from the others. He saw that its door and windows were barred. "To what purpose is that building dedicated?" he asked of Lu-don. "It is nothing—the place is vacant," replied the high priest nervously, as he moved hurriedly toward the gateway leading back to the palace. Soon Tarzan, with the king and his warriors, passed from the sacred precincts of the temple grounds, and he thought no more of the incident.

One question the ape-man wished to ask but dared not, for he knew that in the minds of many of these creatures still lay a suspicion as to his genuineness. That was whether there was now or had been within the city of A-lur, a female of the same race as his. That night Ko-tan, the king, gave a great banquet in his honor. During the serving, Tarzan noticed a black slave hovering near him. Several times he saw an expression of startled recognition in the fellow's eyes as he looked at the honored guest.

Later on he caught the fellow whispering to another slave. The ape-man did not recall ever having seen the Waz-don before, and presently dismissed the thing from his mind. The king was surprised and disgusted to see his godly guest had no desire to gorge himself upon the rich food, or drink the villainous brews. To Tarzan the banquet was a dismal bore. But the Ho-dons enjoyed it immensely, until at last they succumbed to the stupefying effects of the liquor. Then Tarzan and the slaves were the only conscious creatures in the great banquet hall.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID TO ALFRED A. TAYLOR

Former Tennessee Governor Buried Near Johnson City Home.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 27. (AP)—With thousands of his friends gathered to pay him final honors, former Governor Alfred A. Taylor was buried today in a small cemetery on the outskirts of Johnson City, not far from the towering Unaka mountains that bore him 83 years ago.

Men and women of all walks of life packed the First Methodist church and stood on the outside during the funeral.

Two of Tennessee's former governors Malcolm R. Patterson and A. H. Roberts, state officials, sportsmen and mountaineers mingled as they came to pay tribute to their old friend whom they knew as congressman, governor and fox hunter.

All Johnson City stores and Milligan College, which adjoins the Taylor farm home site in Happy valley, were closed during the services.

The funeral was conducted by Dr. W. S. Neighbors, of Chattanooga, Tenn., with the assistance of Dr. Warner DuBose, of Mobile, Ala.; Dr. H. J. Derthick, president of Milligan College, and Dr. J. W. Broyles, of Johnson City.

The veteran political leader, who opposed his brother in the famed "war of the roses" for the governorship in 1886, died Wednesday of complications arising from uremic poisoning.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The statement by Premier Laval, of France, that reparation payments would have to take precedence over private credits had a disturbing influence on the securities markets today and sent prices down to new low levels. Bonds also sank to new bottom prices, while wheat lost about two cents.

Apprehension regarding the German situation continues to be the most depressing influence on prices. Following Premier Laval's statement, sterling exchange also declined sharply. While London was reported as a seller of American stocks, English holdings are estimated to be so meager that no heavy offerings from that source are expected.

TRANSAMERICA SUPPORTED.

One encouraging sign in the market was the excellent support appearing in Transamerica stock. Enormous buying orders have been placed for this issue by important banking interests sponsoring the company.

Because of the contest which is now under way in the corporation between two important factions, and anticipating that unfavorable sentiment might cause shareholders to dispose of their holdings without knowing the facts, the banking interests have mapped out a plan for supporting Transamerica shares at all times. An attempt was made today to depress the stock, but the large buying orders placed in the market caused a quick rebound in price following some heaviness.

There is considerable bearish propaganda circulated these days and it is because of this that the Transamerica interests are taking precautions to protect innocent stockholders. The example being set by Transamerica might well be followed by other important banking interests associated with large corporations.

COPPER DEVELOPMENTS.

Copper stocks showed some firmness early because of cables received from Europe that the big Belgian copper producers have agreed to the curtailment proposals made to them in New York recently.

The favorable influence of this development, however, was nullified by the announcement that the Phelps Dodge Corporation had withdrawn from the Copper Export Association, indicating that some of the American producers have different ideas as to what plans should be followed to maintain the price of copper.

The red metal was today quoted at 6 1-4 cents a pound, a new low figure for all time.

MARKET'S HIGHLIGHTS.

Standard Oil of New Jersey was relatively steady due to reports that good buying was coming into the issue from interests close to the company.

There were also reports that the sharp falling off in the production of cigarets was due to an effort on the part of tobacco companies to reduce inventories in anticipation of increased taxes. This, however, did not prevent the tobacco shares from selling lower.

Postponement of the Lorillard directors' meeting at which consideration was to be given to the resumption of dividends on the common stock caused some disappointment.

The average price of 20 rails sank to new low levels, but the industrial average is still about five points above the low figure recorded on October 5.

Rubber stocks were again lower due to the beginning of price reductions.

The firmness of Bendix shares in the face of general heaviness continued to attract attention.

TRADE TRENDS
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FOOD PRICES—Bradstreet's weekly food index touches a new all-time low during the week, dropping 2.8 per cent from last week to $2.07. It now stands 2.4 per cent below a month ago and 20.7 per cent under the corresponding week last year.

HEAVY CONSTRUCTION—Heavy engineering projects in the United States showed a sharp drop in the week just ended, Engineering News-Record reports. Industrial and other building operations, streets and roads and other forms of construction reported involve outlay of $24,281,000, as compared with 54,995,000 for the previous week. These totals compare with $26,848,000 reported for the week ended November 27, 1930.

SHEET STEEL — Production of sheet steel during October amounted to 122,739 net tons, with operations at 33.1 per cent of capacity, an increase over production of 116,842 net tons for the preceding month, the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers reports. Unfilled tonnage as of November 1 amounted to 159,367, compared with 167,366 tons as of October 1.

TIRES—Reports in Wall Street are that leading tire manufacturing companies are understood to be preparing new price lists which will be mailed to dealers over the week-end, embodying reductions in retail prices on standard tires from present schedules.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK IN GULFPORT FAILS

GULFPORT, Miss., Nov. 27.—(AP) The First National bank in Gulfport failed to open for business today.

A notice posted by the officers of the bank declared the suspension was due to steady withdrawals of deposits. The institution was placed in charge of the federal bank examiner.

The bank was capitalized at $400,000 with surplus of $80,000. Its September, 1931, statement showed deposits of around $3,000,000, loans and discounts of $2,714,000 and total resources of $4,395,000.

Dr. J. J. Harry was president of the bank; J. L. Berry, vice president, and P. A. Stilwell, cashier.

New Stage, Screen Programs At Atlanta Theaters Today

BEERY, JACKIE COOPER STAR AT FOX IN "CHAMP"

It is doubtful if the talking screen has ever produced a picture carrying the human appeal of "The Champ," which opens its week's run at the Fox theater this morning. With Wallace Beery, outstanding hit of many great pictures and Jackie Cooper, juvenile star of "Skippy," in the two main roles it is a production that pulls at the heart strings, carries many a laugh and forces tears from the most blase.

It is the story of the wreck of a former champion heavyweight fighter, with his son, a boy who believes his father the greatest man that ever lived despite all the sordid weakness that the man displays. It is a story of boyish faith in an idol with feet of clay and of the final irony of fate that leaves the lad lonely, but with his faith unimpaired.

It is setting box office records in many cities and it is inevitable that Atlanta, too, will acclaim and throng to see as far as capacity of the Fox permits.

The stage show of the week is Fanchon and Marco's "Limehouse Night," a production featuring many famous dancers, while Conductor Enrico Leide and the Fox orchestra, Organist Al Evans and the added screen attractions have been arranged to carry out the splendid appeal of the main attraction.

COOPER AND COLBERT IN GEORGIA FEATURE

Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert, two of the greatest romantic stars, will be seen together for the first time in "His Woman," the feature picture beginning at the Keith Georgia theater today.

Cooper is cast as the hard fisted sailor with a girl in every port and Miss Colbert as a hard-hearted dance-hall hostess, with the law on her trail. When they meet it is to hate, but when they become the foster-parents to a cooing, orphan infant a love as deep as the seas is born, resulting in a story that all women will understand and all men wish they could live.

This splendid feature is on the same program with four fine acts of R. K. O. vaudeville. Two famous theatrical families will be represented—the Rooneys and the Skellys. Pat Rooney and Pat Rooney III, top the bill; and Monica and Ann Skelly are the second feature.

Vincent Kay and his Georgiolians will present a delightful overture.

RIALTO OPENS NEW PROGRAMS SATURDAY

Beginning this morning, the Rialto theater joins other leading amusement houses of the city with the Saturday opening for its new programs.

The new feature picture is "Traveling Husbands," a clever story combining much comedy with a touch of romantic drama and featuring a splendid cast headed by Evelyn Brent and Frank Alverson. The usual group of carefully selected short features and the newsreel complete Manager Henry Kimmel's new program.

Heavy Pall of Smoke and Fog Blankets Southeastern States

The hazy, cloudy weather of Friday will last through today, although conditions probably will tend toward clearing the atmosphere, C. F. von Herrmann, United States meteorologist, said Friday. Temperatures will show little change today.

Dampness borne on the easterly wind Friday sent cold shivers down the backs of Atlantans, although the thermometer did not do a nose dive. Temperatures ranged from 48 to 52 degrees. Unless unexpected cold sends the mercury way down, November probably will establish a new record for warmth, Mr. von Herrmann said.

Many sections of the southeast were under a thick pall of smoke and fog Friday. Airplane travel met interference and highway travel was hazardous. Extremely poor visibility was reported throughout most of the south by the weather bureau office at Candler field. The only southeastern passenger line in operation Friday was the Atlanta-Richmond line.

The mean temperature this month so far has been 61 degrees, while the average for November is 52 degrees. The warmest November previous on record was 1909 with a mean of 58.2. This year probably will break the 52-year rainfall deficiency record, Mr. von Herrmann said. The year 1931 has had only 24.12 inches of rain, and is 19.05 below the normal. The previous record was made in 1904, with 33.13 inches of rain and a deficiency of 10 inches. November is 2.12 inches below the normal, but has no chances of making a rainfall deficiency record, as November of 1890 had only .18 of an inch of rain.

Mr. von Herrmann said that there is not much chance of further rains for a day or so, and that conditions shown on the weather map do not indicate any freezing weather for Atlanta yet. The lowest temperature so far this month was 35 degrees, but the lowest temperature on record for November was 14 degrees on the 20th, 1914.

"We are enjoying a mild fall, but I cannot say whether or not that will mean a hard winter," Mr. von Herrmann said.

SECKATARY HAWKINS :: Sounds Like a Chinese Puzzle :: By Robert Franc Schulkers

MAROONS FACE ALABAMA STATE

Morehouse Field Battle To Have Bearing on Conference Race.

Alabama State, conquerors of Clark University during the early stages of the current season, reached Atlanta late Friday afternoon for the final game on the Morehouse schedule this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The game will be played on the Morehouse athletic field. It will be a charity affair, a percentage of the gate receipts being given to the unemployed.

Alabama is formidable this year, and at present is in a three-cornered tie with Clark and Tuskegee for conference honors. A defeat by the Maroons today would blast their chances in the race. Morehouse ranks a bit lower in the conference standing, but a victory today would allow them to finish the season among the first five.

Coaches Vaughn and Forbes have completely revamped their offensives and reserve backfield men are likely to be seen in the starting lineup. The line that fought so hard against Clark will probably start for the Atlantans. There is a traditional spirit of rivalry existing in all Morehouse-Alabama games, and a hard battle is expected.

Prominent among the 35 men making the trip to Atlanta from Montgomery were the two Frazier brothers, backfield stars; A. D. Brown, triple threat flash; Cogar, All-American guard for the last three years, and Coach "Country" Lewis, a former great star on the Wilberforce team, who will be finishing out his fourth year as leader of the Hornets.

One of the largest crowds of the season is expected, as the advance ticket sale indicates that a crowd of over 3,000 will witness the struggle between these bitter conference foes.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dead husband, father and brother, William H. (Bill) Hanley, who departed this life one year ago tonight.

We can not say, we will not say that you are dead;
You are just away with a cheery smile and a wave of the hand.
You have wandered into an unknown land.

MRS. ETHEL HANLEY AND CHILDREN.
MR. J. H. HANLEY.
